2D ATOM BOMB RIPS JAPS!

REDS DECLARE WAR; ATTACK

NAGASAKI HIT; FLYERS REPORT GOOD RESULTS

Target of New U. S. Obliteration Raid a City of 255,000

GUAM, Aug. 9 (Thursday) (AP)—The world's second atomic bomb, most destructive explosive invented by man, was dropped on strategically important Nagasaki on western Kyushu Island at noon today.

Crew members radioed that results were good, but Gen. Spaatz said additional details would not be disclosed until the mission returns. Spaatz's bulletin reporting the bombing did not say whether only one or more than one "mighty atom" was dropped.

The first atomic bomb destroyed more than 60 per cent—4.1 square miles—of Hiroshima, city of 343,000 population, Monday, and radio Tokyo reported "practically every living thing" there was annihilated.

Ship and Rail City

Nagasaki, which had 211,000 population 10 years ago, is an important shipping and railway center. It was hit first by China-based B-29s a year ago this month and was heavily attacked by far east air force bombers and fighters last July 31 and Aug. 1.

Nagasaki, altho only two-thirds as large as Hiroshima in population, is considered more important industrially. With a population now estimated at 255,000, its 12 square miles are jam-packed with eave to eave buildings which won it the name "Sea of Roofs."

It was vitally important as a port for trans-shipment of military supplies and the embarkation of troops in support of Japan's operations in China, Formosa, Southeast Asia, and the Southwest Pacific. It was highly important as a major shipbuilding and repair center for both naval and merchantmen.

Twice Hiroshima's Size

The city also includes industrial suburbs of Inase and Akunoura on the western side of the harbor, and Urakami. The combined area is nearly double Hiroshima's.

Japanese perished by uncounted thousands from the searing, crushing atomic blast that annihilated most of Hiroshima, photographic and other evidence indicated today.

Tokyo radio, which said that "practically all living things, human and animal, were literally seared to death," reported that authorities were still unable to check the total casualties.

Shelters Burned Out

Photographs showed that not even stout concrete structures in the heart of the city, presumed to have been air raid shelters, escaped. The structures still stood, but apparently were burned out inside.

Except for the fire blackened concrete structures, the center of the city was utterly crushed and burned. The only section that appeared to have escaped was the harbor area.

FLEET ATTACKS AGAIN; B-29S RIP 4 HONSHU AREAS

GUAM, Aug. 9 [Thursday]—(AP)—Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet returned to its carrier plane devastation of the Japanese homeland today, adding its weight to raids on four targets by 402 B-29s.

Adm. Nimitz's bulletin reported that American and British carrier pilots launched "strong attacks" on shipping, air installations, and other military targets on the northern part of Honshu Island at dawn.

Rides Out Typhoon

The attacks are continuing, Nimitz added, and announced that a battleship and lesser fleet units shelled Wake Island yesterday, destroying ammunition dumps and anti-aircraft emplacements.

Halsey's force was swinging into action for the first time in 10 days, during which it rode out a typhoon in the western Pacific. Nimitz did not identify Halsey's targets.

Halsey's last attack was July 30, when carrier planes struck the Japanese naval base at Maizuru and the Tokyo area.

Naval Base on North Coast

Northern Honshu, besides having from 20 to 25 operational air fields, has a secondary naval base with a fleet anchorage at Ominato on the northern tip. There also are a number of seaplane bases and several naval fuel depots.

A dispatch from the fleet said Halsey's force moved in under cover of soupy weather. It said only two Japanese planes showed up and both were shot down. The dispatch added that the approach to the Japanese shore was probably the "noisiest in naval history." The fleet held anti-aircraft practice daily, firing thousands of rounds at sleeve targets towed by carrier planes.

The Super Forts dropped more than 2,300 tons of incendiary and demolition bombs on the four Japanese targets yesterday and early today.

Gen. Spaatz's war bulletin reported conflagrations raged in some targets and that "good to excellent results" were achieved at all. Three bombers were lost.

Attack Osaka Area

Spaatz also reported that 78 Mustangs and Thunderbolts struck four air fields and other targets in the Osaka area yesterday morning. Six of these planes were lost, but three pilots were rescued.

Spaatz reported these B-29 results:

Fukuyama—General conflagrations started by 93 B-29s dropping more than 500 tons of incendiaries; no interception; meager anti-aircraft fire; no United States losses.

Nakajima aircraft plant and Tokyo arsenal in Tokyo area—Good to excellent results by 67 Super Forts, which dropped 400 tons of demolition bombs; no interception; one B-29 lost to intense anti-aircraft fire.

Yawata—Excellent results and several large fires raging after 233 B-29s dropped 4,000 tons of demolition bombs; slight interception and moderate anti-aircraft fire; two B-29s lost.

M'ARTHUR MEN BLAST 59 JAP SHIPS IN 2 DAYS

MANILA, Aug. 9 [Thursday]—(AP)—In more than 400 sorties from Korea to Malaya and the Indies, allied planes sank or damaged 23 ships and 36 small craft Sunday night and Monday. They also destroyed four Japanese planes, which made the only interception.

The major single raid Monday was by more than 40 Mitchells of the 5th AAF, which sank a gunboat and four small freighters, left a 6,000 ton freighter burning and damaged three small vessels. They damaged further two 6,000 ton freighters which previously had been disabled.

One bomber was lost as the medium bombers, fighters, and patrol planes damaged waterfront installations, bivouacs and defense areas, rolling stock and vehicles, and started numerous fires.

Night patrols ranging to the Asiatic coast bombed military targets at Shanghai and industrial targets on Makino Island, off southern Korea.

Twelve freighters, eight still on the slipways, were destroyed or damaged on the Malay coast.

BY ERNEST B. VACCARO

[Associated Press White House reporter who accompanied President Truman to the Potsdam conference.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8—Final agreement upon Russian entrance into the war with Japan, it may now be disclosed, was the primary objective of President Truman's trip to the Big Three conference in Berlin.

As vital as was, and is, his interest in bringing harmony to the European scene, the President repeatedly told newsmen en route with him to Europe aboard the cruiser Augusta that his main concern was to bring the Pacific war to a close "with the least possible cost in American lives."

Frequently Spoke of It.

A soviet declaration of war, he reasoned, might save hundreds of thousands of Americans from injury or death.

Leaning against a rail of the Augusta, en route to Europe, the President frequently remarked upon the big job ahead at Postdam. He wanted more than anything else, he said, the use of Russian air bases with which to step up the assault on Japan and its conquered territories. The results were evident in his demeanor on the way back. He couldn't confide in reporters but his pleasure was evident.

Mr. Truman's friends reported he preferred not to go to Berlin. They said he would rather have had the state, war, and navy departments conduct negotiations abroad with the British and the Russians.

Hesitated to Leave U. S.

It was the hope that he could make a final agreement for Generalissimo Stalin to throw Russia's might into the allied cause, friends report, that brought his decision to leave the country at a time when the war with Japan was at its height, the allied nations charter was pending in the senate, and reconversion problems were mounting.

Mr. Truman did not minimize the task before him. He had met neither Stalin nor former Prime Minister Churchill, with whom he had to deal. He did not consider himself a schooled diplomat with the same background of international experience these two would carry into the conference.

But the President did know what he wanted and went after it.

He did not look forward to his job. He was skeptical about the reception of his proposal.

PRESIDENT IS GIVEN REDS' NEWS ON PINK SHEETS OF PAPER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—Pink sheets of paper marked "Top Secret" brought to President Truman today the word that Russia had declared war on Japan. Admiral of the Fleet Leahy and Secretary of State Byrnes held them in their hands, flanking the President as the announcement of the declaration was made.

The way it happened was this:

Shortly before 11 a. m. [Chicago time] the allied war commission was notified in Moscow that the declaration was ready. United States Ambassador Averell Harriman also was notified.

The information was relayed by the war commission to Leahy, War Secretary Stimson, and Navy Secretary Forrestal. It was typed on the pink sheets, which were the length of a long telegram.

ANOTHER BILLION IN LEND-LEASE FOR RUSSIANS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—Russia automatically became eligible for a billion dollars in lend-lease aid when she declared war against Japan, foreign economic administration officials disclosed today.

However, Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley, had foreseen the possibility that Russia would declare war against Japan when congress appropriated additional funds for the program last June. At his urging it approved a provision that $1,000,000,000 of the $4,385,000,000 budget would be allotted for supplies to Russia in event she joined the allies in the Pacific.

Tokyo Announces First Blow by Russians

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said tonight that the soviet army suddenly launched an attack against Japanese forces on the eastern soviet Manchurian border early Thursday morning, Japanese time.

According to a bulletin released by Kwantung army headquarters at 3:30 a. m. Thursday, Japanese time, the broadcast said, the soviet army suddenly opened the attack against Japanese forces with its ground forces at 1 o'clock.

Reds Bomb Area

Simultaneously, the broadcast said the bulletin added, a small number of soviet aircraft started bombing attacks on Manchurian territory. There was no indication of the exact location of the attacks.

The eastern border of the Jap puppet territory lies within about 30 air line miles, at the nearest point, of the soviet Pacific base at Vladivostok. The eastern Manchurian border area also includes the Changkufeng area, near the northern tip of Korea, where the Jap Kwantung army was defeated in a "vest pocket" undeclared war with soviet far eastern forces before the war in Europe began.

Japs Radio Red Declaration

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP)—Japan's first recorded wireless reaction to Russia's war declaration was a brief factual announcement of that action by the Domei agency in an English language transmission to Europe.

The Domei account, broadcast 5 hours and 55 minutes after the Moscow announcement, reported:

"Flash! Flash! Tokyo, Aug. 9—Tass news agency announced late last night that foreign communicat Vyacheslav Molotov communicated to Naotake Sato, Japanese ambassador to Russia, that the soviet union will consider itself in a state of war with Japan from Thursday, Aug. 9, according to the Moscow radio recorded here this morning."

By the time the "flash" was read, the state of war already had existed 2 hours and 55 minutes.

FRENCH CHARGE DUCE ATTEMPTED SNEAK SEA BLOW

PARIS, Aug. 8 (AP)—The French navy ministry said today a number of Italian bombers attempted a sneak attack on the southern coast of France in an apparent attempt to destroy the French fleet at Toulon three days before Mussolini declared war in 1940. The attack occurred on the night of June 7, but was beaten off, a ministry spokesman said.

The ministry said a signal officer at a radar station on an island detected the approaching bombers and gave an alarm.

STALIN'S ACTION LAID TO TRUMAN PLEA AND BOMB

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8—Russia came into the war against Japan at the urging of President Truman at the Potsdam conference and the action was accelerated by the advent of America's devastating atomic bomb, foreshadowing an early end of the conflict.

Secretary Byrnes

On the heels of the obliteration of Hiroshima by the first of the cosmic bombs and with the American invasion of Japan impending Russian Dictator Stalin declared war before it should be too late for him to have a hand in bringing peace to the world and sharing the spoils of war.

This aspect of the action of Moscow was revealed tonight amid the mounting indications that the doom of Japan is sealed and predictions by administration officials that the end of the war is at hand. That Tokyo may be expected to throw in the sponge at no distant date was the conclusion drawn from the revelation by Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov that Japan had asked Russia to intercede with the allies for peace.

Truman on Radio

The enemy will hear the last word on what he may expect by the continuance of resistance when President Truman addresses the American people by radio at 9 o'clock tomorrow night, Chicago time. The President will adhere to his original purpose to make the report to the nation on the Potsdam conference which he would have made to congress in person, had not that body recessed till Oct. 8 before he returned from Europe. Because of the world shaking events of the last few days it is an even greater function that he will now discharge.

Broadcast not only to the United States [In Chicago it will be heard over W-G-N] but by short wave to the world at large and beamed particularly at Japan, the President will report on the present and prospective performance of the cosmic bomb that already has brought death, destruction, and consternation to the enemy and startled all mankind with its implications of future employment in war and peace. Emphasized by the entry of Russia into the war Mr. Truman's message will remind the Japs anew of the wisdom of surrendering before they are annihilated.

Byrnes Asks Surrender

After disclosing at a press conference late this afternoon the part Mr. Truman played in getting Russia into the war State Secretary Byrnes called on Japan to surrender before it is too late.

"I welcome the news of the dec-

'Tried to Violate Our Borders'

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The soviet domestic radio said last night in a special broadcast to Russian Boy Scouts in Siberia that the Japanese "more than once tried to violate our borders," but "our troops defended the far eastern borders of our land."

The broadcast said that war had been declared upon Japan "because of the desire to bring peace closer," and urged youths to "work in the fields, take part in anti-aircraft defenses, watch the black-outs."

Japan, the radio added, "was the true ally of Germany. Together they planned an invasion of the soviet union. Like Germany, Japan was always a threat to the world, and this is the reason that the U. S. S. R. declared war on Japan."

MOSCOW, Aug. 8 (AP)—Long columns of singing Red army men tramped thru the heart of Moscow tonight, 45 minutes after the soviet radio announced to the people of Russia that the nation would be at war with Japan at one second after midnight.

People piled out of buildings and apartments to cheer the marching soldiers of the Red army, whose force was being turned against the Japanese, the soviet government said, at the request of the allies to speed "universal peace."

[Moscow broadcasts heard in London late last night swung into a program of rousing regimental marches of guards' units, interspersed with patriotic songs.]

Moscow Discloses Bid by Hirohito for Mediation

MOSCOW, Aug. 8 (AP)—Soviet Russia declared war on Japan effective at midnight tonight (4 p. m. Chicago time) and disclosed she had been asked to join the Pacific conflict by the allies to speed "universal peace."

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov disclosed that Emperor Hirohito of Japan had asked the soviet union to mediate "about mid-July" in the war in the Pacific, but added that Tokyo's rejection of the Potsdam unconditional surrender ultimatum caused the proposals to "lose all significance."

Allied Chiefs Told

Molotov said the emperor's request was transmitted thru a special Japanese mission in the soviet capital. He added that President Truman, Winston Churchill, then prime minister, and Clement Attlee, who succeeded Churchill, had been informed.

A high foreign diplomatic source said tonight this was one of two such moves the Japanese had made.

Russia gave the Japanese seven hours' warning she meant to strike. Molotov handed Russia's declaration of war to Naotake Sato, Japanese ambassador to Russia, at 5 p. m. Russian time. Three hours later the Moscow radio broadcast the news to the world and at 8:30 p. m. Molotov called in correspondents.

"Loyal Allied Duty"

In a jovial mood, he leaned across a birch table, lighted up a long Russian cigaret, and made his announcement. He was perfectly informal as he asked permission to read the text of the declaration.

Russia went to war as her "loyal allied duty" after she was asked to do so by the United States, Britain, and China, and had rejected Tokyo's suggestions she mediate the war, Molotov said.

Immediately Russia made her decision, the ambassadors of the three great allied countries warring with the Japanese were informed. They expressed "satisfaction."

Molotov had summoned Japanese Envoy Sato to the Kremlin and read him the declaration of war, which Sato was to relay to Tokyo. The declaration said Russia would consider herself at war Aug. 9, tomorrow.

Insisted on War

Molotov reminded Japan that after the defeat and capitulation of Germany, Japan was the only great power "which still insisted on the continuation of war."

He also reminded the Japanese that they had rejected the American-British-Chinese surrender ultimatum issued at Potsdam July 26.

"Thus a proposal which the Japanese government made to the soviet union concerning mediation in the war in the far east loses all basis," Molotov said.

Molotov said that after Japan's refusal to capitulate, the allies asked the soviet union to join "against Japanese aggression and by this to shorten the war, to reduce the number of casualties and to speed the restoration of universal peace."

"Loyal to its allied duty," he said, "the soviet union has accepted the proposal of the allies and his joined in the declaration of the allied powers of July 26."

"To Bring Peace Nearer"

"The soviet government considers that this policy is the only means able to bring peace nearer, free the people from further sacrifice and suffering, and give the Japanese people the possibility of avoiding the dangers and destruction suffered by Germany after her refusal to capitulate unconditionally," Molotov added.

This brought home to the Japanese war leaders that they now faced attack and destruction from the Asiatic mainland, as well as from the Pacific and beneath the awesome might of the atom bomb.

Molotov was asked about the reaction of Japanese Ambassador Sato when Molotov presented him with the Russian declaration of war against Japan. In one of the war's finest pieces of understatement Molotov replied: "He gave the text a careful study."

Molotov said he gave Sato permission to send his last telegram, after which his communications with Tokyo will be closed.

Correspondents in Moscow had their first intimation of a declaration of war when Japanese residents of the Metropolitan hotel began moving out an hour before Molotov held his press conference.

Molotov said the return home of the Japanese embassy staff would depend upon the return of the soviet embassy staff from Tokyo. No meeting point has been agreed upon, he added.

The dramatic announcement came only 48 hours after President Truman's disclosure that the United States army air forces had unleashed man's most destructive weapon on the now virtually destroyed city of Hiroshima.

An eventual Russian clash with Japan had been foreshadowed by two significant statements in the last nine months.

The first of these came Nov. 7, 1944, when Stalin in an "October revolution" anniversary speech denounced Japan as "an aggressive nation."

Denounced Jap Pact.

Then, last April 5, Russia announced she would not renew her neutrality pact with Japan, which still had a year to run.

Red Star, the official Red army newspaper, in the last fortnight published photographs of the soviet far eastern army "on training maneuvers." In addition, the Moscow press and radio for the last six months have reported on a great expansion of the soviet Pacific fleet and its far eastern bases. Many decorations have been awarded recently to shipbuilders and personnel at Vladivostok and other bases.

The Soviet government never has let the Russian people forget the fact that the Jap Kwantung army in Manchuria fought two undeclared wars against the modern Russian forces in the far east in 1938 and 1939.

laration by the Soviet government that it will consider itself in a state of war with Japan as of Aug. 9," said Byrnes. "This action of the Soviet government should materially shorten the war and save the loss of many lives. I am happy, too, that the allied powers that cooperated in Europe to defeat the enemy will continue their cooperation in the far east and will bring peace to the world.

"I hope that the people of Japan will now realize that further resistance to the forces of the nations now united in the enforcement of law and justice will be futile. There is still time—but little time—for the Japanese to save themselves from the destruction which threatens them."

Truman's Argument

Byrnes said that at Potsdam the "viewpoint of the President was conveyed to Generalissimo Stalin" in a memorandum quoting the agreements of the powers to consult with each other on the maintenance of peace that were reached at the Moscow conference in 1943 and at the recent San Francisco conference that framed the allied nations charter. Particularly pertinent was the provision of the charter that "in the event of a conflict between the obligations of the members of the united nations under the present charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the present charter shall prevail."

The President's memorandum pointed out that the Soviet Union had agreed to this provision and will be a permanent member of the new peace league's security council. The significance of this provision, tho not specified by the President, is that the obligation of Russia under the charter to collaborate on the maintenance of peace is paramount to any obligation of the Soviet Union under its neutrality treaty with Japan which does not expire till next spring, tho Moscow gave notice of its termination last March.

Truman Gives News

The President personally informed the press that the soviet union had joined the war against Japan. Correspondents were given only 15 minutes notice by the White House that Mr. Truman would have an important announcement to make at 3 p. m.

The President was seated at his desk smiling and looking exceedingly confident and self-assured as the reporters filed in. Flanking him were State Secretary Byrnes, Adm. Leahy, his chief of staff, and his army and navy aides. When all the reporters were in Mr. Truman rose and said:

"I have only a simple announcement to make. I can't hold a regular press conference today but this announcement is so important I thought I would call you in.

"Russia has declared war on Japan—that is all."

The action of the soviets coming at this particular time was a surprise to the President and Byrnes. They were hoping but did not expect it so soon.

Apparently there was full and frank discussion of the matter at Potsdam. Stalin told the President and Prime Minister Churchill how the Japs had asked him to intercede for peace. This plea had been made to Stalin by the Japanese ambassador on the eve of the Potsdam conference. The Japs were endeavoring, of course, to make Russia the intermediary for a negotiated peace. The move was a flop, being rebuffed by Mr. Truman and Churchill and evidently not pressed by Stalin.

Waited for China Deal

The supposition here was that Stalin did not want to get into the war until he had time to negotiate a deal with China on division of the prizes of war. These negotiations had been begun when T. V. Soong, the new Chinese premier, arrived in Moscow in June, but they were interrupted by the departure of Stalin for Potsdam. Soong returned to Chungking but went back to Moscow a few days ago when the negotiations were resumed.

It was understood that Stalin supposedly was seeking recognition by China of the inclusion of Inner Mongolia in the Russian sphere of influence. Stalin also is known to have been intent on getting from Chungking recognition of the communist power in North China.

Soong was conferring with Stalin yesterday and the deal may or may not have been concluded by the time of the declaration of war today. But whatever the facts on that point there was one reason that Stalin could not afford to risk waiting to get into the war. That reason was the atomic bomb which made its appearance in the world of warriors and statesmen less than three days ago.

According to the scientific report the impact of the explosion of this fundamental force of the universe can be felt fully 100 miles away. But Washington officials are saying tonight that the detonation of the first atomic bomb dropped on Japan evidently was felt as far away as Moscow.

DOENITZ FEARED U. S. WOULD HURL ATOM BOMB ON GERMANY

MONDORF, Luxemburg, Aug. 8 (AP)—Adm. Karl Doenitz, head of the German state at the time of the reich's surrender, predicted today that the atomic bomb would wipe out the Japanese population and said: "I am not surprised you succeeded. We were afraid you would do it sooner and use it against Germany."

Doenitz's shocked cry was echoed by Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop, and almost all the other high ranking Nazis interned in the interrogation center in Luxemburg.

"A mighty accomplishment," Goering said. "I don't want to have anything to do with it. I am leaving this world."

Von Ribbentrop exclaimed: "Good heavens—this means the revolution of everything. No one would be so stupid as to start a war now."

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, who commanded German bomber forces in the 1940 blitz of London, said the atom bomb opened up "an as yet unsurveyable era in aerial technique and tactics."

Jakob Nagel, former nazi postmaster general, said German scientists had made a real effort to use the atom but added, "America was well ahead of us."

GRISWOLD TELLS YAMASHITA TO GIVE UP OR DIE

WITH U. S. 14TH CORPS, Northern Luzon, Aug. 8 (AP)—A personal appeal to Japanese Gen. Yamashita to surrender his troop remnants and avoid further "needless deaths" among Japanese civilians as well as troops was made today by Lt. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold.

The commander of the United States 14th army corps told Yamashita in hundreds of leaflets dropped in the area where some 6,000 enemy troops are estimated cornered that he had three choices: Cease hopeless resistance, continue to resist and be killed, commit suicide.

American and Filipino troops fought an intensified mopup battle with the strong Japanese garrison defending the northwestern approach to the Agno river valley of northern Luzon Island on Monday and for the third day gains were measured in yards.

CHUNGKING NOW SEES WAR EVEN CLOSER TO END

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 9 (Thursday) (AP)—An early finish of the war with Japan, already expected in Chungking with the use of the atomic bomb, now is regarded here as even closer with Russia's declaration of war.

The news broke while most of the capital was asleep and was spread first by eager, excited telephone calls.

ATTLEE HAILS 'GREAT DECISION' BY RUSSIA; SEES WAR SHORTENED

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee said tonight that Great Britain welcomed "this great decision of soviet Russia" to enter the war against Japan.

In a statement issued slightly more than three hours after the announcement of the war declaration in Moscow and Washington, Attlee hailed the Russian action as "proof of the solidarity that exists between the principal allies" and predicted it would "shorten the struggle."

"We in Great Britain have fully appreciated and understood the tremendous sacrifice and strain imposed on Russia by her heroic campaign against nazi Germany and we have always had confidence that as soon as victory had been won in the west, Russia would take her stand with her allies against the enemy on the eastern front," Attlee added.

"The unconditional surrender of Germany has now made possible the deployment of the forces of the U. S. S. R. against the last of the aggressors."

REDS' WAR MOVE PUTS LOAD UPON TRIBUNE PHONES

Telephone switchboards in Tribune Tower yesterday took on a heavy load as a result of announcement that Russia had declared war on Japan. THE TRIBUNE bulletin service, Superior 0200, furnished information at a rate of 2,000 calls an hour, Miss Ann Garrow, chief of the Tribune telephone service, reported last evening. By 5:30 p. m., more than 5,000 calls were handled, she said.

Extra operators were called in to assist the daily staff. Operators alternated every 10 minutes in the broadcasting booth, giving out the latest war bulletins. These were rushed to the switchboards from THE TRIBUNE news room.

The bulletin service was installed in April, 1939, and is operated from a small, soundproof room set apart from the main switchboard. Callers on 60 lines can hear the operator simultaneously. The bulletin broadcasting goes on 24 hours a day.

M'ARTHUR, REDS TO ESTABLISH SPEEDY LIAISON

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 9 [Thursday]—An immediate liaison between Gen. MacArthur's command and the Red army will be established now that Russia has declared war upon Japan.

Present plans for continuing the war against Japan from this theater have been based upon the knowledge that Russia would enter the war.

Russia's action bolsters the hopes that Japan may surrender without her homeland being invaded, but hoping is as far as it goes. Supplies and troops are being piled up at increasing speed daily and nothing could be farther from wrong than the belief that the preparations for total defeat of Japan are being slowed, at least in this area.

Fleet to Aid Reds: Nimitz

GUAM, Aug. 9 [Thursday]—(AP)—The United States Pacific fleet will give full assistance to the Russian effort against Japan, Adm. Nimitz said today in welcoming entry of the soviets into the war. The commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet issued a statement.

Nimitz had been awakened last night to be informed of the momentous news.

"We welcome Russia as a powerful partner in the war against Japan," the admiral said.

"Russia's brave and battle tested armies, in the advantageously geographical position which they hold in relation to Japan, arrayed with the already overwhelming force of other united nations, will help hasten defeat of the Japanese.

"The Pacific fleet will in turn give assistance to the Russian effort."

See Quick End

Nimitz's staff long ago had made provisions for possible entry of Russia into the war.

How it will affect American operations was not immediately disclosed, but it is bound to reflect in tighter blockade of Japan by acquisition of new bases in Russian territory.

On the other hand, it will give the navy the job of protecting convoys slipping thru the northern Kuriles Islands to reach soviet ports with war supplies for Russia.

Marines Hail Reds

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Aug. 8 (AP)—Entry of Russia into the war with Japan was acclaimed today by the commanding general of American marine forces in the Pacific as speeding "the day when peace thruout the world once again will reign supreme."

"We welcome our ally Russia into the war against the common enemy, the Japanese," said Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger.

Vice Adm. John H. Hoover, deputy commander in chief of the Pacific fleet for Pacific ocean areas, commented: "The Russians will be able to hit the Japanese where it will hurt them the most—in the bread basket. The sooner they do it, the better."

Three from Russia

Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP)—Two army generals and a navy captain arrived by plane tonight from Germany via Russia and the Pacific and officers of the 6th ferrying group of the air transport command said they had briefed Pacific regional commanders on the military decisions reached at the Potsdam meeting of the Big Three.

Admiral Welcomes News

ADAK, Aleutians, Aug. 8 (AP)—Russia's entrance into the war was welcomed today by Vice Adm. Fletcher, commander of the North Pacific forces, as a factor that would bring a quicker conclusion to the conflict in the Pacific.

"We are glad to hear of the Russian move and they may be sure that we will cooperate with them fully in the North Pacific."

RUSSIA GOES IN BEST PREPARED, OBSERVERS SAY

Lend-Lease to Aid Her; Japan Lacks Men

The Russian declaration of war against Japan has clearly been carefully timed, in the opinion of observers. It follows the concentration of the soviet far eastern armies along the Manchurian border and the conclusion of summer exercises there.

It follows the material and psychological shock inflicted by the atom bomb and the apparent agreement with China over the future of China's northeastern provinces which presumably was conveyed by Dr. T. V. Soong, the Chinese premier, in his interview with Generalissimo Stalin on Tuesday.

Russia, aided by lend-lease once more, is better prepared than Japan for the struggle both have long expected in the vast and little known regions of Manchuria and Mongolia, according to students of the subject.

1904 Defeat Rankled

Russia has ever rankled with the disastrous defeat of 1904-'05 which began with Japan's early model of Pearl Harbor—a sneak attack on warships at Port Arthur. That Russo-Jap conflict was won largely at sea, but the Russians suffered many setbacks on land as well.

The chip-on-shoulder attitude of both nations is partly the reason for Japan's development of war industry in Manchuria. Had Russia stayed out of the war the munitions produced in Manchuria, with its rich deposits of coal and other minerals far from American bombers, would have yielded military dividends by its isolation.

Report Big Russian Army

A British war office commentator said last night of soviet military strength in Siberia "we really don't know a thing about what the Russians have out there."

Experts estimate, however, Russia has for years maintained 70 divisions totaling 1,400,000 troops along its far east borders, even when the German invasion was at its height. It was reported that an equal number of reserves well trained to function in the severe climate were on hand.

It is assumed that this core of 2,800,000 troops and reservists has grown considerably since Germany's surrender. The Trans-Siberian railroad has been double tracked and paralleled by other rail facilities.

Japanese troops have been estimated at 55 divisions, but accretions in recent months undoubtedly have swelled this total. Observers of the far eastern scene have noted indications of Japanese withdrawals of troops from China without local pressure, and deduced that these were bound for the Manchurian borders.

China's Reds May Help

To the war potential against Japan might be added the undetermined army strength of the Communist government in China. The 80 million Communists in China have had their own army and government, which has not been fighting the Japs, with the excuse that lend-lease was not available.

A year ago it was estimated that conscription of Chinese by Japan had raised 500,000 men, and in 1942 the drafting of Koreans was begun. What success was met in rebellious Korea is a matter for speculation. Communist agents and agitators long have been busy there.

Steady Flow of U. S. Goods

In the Russian territory has been built up a great array of plants to produce material, some of its peculiarly adapted to the region. Reports have come out of tanks and other vehicles powered by wood gas, for example, because of lack of oil supplies.

But a steady stream of soviet ships has been carrying lend-lease supplies from west Pacific ports to Vladivostok ever since 1942, and it is assumed that great stores of gasoline and trucks have been accumulated. Russia never has belittled the dangers it has faced continually in this area.

Recently in Washington, D. C., a lend-lease official faced a barrage of questions about continued lend-lease to Russia and conceded that his reputation depended upon the soviet's entrance into the war on Japan.

River Flotilla Ready

What has been described by the soviets as the largest river speed boat flotilla is ready for action on the Amur river bordering Manchuria. There also is a fleet of larger craft with heavy guns.

The Japanese six years ago reported that the Russians had 4,000 pill boxes, 3,000 first line planes, and 2,500 tanks. The planes are mostly fighters and light bombers for infantry support, meaning that the job of bombing the Japanese homeland may continue to be left to Americans.

Altho the Russian navy is reported weak in surface craft in the North Pacific waters, there are said to be plenty of submarines which can effectively disrupt attempted Japanese reenforcements to Manchuria and Korea. Manchuria alone is twice the size of Germany.

Commander in chief of the Soviet Far Eastern Independent army was last reported to be Gen. Joseph R. Apanasenko, supervised by Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, former defense commissar of the U. S. S. R.

Tightens Blockade

Russia's entry into the war tightens a strangling blockade which already is denying the Japanese home islands the food and raw materials they need to wage war. In effect, Japan is now completely encircled. On the east and south, American forces control the waters and the air right up to the Japanese islands themselves from the Aleutian Islands in the north to Okinawa and the Philippines.

On the west, Japan now is confronted by a soviet enemy on the Asiatic mainland stretching in a great arc across the sea of Japan.

Washington observers said that while it might appear from a map that the Russians were in a difficult position because of the Manchurian bulge near the Russians' trans-Siberian railroad, the soviet union undoubtedly has massed troops in great strength there to protect the vital rail line.

GI Joe in the Pacific

By ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 8—A group of veterans of Luzon were sitting around talking, mostly about women, as usual, when a man came up with a copy of a Manila daily paper, Free Philippines.

In letters three inches high, taking up half the small page, the paper shouted: "Atomic Bomb Rocks Japan."

The soldiers stared at the words and at the big subhead which said the new bomb was equal to 20,000 tons of T. N. T.

There was a long silence. Then one GI said: "Scares you, doesn't it?"

"Yeah, way down deep," another said.

And again the men who have shot and been shot at fell quiet.

"You know," one of them said, "it makes me feel like the night Hitler spoke on the radio before invading Poland. And that Sunday afternoon Japan bombed Pearl Harbor. Some giant new force has been turned loose on the world and you wonder where it's going to end."

Respect All Weapons

One by one the GI's began to speak what was in the back of their minds, the mighty respect a combat soldier has for every weapon. He knows the damage 1945 weapons can do and he fears them because he knows that the very power he uses can be turned against him.

Once, before they had been shot and bombed, they would have been glad to learn of some new allied weapon. They might even have been thrilled. They might have said, "Now we will give those snakes their deserts."

But now that they have been shot at, the news brought a deep fear, a fear in the knowledge that while we are dishing out this new mass death, allied troops, including these very GI's might have to take it. Or their children a few years from now.

One GI speculated that pretty soon he would get letters from home saying how wonderful it was that we had atoms on our side and that surely the war would be over right away now. And how angry he would be. Letters saything the war was almost over always made him angry.

Wars to End? Maybe!

"One thing, that new bomb just means this war will have to be the last, or else everybody will get killed the next time," one GI said.

"I don't know about that," another said. "It might tempt some people to start a war, thinking they could strike first and beat the other people without themselves getting hurt.

"The way I look at it," he continued, "is this: Once upon a time when people fought with fists and sticks it was just man against man. One man had the power to kill only one other. In this war one man with a bomb or shell or machine gun had the power to kill tens or scores or hundreds. Now with this bomb, one man has the power to kill thousands. Of course, this added power could be put to good use if everybody tried. But as long as skunks are apt to spring up, looks to me as tho from now on everybody will live with a gun at his head, a gun that might go off any time and kill him before he had the time to do anything about it."

Guesses Are Exchanged

The GI's didn't say anything for quite some time. Then they exchanged guesses as to what made the bomb work and how much damage it really does and how scared the bomber crew must have been while delivering it and if maybe more than one wasn't taken along on the first raid so another could be dropped if the first was a dud.

Mention of a dud brought the remark that if the Japs came across one of those duds they would have to rope off the entire city until the bomb went off.

But the information in the paper was sketchy and after every one had read it, the paper was tossed aside, the veterans who had shot and been shot at put the information in the back of their heads where it could be pondered and worried over from time to time, and the talk went back to women.

TRIBUNE LEADS WAY AGAIN WITH BIG 3 IN COLORS

BY JOHN MENAUGH

From the recent big three conference in Potsdam, Germany, came not only an international agreement on European problems, but also the first news color photograph ever transmitted by radio for publication.

Details for making and transmitting color photographs by radio were perfected by the signal corps' army pictorial service, under the direction of Brig. Gen. Edward L. Munson Jr., and the army communications service, directed by Maj. Gen. Frank E. Stoner. Over all supervision was by Maj. Gen. Harry C. Ingles, chief signal officer of the army.

Three Negatives Exposed

Altho the signal corps radiotelephoto has serviced thousands of black and white photographs to the American press during the war, this photograph from Germany is the first example of color transmission.

An army pictorial service photographer was sent to the conference in Germany for the express purpose of taking a color photograph of the Big Three. He used a special camera that exposed three negatives simultaneously, each thru a distinct type of filter. From the negatives, three black and white color separation prints were made, representing the three basic colors, red, blue, and yellow. These prints were transmitted by radiotelephoto from Berlin direct to Washington, D. C., whence they were dispatched to Chicago.

THE TRIBUNE'S color engraving department is equipped to handle color separation prints speedily. It made three plates from the prints and an additional, or key plate, for an impression in black. The key plate was made from the same print as the blue plate, altho shadows and lines were brought out to produce greater contrasts. Color reproductions made simply from red, yellow, and blue plates lack sharpness, which explains why it is necessary to add the black plate. From each of the four plates, an impression was made in a separate color. Combination of the four impressions made the color picture reproduced in today's TRIBUNE.

Color Photograph on Display

As the color engraving department began preparation of the plates, the Tribune color studio on the 20th floor of Tribune Tower obtained wirephoto negatives of the original radio prints. By its own process, using the three colors, red, yellow, and blue, it produced a carbro color photograph that the color engravers used as a color guide. The photograph is on display in a window of The Tribune Public Service office at Dearborn and Madison sts.

This printing of the first news color photograph ever transmitted by radio for publication represents another "first" for THE TRIBUNE in the field of color. On June 9, 1939, it reproduced [as a first] a color photograph of a meeting of President Roosevelt and King George VI. of Great Britain, taken by its own color camera men in Washington and transmitted to Chicago by wirephoto. Thirteen hours after the photograph was taken in the capital, its reproduction was being printed on Tribune presses. Never before in history had a daily newspaper handled a true color picture of a far away spot news event and presented it to readers at their breakfast tables the morning after the event.

In addition, THE TRIBUNE has pioneered thru the years in color reproduction by the rotogravure process. It was the first in the world to print color rotogravure on a moving web of paper.

COMPTON VIEWS ATOMIC BOMB AS RESPONSIBILITY

Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, cosmic ray authority who directed research in metallurgy for the atomic bomb at the University of Chicago, where he is dean of the physical sciences division, warned yesterday that solemn responsibility accompanies the advent of the atomic bomb.

He referred to the words of former Prime Minister Churchill that invention of the device "should arouse the most solemn reflections in the mind and conscience of every human being."

"With President Truman," Dr. Compton said, "we see the need for complete victory over Japan that the world's freedom may be insured, and we hope that the new weapons may speed this victory. But, during the years that we have spent in developing atomic bombs, my associates and I have lived constantly with the solemn thoughts expressed by Mr. Churchill."

BIG 3 INACTION STIRS TURK FEAR OF MOVE BY REDS

Some Expect Russia to Force Parley

BY CLAY GOWRAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 8—Bewildered and disappointed that the critical Russo-Turkish problem was not even brought up by the Big Three at Potsdam, all Turkey today is awaiting the next move in Russia's campaign of fear against this strongly anti-Communist nation.

What form this move will take is the source of endless speculation in Ankara and Istanbul. The more panicky Turks are afraid that the soviets, with more than 300,000 men massed in southern Bulgaria, now may attempt to realize their demands by force with a thinly disguised "Bulgarian expansionist movement" southward to the Aegean coast. However, most Turks, including many government officials, are convinced that Premier Stalin will attempt to force Turkey into bilateral negotiations in order to secure his demands. Russian demands are reported to include the presence of Russian troops on the straits, granting a corridor to the Aegean to Bulgaria, the revision of the Montreux convention and the return of Kars and Ardahan provinces in eastern Turkey to Russia.

Held Soviet Victory

Official Turkey regards the Potsdam meeting as clear cut victory for the soviets. The Turks feel that Russia received the lion's share of control of Germany, that no real, lasting decisions were agreed upon concerning the Balkans, and that—most important to them—apparently nothing was accomplished regarding the looming Russo-Turkish crisis.

The Potsdam declaration was a tremendous blow to the Turks. Anxiously they had waited beside their radios or read their newspapers during the conference days hoping that the meeting would dissolve the great shadow of fear which has hung over the country since the Russian demands were revealed. At first they could not believe that the declaration did not contain a single word about their problem. Now they realize that their country faces an even greater danger, a period in which Russian pressure against them will rise to new heights.

The Turkish government apparently is doing what it can to meet the situation. Government circles in Ankara are heavy with rumors that Foreign Minister Hasan Saka, who has led in drafting a foreign policy which does not give in one inch to the Russians, may be replaced shortly by the present minister of finance, Nurullah Sumer.

Not Ready to Bow

Sumer, a business man, is largely responsible for nationalization of many Turkish industries such as textiles, paper, glass, and most of the steel industry. Apparently it is reasoned that Sumer, because of this background, would be better able to deal with the soviets than the outspoken, rabidly anti-Russian Saka.

High government officials were reluctant to discuss the rumor that Sumer would become foreign minister, but every one of them insisted that even if Sumer is appointed it will not mean that Turkey is ready to bow to soviet requests. Turkey will not yield one inch of her territory nor her sovereignty without a fight, even if she finds that she must fight alone without British or American help, these officials reiterated.

BRIDGES PASSES FIRST HEARING ON CITIZENSHIP

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP)—Denying he was ever a Communist, Harry Bridges passed his preliminary United States citizenship test before Naturalization Examiner L. H. Garner today.

The Australian-born labor leader also asserted to Garner he had "no desire to change government processes except by peaceful and legal means."

Today's hearing was on Bridges' 1939 application for citizenship. The final hearing was set for Sept. 17.

Garner said the examination of Bridges was "like anybody else's." Only on a question involving "moral character" was the questioning other than routine, the examiner said. Garner asked the CIO longshoremen's president if it were true, as his wife maintains in her cross complaint to Bridges' divorce suit, that he is the father of a child born to a New York dancer. Bridges denied the charge.

Midwest Pilots Down Japs in P-38 Raid on Singapore

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 5 [Delayed] (AP)—Capt. George Dubis, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Capt. John Solman, Rock Falls, Ill., P-38 pilots of the 13th air force Fighting Cocks squadron, raided Singapore and downed a Jap plane each.

REVEALS JAPS STUDIED ATOM AT COAST LAB

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP)—Japanese physicists from the University of Tokyo spent months before the war working with University of California scientists at the university laboratory which harbors the famed cyclotron, primary unit in development of the theory of the atomic bomb, it was learned today. Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, Nobel prize winning physicist, revealed that one Japanese scientist spent most of 1938 and part of 1939 at the laboratory, which since the war has been a closely guarded secret.

Some Remained Longer

The Japanese were among many scientists from thruout the world who came to study with Dr. Lawrence after he won the Nobel prize in 1939 and to use the atom smashing equipment which he developed.

The Japanese remained until a short time before Pearl Harbor.

Dr. Lawrence did not say whether the Japanese had learned anything here which would aid them in developing their own version of the atomic bomb.

Project Goes Back to 1941

Recalling the history of the atomic bomb project in an interview, Dr. Lawrence said that in the fall of 1941 he went to Dr. Warren Weaver, director of natural sciences for the Rockefeller Foundation, which had given $1,150,000 to build the cyclotron. He told him that he believed "he had something that would contribute to the war effort." He did not then identify the "something" but he said he had the bomb in mind.

Within 24 hours Dr. Weaver had additional funds. At the peak of its war activity the laboratory employed 1,200 people. It now has 600.

POLISH LEADERS GREETED BY RED GUARD OF HONOR

MOSCOW, Aug. 8 [Reuters]—Leaders of the Polish provisional government arrived here this afternoon and were greeted by a Red army honor guard and a band which played the soviet and Polish national anthems.

In the party were Prime Minister Edward Osubka-Morawski, Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, temporary Polish President Boleslaw Beirut, and Minister for Industry Hilary Minc.

It is believed here that the Polish ministers will discuss with the soviet government questions relating to Russian help in the reconstruction of Poland and also matters of common economic interest.

REVEAL ALLIED CAPTURE OF NAZI ATOM FACTORY

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

KIEL, Germany, Aug. 8 (AP)—The largest heavy water plant in Germany, where Nazi scientists were working feverishly to perfect an atomic bomb, was captured almost intact by the allies three months ago in a heavily wooded section four miles from Kiel.

Cobwebs of plastic pipes connected eight huge vats holding thousands of gallons of plain water for processing into heavy water.

I stumbled onto the factory two weeks after it was taken over by American and British technicians. Altho they gave me freedom to roam around the grounds, I was called on the carpet the next day for entering without authority from high officials and was required to pledge not to reveal what I had seen until it was released. Altho the race to perfect the bomb was led by American and British experts, the Germans had made great strides and were catching up. The war against Germany ended just in time.

BAN ON SENDING MAIL TO NEUTRAL EUROPE LIFTED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 [Special]—The office of censorship today lifted the ban on mailing books, magazines, newspapers, catalogs, and other printed matter by individuals to neutral European countries.

The ban prohibited the mailing of these articles to Spain, Portugal, Sweden, and Switzerland as well as to enemy countries.

Films, prints, and photographic plates may now be exported or imported without censorship approval, and stamps may now be mailed regardless of the country which issued them.

BRISBANE, Australia, Aug. 8 [Reuters]—The duke of Gloucester, governor general, suffered bruises recently when the horse which he was riding sandwiched his leg against a fence. Gloucester still limped as he walked eight miles on visits to service establishments here.

RAIL WORKERS' DRAFT DEFERRED IN LABOR CRISIS

Postponement of induction and reconsideration of the draft classifications of all registrants less than 30 years old working for western railroads in certain occupations certified by the office of defense transportation was announced yesterday by Col. G. Armstrong, Illinois director of selective service.

The order was issued to all Illinois selective service boards.

The critical railroad occupations listed are: Engineers, firemen, hostlers, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, train dispatchers, yardmasters, telegraphers [including operators and towermen], blacksmiths, boilermakers, carmen, car inspectors, electricians, machinists, molders, sheet-metal workers, signalmen, and signal maintainers.

Registrants 30 years old and more, regularly employed by railroads, are granted occupational deferment, regardless of skill. Local boards also have been instructed to grant such men permission to leave other jobs in order to take critical rail jobs.

'ATOM'S' RANGE SEEN GREATER UNDER WATER

'Destructive Area' Would Be 5 Times Bigger

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—The destructive effect of an atomic bomb exploding underwater, which naval officers today refused to discuss, is clearly forecast in the laws of underwater blasts written in the physics books.

The law, and actual fact, is that the blast of an explosion under water travels five times faster than in air. And because it travels five times faster, its destructive radius is five times farther.

Cushioning Effect Also Greater

This looks terrific, and it is. But water differs from air in another way. It has a greater cushioning effect on an underwater explosion. This means that once the blast has reached its five-fold farthest underwater distance, it rapidly dies in destructive power.

The air blast, after expanding across its first complete destructive radius, keeps on going for miles doing various sorts of damage. The underwater blast does not.

The reason for the five-fold faster progress of the underwater explosion is the fact that sound travels five times faster in water than in air. This five-fold greater range of the danger zone in water has been carefully worked out by naval officers and scientists, and men are advised how to avoid the effects if they are swimming near an underwater bomb.

The only fundamental difference between the atomic bomb exploding underwater and the warhead of a torpedo is the distance the explosion travels. If the atomic bomb is ten thousand times more powerful than a torpedo, the underwater blast will not travel ten thousand times farther, or anything remotely resembling that increase. The blast's speed and destructive force falls off inversely with the distance traveled.

Force Directed Upward

The main force of an underwater explosion is upward. The forces take the easiest way out. That is up and never down, because the water below is more dense than toward the top.

The underwater bombs now used throw geysers more than mast high. They go nearly straight up. The atomic bomb would have to do much the same, except that its geysers probably would be tremendous. In an inclosed harbor the results of the geyser falling back might be expected to create waves at least closely resembling tidal waves, and they might be more destructive to the immediate shores.

Whether the flash of an underwater atomic bomb would burst up into the air is something not forecast by any of the now printed studies of underwater explosions.

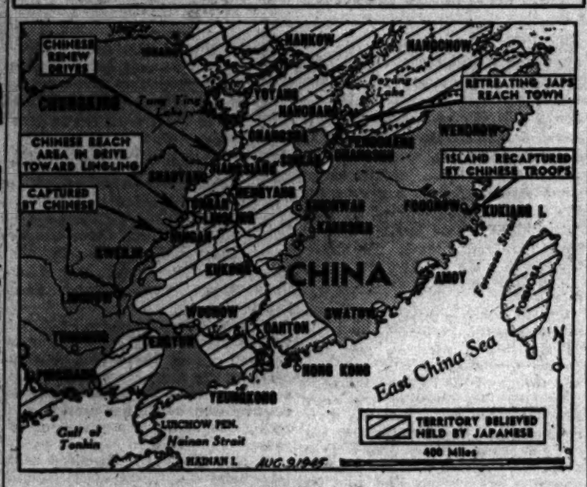
Chinese Drive on Jap Corridor



CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 8 (AP)—Chinese troops have captured a Japanese held island off China's east coast west of Formosa and have launched a drive in the Chinese "rice bowl" region designed to split Tokyo's transcontinental corridor to Hong Kong, the high command reported tonight.

Chinese forces also punched out new gains toward two former American air bases in the Chinese interior, it was announced.

The Chinese high command said Kukiang Island at the mouth of the Min river northeast of the liberated east coast port of Foochow was reoccupied on Sunday.

In the "rice bowl" region headquarters said Chinese troops in the area southwest of Changsha knifed into Japanese positions on the west flank of the overland corridor and were reported smashing toward Siangsiang, 56 miles northwest of Hengyang, and toward Yungfeng, 45 miles northwest of Hengyang.

Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the United States army air forces in China, announced that Maj. Gen. Charles B. Stone III. had been placed in command of the 14th air force. Stone succeeds Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, who recently resigned.

ASSERTS ATOM MAY GIVE U. S. WORLD CONTROL

PARIS, Aug. 8 [Reuters]—The atomic bomb is likely to give the United States mastery of the world, Albert Mousset, French political commentator, declared today.

Writing in the conservative paper Epoque, he said: "The political aspect of the atomic bomb may prove vital. The war created a category of super-powers—The Big Three. The question now is whether the atomic bomb will not introduce a new hierarchy inside the trinity of the Big Three and whether the United States will not allocate to themselves control of the planet."

Leftwing radical Franctiereur was also preoccupied with the political consequence of splitting the atom, the paper said: "The atomic bomb is an engine of death. In the hands of the powers of money it will become a weapon which will insure imperialist conquest of the world."

Pearl Harbor Flag Flies Over the White House

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—A flag that flew over Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, over the allied nations charter meeting at San Francisco, and over the Big Three conference at Potsdam was unfurled over the White House today. It was hoisted at sunrise.

3 CRAFT RACE TO HELP SHIP AFIRE AT SEA

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 8 (AP)—The 4,413 ton cargo ship Argos Hill is in flames at sea 200 miles from this port and vessels from Newfoundland and Halifax are rushing to her aid. Three Canadian minesweepers were sent to the aid of the burning ship, and another cargo ship, the Noah Brown, is standing by. One man aboard was unaccounted for, but all other crew members were taken aboard the Noah Brown, it was reported. A distress call picked up by the navy here was the first indication that the Argos Hill was in trouble.

VOLCANO ERUPTS ON KURILES NEAR JAP AIR FIELDS

ADAK, Aleutians, Aug. 8 (AP)—Long dormant Chikura Dake volcano on Paramushiro in Japan's Kurile Islands was reported by army and navy pilots today to be erupting 20,000 feet in the air.

The mile high peak is three miles from Kakumbatsu air field on the Paramushiro and within 15 miles of two other air fields, but the pilots did not disclose whether lava was rolling down on any of the enemy installations.

There are two other volcanoes on the island, one of which is active.

U. S. OFFERS JAPS SHIP TO REPLACE RELIEF VESSEL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—The United States offered today to transfer to the Japanese a ship similar to the relief vessel Awa Maru, sunk by mistake by an American submarine several months ago.

The state department said the offer of transfer of the ship was not to be construed as a payment of damage for the Awa Maru, which it has proposed to discuss after the war ends.

Carrying Relief Supplies

The vessel was sunk while returning from a voyage to Hong Kong and Singapore. It was carrying relief supplies furnished by the allied governments for allied prisoners of war and civilian internees of the Japanese.

The United States offered to transfer another vessel if the Japanese met several conditions.

These included operation between Japanese controled territory to a transfer point in the Pacific for the exchange of Japanese and allied civilians, seriously sick and seriously wounded prisoners of war, and "surplus protected personnel."

Speed of 17 Knots

The state department said the Japanese would have to agree to pick up at the transfer point relief supplies and mail for allied prisoners still held by them. In return the United States would pick up similar supplies and mail for Japanese prisoners.

The Japanese would be required to report proposed movements of the ship seven days in advance.

The vessel which the United States is prepared to transfer to Japan has a gross tonnage of 11,758, carries 2,500 passengers, and has a speed of 17 knots.

NAZI TORTURE CHIEF CAUGHT NEAR VIENNA

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 8 (AP)—Austrian police disclosed today that Ernst Grabner, former Nazi commander of the political division of the Auschwitz concentration camp, who was said to have admitted ordering the execution of from 800,000 to 1,000,000 persons, had been seized while hiding near Heiligenkreuz, 25 miles from Vienna. An Austrian police officer, once a prisoner of Grabner, said the former SS man, arrogant and swaggering when he was ordering the mass executions from 1940 thru 1943, was a cringing, whining captive who claimed he acted only under orders.

Belgian Chamber Votes Confidence in Premier

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Belgian chamber of deputies today gave a standing vote of confidence to the government of Socialist Premier Achille van Acker. The vote was necessitated by the recent crisis over demands for the abdication of King Leopold III. Because of the ardor of abdicationists the Catholic party ministers had resigned from the government, and the issue was endorsement of the reorganized Van Acker cabinet.

SET UP PROGRAM TO FREE AUSTRIA FROM GERMANY

Divide Country Into Four Occupation Zones

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—The Big Three and France today proclaimed their determination to separate Austria completely from Germany. Simultaneously, they announced machinery to accomplish this purpose.

Pending ultimate independence under a "freely elected" government, a joint statement said, Austria and its capital city, Vienna, are to be split into four zones of military occupation. Each zone will have a military commissioner exercising supreme authority. For, the country as a whole, the four commissioners will constitute an allied council.

The provisional government of Dr. Karl Renner, which came into existence with the permission, altho not the formal recognition of Russian occupation forces which liberated Austria, is being allowed to continue under allied supervision.

Same as Applied in Germany

The division of the country and the machinery created to control it are similar to the divisions and controls applied in Germany. The great difference is in purpose. The objective of German control is to render the nation powerless ever to make war again. The announced purpose of Austrian occupation is to foster a free and independent nation.

Agreements for the Austrian control machinery and the division of the country into zones were worked out by the European advisory commission at London and signed there early last month. A state department announcement said Gen. Clark, who led American armies in Italy, is the American military commissioner for Austria, and John G. Erhardt is chief political adviser to Clark.

Yanks to Move In Soon

American occupation forces are not in Austria yet but are expected to move into their zone in a few days. The American zone is comprised of the province of Salzburg and that part of the province of upper Austria on the right bank of the Danube.

Russia draws the zone embracing the province of lower Austria, except Vienna, the province of Burgenland, and that part of upper Austria on the left bank of the Danube.

Vienna is assigned for joint occupation by the four powers.

The four military commanders will have supreme authority in their respective zones but will exercise their power jointly "in respect of matters affecting Austria as a whole," the announcement said.

Congressional Medal

TECH. SGT. R. E. GERSTUNG
[Acme Telephoto]

Mrs. Lillian Gerstung of 5447 Northwest hwy., learned yesterday that her son, Tech. Sgt. Robert E. Gerstung, 30, will receive the congressional medal of honor, the nation's highest award. She said she will go to Washington to see the presentation as soon as a date is set.

Mrs. Lillian Gerstung

Sgt. Gerstung will receive the award for his gallantry in holding off a German attack near the Siegfried line in order that his buddies might withdraw to safety. He and other members of Company H, 313th infantry, 79th division, were pinned down by mortar, tank, and rifle fire and Gerstung was wounded in the leg. He kept jumping from one jammed machine gun to the other and, after using the last loaded gun, he withdrew to join the others.

Mrs. Gerstung is a clerk at the railroad retirement board office, 844 Rush st. Prior to his entry in the army in December, 1942, Sgt. Gerstung was a gasoline station attendant.

PATRIOT GROUPS DEMAND ITALY SET UP REPUBLIC

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Aug. 8—The conference in Milan of national liberation committees of northern Italy went on record today in favor of a republic to "cancel forever the shame of the house of Savoy." Election of an Italian constituent assembly was discussed at the conference, it was learned.

Political observers believe not only the fate of monarchy is in the balance but also the future of any democratic regime in Italy. Four of seven political parties have come out in the last 10 days in favor of elections for a constituent assembly before municipal elections. They are the Communists, Socialists, Action, and Republican parties.

Allied authorities have made it clear that a constitutional election can be held any time as far as they are concerned.

TRUMAN SIGNS CHARTER; IT'S PUT IN ARCHIVES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—President Truman signed the allied nations charter today and it was formally placed in the archives of the United States. This country thus became the first to meet all membership requirements of the plan for future peace drawn at San Francisco, Cal.

Several other nations, including Guatemala, Nicaragua, and El Salvador, have ratified the treaty but none other has met the requirement of depositing the instrument with the United States.

PRANKSTER WHO THREW GIRL INTO LAKE SENTENCED

Edwin Coyle, 18, of 2115 Cleveland av., who with two other boys threw a young woman into the lake at Fullerton av. on July 20 as a prank, was placed under court supervision for a year yesterday by Judge Jacob M. Braude in Boys' court. A motion to vacate a $200 fine will be heard when the period of supervision expires. The charge of assault and battery was brought by Miss Gladys Rothenberg, 17, of 2658 Dayton st., who said she was thrown into the water with her clothing on. Coyle was paroled from the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles a year ago.

PILOT OF ATOM PLANE SPURNED JOB AS TEACHER

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 8 (AP)—The pilot of the B-29 which dropped the first atomic bomb on Japan was assigned last year as an instructor at an army air base in Utah after being wounded in France, but "he couldn't stand it" and demanded combat duty, his grandmother, Mrs. C. A. Fifer of Quincy, told a reporter today.

Mrs. Fifer said she "talked practically all night on the telephone" after dispatches from Guam disclosed that Col. Paul W. Tibbets Jr., of Miami, Fla., her grandson, was the pilot of the first plane to drop the deadly bomb.

"It's all so sudden that I'm pretty excited," the 78 year old woman said. She said young Tibbets lived with her for several years while his father, then Capt. Paul W. Tibbets Sr., served overseas in World War I.

In Miami, Col. Tibbets' parents, informed that their son had dropped the first atomic bomb, said:

"It sure was a complete surprise to us. We knew he was up to something he couldn't tell us about—but we were just as much in the dark as any one else."

U. S. TEAM WORK WINNING, SAYS TRIBUNE WRITER

The superiority of the American soldier and of American equipment were stressed yesterday by Walter Simmons, Tribune war correspondent, in an interview over radio station W-G-N. Simmons recently completed a nine month assignment in the wesern Pacific.

"The American soldier understands team work to a degree the Jap simply can't imagine," he said. "Japs fight single battles like so many cornered animals. The American fights as a member of a unit and to a definite objective, not just to die."

The Jap has nothing with which to counter such American weapons as the heavy machine gun, the Browning automatic rifle, the Garand rifle, and the carbine, Simmons continued. He conceded that some Jap weapons are good—the light machine gun, the 20 millimeter gun and the 120 millimeter dual purpose gun—but asserted that the enemy's grenades are clumsy and that his rifle is outmoded.

Simmons declared that the American is now superior to the Jap in jungle tactics. "We've mastered their lessons," he said. "Now we're teaching them."

CITY FIREMAN HURT AT WORK

Scoff at Fear of Atomic 'Blight'

No Lingering Effects

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—The war department today denied published reports that areas devastated by the atomic bomb continue for years to react with death dealing radioactivity.

In a statement, the war department quoted Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer, head of this phase of the atomic research, as saying "there is every reason to believe that there was no appreciable radioactivity on the ground at Hiroshima and what little there was decayed very rapidly."

Published reports had quoted Dr. Harold Jacobson of Columbia university, one of those who participated in the atomic research work, as saying the bombed area in Japan might cause death for persons entering the area for a period of 70 years.

In New York, Dr. Jacobson said later today that "I am surprised and pleased to learn that the results of the July experiment in New Mexico indicate that only minor amounts of radioactivity are present after the explosion and that these quickly disappear."

Oxygen Replaces Self

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Will an atomic bomb, many people are asking, be lethal beyond the range of bodily injury by consuming all the oxygen in the air?

The chances of such destruction are remote. A precise answer cannot be given until official reports reveal the construction of the bomb.

Ordinary bombs carry their own oxygen. Even if the atomic bomb relies for its explosion on the oxygen in the air—something that seems impossible—that is no adequate ground for thinking that people would be asphyxiated for want of oxygen.

Oxygen is 20 per cent of normal air, nitrogen being 79 per cent of the remainder. If all the oxygen was burned out of a cubic mile of air, what was left would be underweight, and the oxygen in the surrounding air would rush in.

There are no available experiments to show how fast oxygen would replace itself in a huge space. But if only seconds are required, as likely, then a human being would not die for oxygen want in that short period.

PILOT 170 MILES AWAY VIEWS ATOM'S FLASH

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

GUAM, Aug. 8—The physical reaction was two days old but, Lt. Richard D. Dolph, Tecumseh, Neb., B-29 photographic reconnaissance pilot, still could not believe that what he saw while piloting a Super Fortress at 34,000 feet near Kobe was the flash of the great new atomic bomb released on Hiroshima, 170 miles away. In a matter of a few seconds, he also saw great puffs of white smoke climb to 40,000 feet and hang there.

Lt. Dolph and his crew were on a routine photographic mission without any knowledge that a new instrument of destruction was about to be unleashed.

He was able to take pictures of the smoke cloud and these were turned over to intelligence officers. He said he had only a fleeting glance of a great "ball of fire" and it was enough to convince him that it was no ordinary explosion.

ANTI-NAZI ACTS BY PETAIN TOLD AT PARIS TRIAL

Trial Is Expected to End by Tuesday

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 8—Marshal Petain's part in building up a secret air force in France thru the occupation in order to aid the Americans when they landed in North Africa was the principal revelation in today's session of the Petain trial. Other anti-nazi actions by the aged marshal were described.

A half dozen witnesses, nearly all of them high military or naval officers closely associated with the Vichy government, were brought from Fresnes prison, where they are awaiting their own trials, to testify in support of the defense's thesis that Petain's attitude during his four years at Vichy was that of a patriot who, altho his hands were tied, constantly worked for his country's independence.

Trial May End Tuesday

The defense succeeded in establishing that Petain was taken by force from Vichy on Aug. 20 last year by the Germans, that he refused to undertake any political activity whatever during his enforced stay in Germany and that he returned to France voluntarily to face trial and clear his name.

The court expects to end the trial next Tuesday in time for the judges, lawyers and jury to leave town for the Assumption day holiday on Aug. 15. This leaves Saturday for the prosecution's summing up and Monday and part of Tuesday for the defense's pleading. The verdict probably will come late Tuesday night.

Today's leading defense witness was Gen. Jean Bergeret, 50, who limped into the courtroom from the Val de Grace military hospital where he is under treatment as a prisoner awaiting trial as a former Vichy air minister.

Tells of Secret Air Force

Bergeret disclosed that with Petain's encouragement and support he built up a strong secret air force, keeping air fields in condition and establishing a wide espionage network that reported all German aviation activities by radio to London. To do this he said that large secret funds were needed and thru Petain he was able to get them.

As a result of this underground work, he declared that in 1942, 27 French aviation groups with 2,900 men in North Africa and French West Africa were able to join the fight on the side of the allies.

Return to France

The story of Petain's enforced departure from Vichy last August, his stay in Sigmaringen, Germany, and his return to France was told the court by two witnesses who accompanied him during the trip, Adm. Henri Biehaut, 55, Vichy navy minister, and Gen. Victor Debaney, 54, chief of armistice services at Vichy. Biehaut said that Petain and his wife lived apart at Sigmaringen and the marshal had nothing to do with the so-called governmental commission which Fernand de Brinon headed without his authority.

Debaney, going into greater detail, said that Petain protested bitterly both to De Brinon and the Germans, refused all contact with De Brinon and was so incensed against him that he demanded that his residence be transferred from Sigmaringen.

EXPECT LAST GI IN ENGLAND TO LEAVE BY FEB. 1

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Brig. Gen. E. F. Koenig, commander of the United Kingdom base, said today that all American troops remaining in England, now fewer than 175,000, were expected to leave by Feb. 1. Koenig is being succeeded by Brig. Gen. F. S. Strong Jr., Detroit, Mich., specialist in closing out operations. Koenig will continue to command the Chanor base section in northwest France and part of Belgium. He predicted that American installations would be closed out in France, Holland, and Belgium "sometime next summer," leaving the only United States forces in Europe those in Germany.

THE QUESTION

What advice would you give students who are now employed and who do not intend to go back to school?

WHERE ASKED

Various locations.

THE ANSWERS

David M. Sharer, comptroller, De Paul university — I think every young person should realize that at the present time with millions of men and women out of the country even the most inefficient workers are able to obtain jobs. But as these service people return, industry will return to old high standards.

George M. Gleason, general manager, 1726 N. Merrimac, Oak Park—Education plus experience is the best insurance against unemployment when competition is keen. As short as help is these days I would earnestly advise my employes who are students to return to school this fall. Education cannot be taken away.

E. L. Walsh, office manager, 4636 N. Virginia av.—If a student is satisfied with the job he has and absolutely refuses to return to school he's making an unwise choice. However, there are those cases existing. The best advice I could give a student of this kind would be to study at night. Get an education by all means.

Lou Breese, orchestra leader, 421 Melrose—The first question an employer asks in normal times, is "How much education have you had?" They'll take any one they can get now but times will be different. There won't always be this many jobs for so many inefficient people. So I'd say to students, "Go back to school!"

Ruth Hall, student, 7749 S. Indiana av.—I worked last summer and when school started in the fall I wanted to go back. I wouldn't think of missing out on one single year of high school . . . the school dances, football games, basketball, and the proms. It just seems that going to school is the American thing to do.

FRANCE TO HOLD VOTE OCT. 21 ON CONSTITUTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 8—An agreement finally was reached today by the cabinet of the French provisional government on a method of holding the general elections this fall, and at the same time taking a referendum on the kind of constitution the country desires.

Opposition of the Communists to the referendum principle was overcome at today's session and the cabinet decided the country will vote on Oct. 21. The voters, in addition to electing a constituent assembly, will decide whether they want the constitutional laws of 1875 to remain in effect or whether the new constituent assembly is to draft a constitution more adapted to the changed conditions.

The Communists fought a plebiscite, feeling that too much prestige would accrue to the winner and lead to a dictatorship.

Volz, 19, of Pidgeon, Mich., whose claim to exemption as a conscientious objector was rejected, also was sentenced to two years in prison for refusing to submit to induction.

MAJ. BONG BURIED 'MID ROAR OF THE PLANES HE LOVED

BY ROBERT HOWARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Poplar, Wis., Aug. 8—Maj. Richard Ira Bong was buried by the army and his home folks today in a tiny hilltop cemetery within sight of the northern Wisconsin farm he left to become the nation's foremost flying ace.

While a squadron of army pursuit planes roared overhead and top ranking aviators stood by in an honor guard, the body of the hero was carried to the graveside by his boyhood friends, all privates and noncommissioned officers home on leave.

An air force band, playing a dirge, and a detachment of soldiers had led the funeral procession out to the little unfenced burial ground from the village of Poplar two miles away.

Cortege of Planes

Crowds of mourners had been in attendance from the time Maj. Bong's body arrived at Duluth, Minn., at 8:30 a. m. Nearly 1,000 persons were at the airport when a funeral cortege of 27 big C-54 transports landed, bringing Maj. Bong and others from California, where the famous pilot was killed Monday while testing a jet plane.

Among the plane passengers were Bong's young widow, the former Marjorie Ann Vattendahl of Superior; her brother, Jerome, and Maj. Earl Kingsley, Bong's buddy of cadet days.

General Takes Charge

Brig. Gen. G. B. Saville, deputy commander of the army transport command, had arrived earlier to take charge of the military funeral.

The flag draped casket was lowered to the ground at the airport by a hydraulic device which the army had flown in from Wilmington, Del., in another C-54 transport.

Six fellow officers bore Maj. Bong's body to a hearse which took it to Superior for funeral services in the Concordia Lutheran church, where the noted aviator was married only six months ago on his last trip home.

The minister who married the Bongs, the Rev. Paul A. Boe, pastor of the church, of which Mrs. Bong is a member, offered a prayer. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Arvid F. Hoorn, who for years had been the Bong family's pastor in the Bethany Lutheran church at Poplar.

Eight Minute Sermon

The eight minute sermon was based on a text the Rev. Mr. Hoorn took from the fly leaf of the Bible he had presented to Dick Bong at his confirmation June 7, 1936.

"Fame crowned him her hero and fortune smiled on him," the pastor said. "He looked into the depths of human woe, anguish and despair. Often he walked with those in the valley, giving them encouragement. Death was no stranger to Maj. Bong.

"Today he has entered the valley of the shadow. May we not believe he can also say, 'I will fear no evil, for I am persuaded that nothing shall separate me from the love of God.'"

Mrs. Bong, whose husband had adorned his plane with a photograph of her blonde head during the days he was setting a record of shooting down 40 Jap planes, sat quietly in the church with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sigurd Vettendahl.

CALCUTTA, India, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Japanese have lost more than 11,200 men, including 744 captured and the rest killed, in attempts to escape a trap in lower Burma between the Mandalay-Rangoon road and the Sittang river, southeast Asia command headquarters said today.

Russia's Entry in War 'Most Gratifying' to Italy

ROME, Aug. 8 [Reuters]—Russia's declaration of war on Japan was most gratifying, a spokesman of the Italian government stated tonight. Italy declared war on Tokyo on July 15. "It will mean a more complete unification of the efforts of the great nations and will speed up the conclusion of the war in the far east," he said.

TITO'S REGIME REPUDIATED BY SLAV KING PETER

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 8—Declaring Marshal Tito is operating a full scale dictatorship, King Peter of Yugoslavia tonight issued a proclamation in London withdrawing his authority from the three regents he appointed after the crisis last March.

"Every trace of law has been wiped from the state organization, thus taking away entirely the free will of the people," the proclamation stated. "There are preparations for a plebiscite by forceful means and under the terror of a special police organization, an organization which has replaced the Gestapo. As to the freedoms mentioned in the regency agreements, those of the press, public meetings, and forging of political parties, etc., they have remained a dead letter to the present administration of Yugoslavia. Only one voice is heard, that of Tito and his totalitarian government."

Tito Calls for Republic

The 21 year old king's action followed a speech by Tito yesterday in which he called for a "republican" form of government with which monarchy would be "completely incompatible." Tito, who is a Communist with the backing of the Kremlin, linked the king's name with Generals Draja Mihailovitch and Milan Neditch, who, he said, "had collaborated with the Germans against the liberation movement."

Altho Peter's proclamation said that "from this moment the duty of defending the constitutional rights of my people reverts to me," observers in London do not expect his action will have much effect on the situation in Yugoslavia.

King's Chances Remote

With Yugoslavia in the Russian sphere of influence and with Tito enjoying the support of Moscow, the king's chances of regaining his throne are remote. A plebiscite is to be held to determine the future constitutional form of government but there is no record of a vote in a Moscow dominated territory ever going against the wishes of the Kremlin.

4 POWERS SIGN PACT FOR TRIAL OF WAR CRIMES

Scrap Technical Rules to Speed Justice

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP)—The four great western powers today signed a pact to establish an international military tribunal for speedy mass trials of Germany's war criminals to demonstrate that aggression leads "to the prisoner's dock rather than the way to honors."

Justice Jackson

The legally unprecedented document established the tribunal's seat in Berlin, but provided specifically that the first major trial—one expected to bring more than 25 Nazi chieftains together in the same dock—shall be held in Nuernberg, long the seat and meeting place of the party.

The powers of the tribunal also include the right to disregard "technical rules of evidence" in the interest of speed, to take "strict measures" to prevent delays, and to accept historical documents as record.

There will be no appeal from the tribunal, and defendants apparently will not be allowed to call witnesses under the sweeping master plan signed by the United States, Britain, Russia, and France.

The tribunal will have the power to punish by death and to deprive the convicted of stolen property.

30 Articles in Plan

The tribunal itself will set the date for the first trial at Nuernberg.

There, under rules designed to insure defendants a "fair trial" but denying them tenderness or time consuming delays, the top German war lords will have their last chance to attempt to justify their actions in history's costliest, bloodiest war.

The 30 article plan for the trials is based primarily upon proposals advanced by Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson in a report to the President after he was named chief war crimes prosecutor for the United States.

Jackson declared the document represented "mutual concessions" designed to blend American standards of justice and protection of defendants with the continental system, "which the Germans themselves have employed and understood."

"We must make clear to the Germans that the wrong for which their fallen leaders are on trial is not that they lost the war, but that they started it," Jackson said.

Crimes Defined

The general definition of crimes were listed as these:

1. "Crimes against the peace—Namely, planning, preparations, initiation or waging a war of aggression or a war in violation of international treaties, agreements or assurances, or participation in a common plan of conspiracy for the accomplishment of any of the foregoing."

2. "War crimes—Namely, violations of the laws or customs of war. Such violations shall include, but not be limited to murder, ill treatment or deportment to slave labor or for any purpose of civilian production of or in occupied territory, murder or ill treatment of prisoners of war or persons on the seas, killing of hostages, plunder of private or public property, wanton destruction of cities, towns or villages, or devastation not justified by military necessity."

3. "Crimes against humanity—Namely, murder, extermination, enslavement, deportation, and other inhuman acts committed against any civilian populations before or during the war, or persecutions of political, racial or religious groups in execution of or in connection with any crime within the jurisdiction of the tribunal, whether or not in violation of the domestic law of the country where perpetrated."

The powers of the tribunal also include the right to disregard "technical rules of evidence" in the interest of speed, to take "strict measures" to prevent delays, and to accept historical documents as record.

Can Explain Charges

The document also listed the procedure for defendants, ensuring them an advance copy of the indictment in the language they understand, giving them the right to counsel and to cross-examination of prosecution witnesses, and to "make any explanation" about the charges against them.

But there appeared to be no provision for them to call witnesses of their own choosing—apparently a barrier against any attempt to summon leaders of other countries.

The tribunal will consist of four members, each with an alternate, representing the four big powers. Prosecutors representing the four nations will present the indictment to the tribunal after drawing up the list of major war criminals. These will include such men as Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, former former Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Rudolf Hess, Franz von Papen, former ambassador to Turkey, Labor Front leader Robert Ley, Julius Streicher the Jew baiter, and Hans Frank, governor of Poland.

Will Transfer Prisoners

The agreement gave all members of the united nations an opportunity to sign the document, and preserved the right of any nation to seek the return of any criminal against whom it has a special grievance.

It was learned reliably that plans have been made for the transfer of those slated for the first trial from Luxemburg, to a jail at Nuernberg, where they will lose their status of war prisoners and will be held as civil criminals.

The agreement was signed for the United States by Justice Jackson, for Great Britain by William Jowitt as lord chancellor, for Russia by I. T. Nikitchenko, vice president of the Supreme court, and for France by Robert Falco, councillor for the French Supreme court.

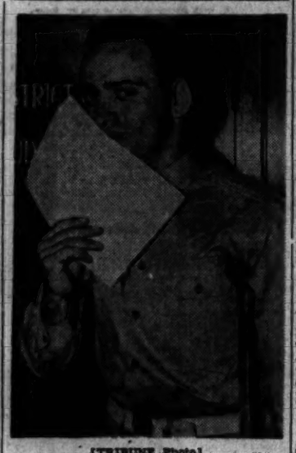
Becomes Citizen



[TRIBUNE Photo]

Corp. Roger J. Groulx, 22, of Detroit, Mich., a native of Canada who fought nearly two years in the Pacific and was wounded at Manila, was admitted to citizenship by Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in federal District court yesterday.

Judge Shaw said he was "awfully proud" to grant Groulx's petition. The soldier, who has been a patient in Gardiner General hospital, starts a furlough today.

Citizenship was denied Herman Stueckmann, 60, of 1752 Albion av., a janitor, when Dewey G. Hutchinson, immigration department attorney, challenged his devotion to American principles. Stueckmann's daughter, Mrs. Gerda Stueckmann Melind Saure, was the fiance of Herbert Haupt, who was executed as a nazi spy three years ago.

LEHMAN PLEADS FOR DOUBLING OF FUND FOR UNRRA

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Told by Herbert H. Lehman, director general, that unless it makes good this winter the "name of the united nations will be a mockery in Europe," the UNRRA's council set to work tonight to exact an additional $1,516,906,150 from contributing member nations to finance 1946 operations.

The amount sought roughly would double the present pledged quotas of the 43 member nations.

Lehman, in an address accompanying a report on the program of operations, gravely told conference delegates that UNRRA's funds would be nearly exhausted at the end of 1945, when it expected to be in the midst of "one of the grimmest winters in history."

He warned the united nations that they must make good quickly on their current pledges and dig down deeper to meet next year's needs in Europe and the far east.

Denmark Admitted

The director general's report highlighted the second day of UNRRA's third international session. During the day Girja Shankar Bajpai, agent general for India in the United States, was elected chairman of the congress, and Denmark was admitted to membership in the UNRRA council.

Lehman's report made no recommendations on how to raise the additional levy, but informed quarters speculated tonight that the likeliest method would be the doubling of the contribution rate, which is now fixed at 1 per cent of the member nations' national income in 1943.

The 1 per cent basis amounted to $1,862,687,598 for this year, and it was felt the simplest way would be to retain the same base and double the rate to obtain the additional sum.

Of the original total of $1,862,687,598 pledged to finance relief and rehabilitation activities, the United States authorized a contribution of approximately 72 per cent—$1,350,000,000. Of this total, $550,000,000 remains to be appropriated when congress reconvenes.

Russia Wants $700,000,000

Lehman estimated the total cost of 1946 operations at $2,274,800,000, and called this "highly conservative." His estimate of the extra levy did not include Russia's request for $700,000,000 aid, which still remains to be acted upon. The general belief was that Russia's request would be scaled down by UNRRA to fit its finances.

At the present rate of operations, Lehman told the conference, UNRRA will have only $175,000,000 uncommitted by the end of the year.

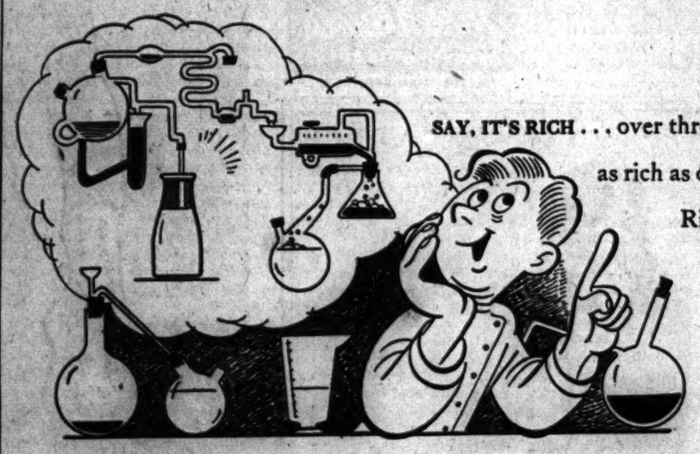
WANTA BUTTERMILK THRILL?
TASTE THIS SPECIAL NEW KIND!

IT'S THREE TIMES AS RICH!

Bud Bowman

COOL AS RIDIN' on a roller coaster, that's what it is—taking a big, long cool drink of this special new whole milk buttermilk of ours! Whatta tang, what flavor, whatta grand new, brand new taste treat!



SAY, IT'S RICH . . . over three times as rich as ordinary buttermilk. Richer, even, than our famous country-style churned buttermilk that has flecks of butter dancing in the glass. Yep, this special new kind's extra rich . . . and that makes it extra nutritious . . . and simply wonderful to drink.

HERE'S HOW the whole thing started. The scientists in our Lab—knowing that whole milk is richer and better for people than milk without cream—put on their thinking caps and studied how to turn creamy whole milk into a drink as tangy and zestful as buttermilk.

WELL, THEY FOUND OUT . . . and we're mighty proud to offer Bowman Special Whole Milk Buttermilk! Golly, it's delicious-tasting! And it slips down creamy-like and easy. If you're a regular buttermilk-drinker, you'll love it. If you've never been "exactly fond" of buttermilk before, you oughta try this grand new kind! Hail the Bowman milkman on your street!

DURKIN, SEIZED AT PRISON GATE, WILL SEEK BAIL

'Freed' Bandit Held on Federal Conviction

Martin Durkin, 44, who yesterday completed serving 19 years for murder in Stateville penitentiary and was immediately rearrested to begin serving a federal term for automobile theft, will seek release on bail today.

His attorney, Henry L. Balaban, will appear before Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in federal District court to ask that Durkin be admitted to bail, pending hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, previously filed.

Convicted Under Dyer Act

Durkin was sentenced to 35 years in prison for the slaying of Edward C. Shanahan, a federal agent, in Chicago in 1925. While he was in prison, he was convicted of violating the Dyer act [transporting a stolen automobile interstate] and was sentenced to serve 11 years in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga.

When he was released at Stateville yesterday, he was met in the office of Warden Joseph E. Ragen, by three United States deputy marshals with a court order to detain him for committal to Atlanta. The deputies were William J. Walsh, Stanley Pringle, and Walter Shanahan, the latter no relation to the federal agent Durkin killed.

Act on Petition Aug. 20

Durkin was taken to the federal marshal's lockup in the United States courthouse to await court action on the habeas corpus petition, which is returnable before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe on Aug. 20.

In the petition, Balaban charges that Durkin's sentence under the Dyer act is "indefinite, vague, uncertain, and void."

Durkin, a steel vested gunman, was known as a "sheik bandit," and wore a mustache in the style of Rudolph Valentino. Shanahan was killed while investigating Durkin's automobile thefts. Durkin was seized on a train near St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 20, 1926.

ENGINEERS LAY TRAIN WRECK TO SIGNALS MIXUP

Engineers of two trains which collided Monday near 31st st. and Western av., killing a brakeman and injuring five other persons, testified at an inquest yesterday that the accident was the result of a misunderstanding of crossing signals. The witnesses were Harry Trimble, of Pekin, Tazewell county, engineer of a Santa Fe motor car, and Merle E. Viers of Garrett, Ind., engineer of a Baltimore and Ohio transfer engine. The inquest, into the death of Arthur Trammell, 45, of Fort Madison, Ia., a brakeman for the Santa Fe, was continued to Aug. 22.

ASSERTS 40 PCT. IN U. S. SUFFER FROM HAY FEVER

Approximately 40 per cent of the persons in the United States suffer from hay fever and from 2 to 3 per cent have bronchial asthma, Dr. Leon Unger, assistant professor of medicine at Northwestern university, declared last night in a lecture at the Museum of Science and Industry. The lecture was the fourth in a series of seven sponsored by the museum and the Chicago Medical society.

Allergy to three types of pollen cause the widespread discomfort, Dr. Unger said the pollens and times that each are most prevalent are: Trees, March thru June; grasses, May 25 thru the middle of July, and ragweed, Aug. 10 to the end of September.

While there is no cure for the affliction, Dr. Unger said, he asserted that 75 to 80 per cent can obtain relief by injection.

1ST COMMUNITY PLEDGES AID FOR BETTER HOUSING

BY GEORGE TAGGE

First reported community action to help Chicago thru use of state slum clearance legislation was taken last night at a meeting led by Judge Walter J. La Buy of federal District court. Property owners and priests who assembled at 1166 Milwaukee av., in the heart of the first neighborhood proposed for assistance, pledged coöperation to eliminate blighted areas.

With approximately 10 million dollars in state-city funds as a starter, Chicago is at the crossroads of a decision between public housing, with its tax exemption and socialistic tendencies, and private enterprise.

Public Housing Peril Cited

Mayor Kelly, reached at Eagle River, Wis., said he has not decided whether the funds should be spent by the existing federally sponsored Chicago housing authority or by a new land clearance commission. Under new legislation he may appoint the latter kind of commission, which unlike the housing authority, would not have the power to build or operate housing.

Newton C. Farr, president of the Urban Land Use institute and former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, told those at the meeting that there is a sharp difference of opinion over the possible extension of public housing thru the 1945 legislation.

"In his many talks with me, Gov. Green as a supporter of the legislation stressed his objective of aiding private home ownership and private enterprise," said Temple McFayden, chairman of the state housing board which will pass upon requests for shares of a 10 million dollar state appropriation for slum clearance.

"This is the money from you, the taxpayers. The best way for me to protect your money is to see that it winds up in private housing. If it winds up in public housing we will not get it back for a long time, if ever."

McFayden told what might happen to one piece of blighted property to illustrate how the state appropriation should be used. With its dilapidated house, the property may cost $3,000, he said, and after the shack has been torn down the lot may be worth only $1,200. The difference of $1,800 is the loss or net cost the taxpayers must assume to make it practicable to reuse the land, he said.

Plea for Private Enterprise

"But I promise you that this method will return the taxpayers five dollars for one, and in the case of this substantial community it will return $10 or $15 for each tax dollar spent," he said.

Seward H. Mott of Washington, D. C., director of the Urban Land Institute of America, cautioned that redevelopment of a blighted area does not necessarily mean that the lowest income groups now in the area should be rehoused in the area. Private enterprise should be given every opportunity, he said.

"If you take federal aid you will have to surrender local control," Mott said. "Please do not forget that simple fact."

U. S. ATTY. WOLL HINTS HE WILL TAKE NEW POST

United States Atty. J. Albert Woll hinted yesterday that he was ready to leave his federal post, and either accept a better paying job with the attorney general's office in Washington, D. C., or enter private law practice in Chicago.

Woll's departure from office has been rumored in federal circles here since President Truman announced the appointment of Tom C. Clark, Woll's old friend, as attorney general to replace Francis Biddle. Clark is said to have offered Woll the post as head of the criminal division in Washington, but Woll declined. However, he plans a trip to Washington soon to confer again with Clark.

Woll, now 40, was the youngest lawyer ever appointed United States attorney here. He was nominated Sept. 24, 1940, and was reappointed for a second term last March 12. He is the son of Matthew Woll, an executive of the American Federation of Labor.

USED CAR PRICES BRING PROTEST FROM VETERANS

Wiley Proposes Priority on New Models

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8—Disclosure that returning veterans are being asked double the price they received for automobiles they were forced to sell when they entered the service brought a storm of protest on Capitol hill today.

Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] began a movement to make new cars available to veterans in need of them for business as soon as production is resumed. Other members of congress said they would use their influence to place veterans high on the OPA car rationing priority list.

Veterans have been demanding some relief for several weeks. One plea in particular that came to Wiley's attention was from an Illinois overseas soldier who is soon to be discharged.

Price Doubled on Own Car

The soldier, now at an Illinois flying field, wrote:

"Early in 1942, on my induction, I disposed of my 1941 model car, which was in as near perfect condition as could be, for $750, to a man of about my own age, 33, a defense worker.

"Since then I have spent most of my time overseas in action, sleeping in muddy foxholes and not making any where near as much as the man who bought my car, altho I left a good job for the service.

"On my return, this same fellow asks me $1,500 for the same car, which he had used these three years and some odd months. That is his privilege, I guess. Or is it?"

Needed in Business

The veteran, like many others, explained that he needed the money the car brought when he entered the service and could not afford to store the automobile for the duration. He and others have explained that they will need cars in their business.

Many congressmen have been informed that the high prices being asked for used cars indicate there is a tremendous black market, despite OPA ceilings.

Wiley proposed that returned veterans be given high priority if they fall within any of the groups to be given preference in the purchase of new cars.

Special Provision Asked

But since many veterans returning to jobs or their own businesses will not be in these groups, Wiley suggested a special provision for them.

The OPA rating list for the purchase of new cars, based on a directive from the war production board, establishes this priority order:

Government employes engaged in fire fighting, prevention of crime, and enforcement of public health or safety measures, government employes transporting mail, physicians and surgeons, farm veterinarians, public health nurses, ministers and religious practitioners, members of the military forces on official business, taxicabs authorized by the office of defense transportation, and rental agencies buying cars to be rented to persons in any of these classes, on surrender of the renter's priority to the agency.

CHILDREN TAKEN FROM GI's WIFE IN NEGLECT CASE

Mrs. Dorothy Stocker, 25, of Prairie View, Lake county, accused of leaving her four children and a stepchild alone in her home the night of Aug. 2, was temporarily deprived of their custody yesterday by Lake County Judge Perry L. Persons. Further hearing was set for Aug. 20.

Her husband, Felix, 30, an army private, is in a hospital at Springfield, Mo., as a result of wounds suffered in France Sept. 15.

Two of the children, Carole Meier, 8, and Diane Meier, 4, born to Mrs. Stocker by a previous husband, were sent to the Lake county detention home at Waukegan. Two others, Frank Stocker, 2, and Patricia, eight months, were placed in the care of their grandfather, Frank Stocker, 7205 Myrtle av., Chicago. The fifth, William Stocker, 5, the son of Pvt. Stocker and his former wife, now dead, was given temporarily to the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Florence Fichter, 3026 Odell av., Chicago.

FURLOUGHS END FOR 104TH; 1,500 OFF FOR PACIFIC

Two special trains carried approximately 1,300 men of the 104th [Timberwolf] division from Chicago to Camp Grant last night where they will prepare to go to the Pacific war theater after serving in Europe.

Most of the men are from Chicago and Illinois, with the others chiefly from Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa. They completed their furloughs last night and will be "processed" today or tomorrow for assignment to assembly areas, from which they will leave for the Pacific.

The men will be paid up to date today, will be given medical examinations, and will be issued new clothing if the uniforms they brought back from the European war are no longer presentable.

WOMAN VISITOR LOSES PURSE

Mrs. Eber Worlow of Olney, Richland county, asked Desplaines st. police yesterday to help find her purse, containing $45 and a $100 money order. She lost the purse on the street.

Even True Believers Gag at Spiritualist Fakes

(This is the fifth and last of a series of articles based upon an investigation of Chicago's mediums by Miss Rose Mackenberg, former investigator for Harry Houdini, the magician.)

BY E. W. WILLIAMSON

One of the secrets of Miss Rose Mackenberg's success in unmasking fake mediums is the circumstance that she looks like anything but what she is, a shrewd, resourceful investigator to whom her mentor, Houdini, taught all the tricks and deceptions current in the trade.

If she were placed in a group of 10 women, and you were asked to pick out the investigator, she would be No. 10 on your list.

This has enabled her to continue her work since the death of Houdini in 1926. Since then she has received messages from the spirits of at least three dozen different husbands and as many sons, despite the fact that she has never married. One of her favorite spirit husbands is Walter.

Really Getting Fond of Him

"I've received so many messages from Walter that I'm getting really fond of him," she said, "except that I consider him an awful dope because he's always telling me to give part of his insurance money to the medium."

She has been "ordained" as a medium six different times, under various names, after completing courses of study ranging in length from 20 minutes to three days.

She has appeared as a witness before congressional committees, and also in many court trials involving spiritualistic issues. One of these was a suit brought by the attorney general of Pennsylvania to break a will leaving an estate to establish a college for mediums. The suit was successful.

"Among the more than 1,000 mediums I have investigated," she said, "I haven't found a single one who was not a fraud or a victim of psychosis. Of course, to be perfectly fair, I usually investigate only those who are suspects. Inevitably, in times of stress and turmoil, the number of medium sky rockets. This is true today.

Lay Their Groundwork Early

"As long ago as 1942, they began to lay the groundwork. In that year, in connection with an appeal for funds to send spiritualist literature to soldiers and sailors overseas, published in the Psychic Observer, a spiritualist paper with a nation-wide circulation, appeared the the following exhortation:

"'Then, too, you might know of some mother, father, sister, or brother who "lost" some one in action. Send their names and we will see to it that they receive proper attention.'"

"Fake mediums," Miss Mackenberg continued, "do not draw their clientele exclusively from the ignorant or the particularly gullible. Most men and women who go to a medium are average, everyday people. Many of them are in trouble, searching for the help and advice their friends cannot give. They are so eager to be convinced that they accept the preposterous dressed up as the psychic.

"In their anxiety they throw out clews about their identity, the state of their emotions, and their finances. Any amateur psychologist or second rate detective could pick them up.

No Law to Protect Them

"The clients cannot protect themselves, nor can the law protect them. Most of the mystic cults and frauds are cloaked under the protective name of religion and thus are free from prosecution. Hence, numberless court cases have failed, and plain common sense obviously cannot debate the issue. When the spirits come in at the door, common sense flies out the window.

"I have no advice for the uninhibited members of the cults. Their cases are hopeless. I know of a woman who bought a trumpet to become a medium and start a church of their own. She certainly is a devout believer in the psychic and probably will sit with her trumpet right up to the last day of her life, waiting for the thing to float about and speak.

"But if the trumpet should float and speak, one of two things will have happened. Either she will have become psychopathic, or she will have become wise to the business and will be deceiving others.

So we went to Chesterfield, Ind., to see what a spiritualist camp meeting looks like.

It's an Impressive Place

We found it housed in a spacious grounds, two blocks off a main highway, with two hotels, a cafeteria, an auditorium, a prayer garden, and 20 or 30 cottages housing mediums, all bearing signs advertising trumpet readings, materializations, or whatever the medium's specialty may be.

A bazaar offers spiritualistic equipment at prices somewhat higher than those in the catalogs. A practice trumpet was $5, a bell-bottom Gabriel horn trumpet was $10, and the professional trumpet was $12. There also was a baby trumpet, used for baby voices, at $2. The attendant suggested we might take our own trumpet to a seance and get the medium to "magnetize" it.

We attended an afternoon meeting in the auditorium at which 250 persons were present. The program included pipe organ music, a talk by Dr. Richard W. McClain, psychiatrist at the Jackson, Mich., prison, and platform readings by two of the mediums in attendance, Loretta Schmitt and Fanchion Harwood.

Blindfold That Doesn't Blind

The only feature of interest in the session was a new blindfold technique employed by the medium Harwood, in which she placed one strip of adhesive tape horizontally across her eyes and two other strips vertically over each eye, after which a blindfold was applied.

Miss Mackenberg later duplicated the blindfold, and showed me how it was possible to see with it, because when the eyelids are lifted, they lift the horizontal tape with them, and there is adequate space for vision between the vertical tapes and the nose.

Apparently we were spotted as strangers at the afternoon meeting, because when we emerged we found two "tails" on us. A "tail" is someone assigned to follow a suspected person without being seen, to see where he goes and what he does.

This obviously made further investigation futile, but we had already obtained our view of the camp and how it works.

Attendance Lower This Year

A woman who operates a dining room near the camp told us that the attendance this year is lower than usual, and that many persons from the camp who ate in her place were complaining of wartime prices being charged by the mediums.

This apparent commercialization is frowned on by certain factions among the spiritualists themselves. In the June 24 issue of the New York Spiritualist leader, a spiritualist weekly edited by Margaret Blake Hall, is a letter from a contributor stating that she "cried for hours when I read the names of the Chesterfield workers for this year. The way they are fooling the poor souls that make such sacrifices to go to camp and talk to their loved ones breaks my heart." To which the editor appends the comment "So you see how deep the tide is running against the Chesterfield chicanery."

So next time you go to a medium, remember Houdini's offer of $10,000 for a genuine supernatural phenomenon; remember me and my spirit incense; and remember Miss Mackenberg's "messages" from her three dozen spirit husbands.

"I've done everything but whistle at him. Do you suppose he thinks we have a nonfraternize law over here?"

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 9—Webster-Ashburton Treaty

THE signing of the Webster-Ashburton treaty in Washington, D. C., 103 years ago today put an end to a dispute which had brought the United States and Great Britain to the verge of war.

Maine had entered the Union in 1820 with boundaries so vague that thru 12,000 square miles of her claimed territory settlers had no way of knowing whether they eventually would come under the control of the United States or Britain. The framers of the treaty of 1783, which pretended to draw a boundary line thru the vast wilderness lying between Canada and the new American Republic, had used language which was capable of various interpretations.

The British accused the Americans of sending armed patrols into Canadian territory and of building entrenchments there. The Americans charged the British with erecting extensive military barracks on American land. There were quarrels over timber cutting. At one point a shooting war broke out, but a truce was arranged.

In April, 1842, Alexander Baring, Lord Ashburton, arrived in Washington as a special minister of the British government to conclude a treaty covering the disputes between the two countries. Secretary of State Daniel Webster represented the United States. Work in earnest began in June.

Discussions went on thru the hot months of the early summer. On one point after another agreement was reached. Despite the international suspicions and hatreds involved in the disputes, Webster and Ashburton had confidence in each other's sincerity and treated each other with perfect frankness. The result was a treaty which, while it satisfied neither country completely, at least averted the immediate danger of war. Of the disputed territory, 7,015 square miles were given to the United States and 5,012 to Britain.

The treaty, which also contained provisions other than those relating to the Maine boundary, was signed Aug. 9, 1842.

Damage estimated at $1,000 was caused yesterday in a vacant three story brick building at 751 N. Elizabeth st. by fire that started on the first floor stairs and spread to the roof.

OPA TO START RETAIL PRICE SURVEY AUG. 15

A survey of retail prices of clothing, home furnishings, and shoes was announced by the office of price administration yesterday to start Aug. 15. Its effect will be lower prices, OPA administrators said, and the declines will be apparent to the shopper about Nov. 1.

Rae E. Walters, regional administrator, and Kenneth E. Erickson, regional chief of the consumers' goods and service section, met with retailers' representatives to explain the survey. They said it would reach 6,500 stores in Chicago.

Erickson said shoppers already have benefitted from regulation No. 578, which affected prices on women's cotton dresses and infant's wear.

Overcharges on "pre-ticket" items, articles on which the manufacturer has stated the retail price, have been noted particularly in suburban stores, Erickson said. If these violations are persisted in, he said OPA will seek penalties in the form of treble damages.

ARMY ABANDONS USE OF SULFA DRUGS IN FIELD

Disadvantages Are Cited; Outweigh Benefits

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—One of this war's reputed life saving marvels, the sulfanilamide which men put in their own wounds, has been abandoned for use by the men.

Abandoned by the army also is the issuance of the eight sulfa tablets which wounded men were instructed to swallow immediately.

No more of either the powdered sulfas for wounds or the tablets to swallow are being issued, altho the men retain supplies which they had on hand.

The change marks the conclusion of a great experiment, which was good to a certain extent, but which developed disadvantages, and which was finally outweighed by the many other life saving treatments of wounded which the war perfected.

Killed Some Infections

The disadvantages of powdered sulfas in wounds were known at the start of the war, but were outweighed then by the urgent needs of setting up a huge medical organization.

The sulfa powders, while they killed some of the infectious germs, failed to stop the decomposition which furnished the material in which blood poisoning ultimately might develop. The powders were a foreign body in wounds which sometimes slowed the natural healing process.

After three years' study, in the combat zones, and in hospitals in the United States, it was concluded that no presently known drug can sterilize an infected war wound.

This conclusion includes penicillin, too.

Dangers Pointed Out

The reason for abandoning the eight sulfa tablets was mainly that too many men saved up the issues to use the tablets for gonorrhea. There is one serious risk in self-cures of this venereal disease: If a man does not take enough he not only fails to cure the disease, but afterward his germs are likely to have an immunity from the sulfas which makes it difficult to cure him at all.

Another risk is the fact that the sulfas that fail to cure may drive the disease under cover so that the man shows no symptoms until the trouble comes back in a more serious form.

The sulfas which the soldier took by mouth are effective against some infections of wounds but not against others. In the present care of wounded the surgeons get the men early enough to give them either sulfas or penicillin in time.

RETURNS $1,575 'NEST EGG' TO EX-YANK; FREED

A charge of embezzlement against Miss Florence Siddens, 28, of 1501 E. 69th st., a secretary, was dismissed by Judge William V. Daly in Felony court yesterday when she returned $1,575 to her former fiance, Stanley Trabanda, 31, of 9214 University av., who recently was discharged from the army air forces as a gunner sergeant. Trabanda caused Miss Siddens's arrest July 26 on the charge that she embezzled $1,925 in war bonds and $465 cash which he had sent her from overseas as a "nest egg." He said he was satisfied with the restitution she made, and would use the money to buy a truck, instead of getting married.

Aug. 8, 1945

THE first indications of approaching autumn are noticeable on the farms. Late summer and early fall flowers are on display in the woodlots, farm wives are busily sewing school clothes for their children, one worker is having the sights repaired on his squirrel rifle for the fall hunting season, and all of the farm residents are watching their gardens in an unofficial contest to pick the first ear of sweet corn.

The checkerboard appearance of the farm fields, as viewed from any middle western hilltop at this time of year, provides the most certain evidence of late summer. The deep green of the field corn, the lighter green plots of alfalfa and clover, and the tawny yellow of the oat stubble are the hues typical of mid-August on the farm.

Symbols of Season

Shocks of oats standing in the fields, the sight of combines and balers circling the yellow plots, and slow moving cattle grazing in lush pastures provide additional symbols of the season.

A leisurely walk thru one of the farm woodlots this week disclosed colorful and tasty signs of August. The color came in the form of new late summer wildflowers and the tastes were provided by the wild blackberries and black raspberries that are ripening in the fields and at the edges of woodlots.

Hogs are being kept in the south woodlot this summer, and they destroyed the blackberry patch which usually provides us with hiking deserts, but in the center woodlot south of the farm ponds we found patches of both types of wild berries. The blackberry bushes between the Half Moon pond and the Round pond are heavily loaded with fruits just reaching full ripeness.

New Wild Flowers Appear

New wildflowers in this week's show include goldenrod, wild onions, blazing star, and blue lobelia. The blazing star is the most attractive of these, with bright purple flowers on a tall spike similar to that of the larkspur.

The lobellas, which opened their petals this week, are similar in structure to the blazing stars, but their florets are a subdued pastel blue in comparison to the brilliant color of the blazing stars.

Many wildflower fans forget that the wild onion produces a flower, but this common growth has a delicate light purple or rose tinted umbel about the size of a golf ball. Any one having difficulty identifying the wild onion flower has only to chew the stem, for the taste of onion is unmistakable.

★The GARDEN★

GARDENERS making August plantings of radishes, lettuce, and spinach should prepare a thoro seed bed to insure a satisfactory percentage of seed germination. The fact that the ground was spaded in the spring and kept under cultivation during the first half of the season, does not mean that a new seeding can be made without additional preparation of the seed bed.

Summer rains have packed the soil, so before seeding the ground should be spaded and raked just as in the spring.

Many gardeners find a mattock a handy implement for reworking the soil prior to making August plantings. This tool is similar to an axe, but the blade is horizontal rather than vertical. A portion of the garden can be "spaded" with a mattock in about half the time required with a fork.

SERGEANT FILES FOR DIVORCE ON ADULTERY COUNT

Sgt. Irvin A. Kuczora, 25, of 2821 N. Lockwood av., a veteran of the European theater of war, yesterday charged his wife, Geraldine, 25, of 3849 Ottawa av., with adultery in a divorce bill filed by Attys. Joseph H. and Norman Becker in Superior court.

Sgt. Kuczora

Kuczora then appeared before Judge Edwin A. Robson with his attorneys, where he obtained an injunction halting his wife from disposing of the couple's joint bank account, and from cashing additional allotment checks.

The soldier told the court that he returned home July 13 for redeployment to the Pacific and found that his wife had been living with another man.

Judge Robson called for Assistant State's Atty. Roman R. Stachnik, after the soldier indicated he wished to press criminal charges against his wife.

LABORITE WANTS ENGLAND, INDIA TO BE PARTNERS

LONDON, Aug. 8—Britain's new India secretary, Frederick Pethick Lawrence, said today that he will seek equal partnership between Britain on the one hand and India and Burma on the other.

Addressing a press conference with Indian journalists, Pethick Lawrence asserted such a partnership was "passionately desired" not only by himself and the British government but also by the vast majority of Britons. "We have much in common," he said "and where we are different we have much to give and much to learn from one another. This is not an occasion when I am in a position to say anything about time and method of approach to that ideal but it will be the outstanding thought behind all my actions."

Ceylon Seeks Home Rule

IMPORTANT NOTICE
to wage-earners in the Chicago area

DO YOU WANT TO SERVE YOUR COUNTRY?
DO YOU WANT TO PREPARE FOR THE FUTURE?

You are needed to take a job at Douglas at once!

We are building vitally needed aircraft . . . C-54 Combat Air Transports . . . designed for the conflict against Japan. No one knows how long it will take to defeat the Japanese. In any case, we do know that the real struggle is just beginning. Iwo Jima and Okinawa have shown us how bitterly our victory will be contested and how great the price in American lives. If we are unable to turn out the planes—needed now more than ever—thousands of American boys may die unnecessarily . . . because of our failure here in Chicago.

Some may object—"The war is almost over and now is not the time to take a so-called war job." But the war is NOT over. It is apparent that the most difficult and bloody phase is just starting.

Others may feel that they'd better "get set" now in a peacetime job before the flood of demobilization starts. But no real advantage can thus be gained. When complete demobilization comes—if it ever does—ability will find its own level everywhere. Each of us will then find and hold the job for which we are fitted. It is a law of nature.

Meanwhile we need more production workers—urgently! There is no better way to serve America and prepare for the future than by coming to work at Douglas . . . NOW!

NO CUTBACKS HERE

Instead of cutting production, our schedules are actually being increased. The Army wants more and more Douglas C-54's as fast as we can build them. To help us obtain workers needed to build them War Manpower Commission has granted us a No. 2 Labor Priority, higher than any other war plant in Chicagoland. This is your opportunity to learn the aviation trade. Apply at once.

IF YOU LIVE NORTH OR NORTHWEST . . . and are not now in essential industry . . .

APPLY AT ONCE AT PLANT,

Council Denounces Bill on Labor Relations

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

The American Federation of Labor's executive council yesterday canceled the federation's 65th annual convention, scheduled for Chicago in October. Thru this action, William Green will be continued automatically as president for his 21st year pending developments that may permit a convention and election.

The office of defense transportation previously had notified the federation that the convention, with 600 delegates, could not be held this year because of military transport requirements. Instead, the executive council will hold another session in Cincinnati, O., convening Oct. 15.

Labor Relations Bill Condemned

At its session in the Drake hotel, the executive council condemned the Ball-Burton-Hatch labor relations bill pending before congress and decided to work for its defeat. Sponsors of the measure had said it was intended to revamp the government's machinery for dealing with labor disputes. The AFL council denounced it as obnoxious from beginning to end.

Mobilization of the forces of labor to defeat the bill in its entirety was ordered "because the objectionable features are so numerous and so closely interrelated that it would be impossible to remove them by amendments."

Called Dangerous to Labor

"This bill constitutes one of the most dangerous anti-labor measures ever introduced in congress," the council said. "It vests in employers a large measure of domination over workers and their unions. It seeks to establish compulsory arbitration, which labor has successfully resisted in the past, and it virtually would eliminate the union shop.

"It would revive 'government by injunction.' It sets up a so-called code of unfair labor practices that would severely shackle the workers in their efforts to organize. These are only a few of the worst features of the bill which impel the executive council to condemn the measure in its entirety."

Thanked for Atomic Bomb Aid

President Green of the federation made public a telegram from Under Secretary of War Patterson that said:

"Thru you I want to thank all the officers and members of your building and metal trades unions who helped build and man the plants in which our atomic bombs are made. You recruited skilled mechanics from thousands of miles away to work on these projects, tho we could not tell you what they were making. Now you have the reward of knowing that their efforts are making an important contribution to final victory."

OPA WINS THREE JUDGMENTS FOR TOTAL OF $9,541

Consent judgments totaling $9,541.68 in office of price administration suits were entered yesterday in federal District court or Circuit court against L. J. McCaffrey, 605 Hickory st., Waukegan, for $1,803.84, and Edward J. Beisswanger, 1045 N. Elmwood av., Oak Park, for $1,904.50, both for over-ceiling meat sales; the 4145 Broadway Hotel company and the Security Service corporation, operators of the Buena Park hotel, for $5,833.34, for rent overcharges.

Suspension suits were filed by the OPA against:

The Great Northern Oil company, 4058 Peterson av., and the Winnetka Coal and Lumber company, 594 Green Bay rd., Winnetka, charging deposit of not yet valid oil coupons; Ruben Kogan, 1781 S. Cicero av., and James Di Forti, 2513 S. Cicero av., Cicero, charged with using stolen or counterfeit gasoline coupons.

Other OPA suits were filed against:

Rosario Fiorella, 4207 Elston av.; Barbara Goodall, 8946 S. Park way; Bessie Wyneberg, 1717 North Shore av., and Charles L. Ganzler, 1733 Washburne av., alleging rent overcharges; and Robert, Frank, and Chester Hardwicke, 4530 Augusta blvd.; the Andrew Bille service station, 1443 Ogden av., and Alex Janas, 3558 Diversey av., charging gasoline coupon irregularities.

John R. Redell, operator of the M. & J. Food mart, 3507 Chicago av., was suspended for the duration of rationing, and Anichini Brothers, a wholesale and retail market at 949 N. Wells st., was suspended for eight months, on charges of using counterfeit coupons in meat transactions. Both may appeal in 30 days.

Barney Kessel, owner of a steak house at 741 Randolph st., paid the $1,000 fine levied against him Tuesday in federal District court on a contempt of court charge for violation of an injunction restraining him from violating OPA regulations. A petition for his suspension from dealing in rationed foods for the duration of rationing is pending before an OPA hearing commissioner.

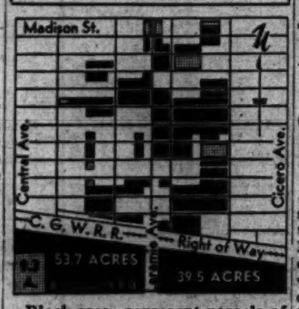
Offer School Land



Black areas represent parcels of west side land the board of education wants to sell, while the shaded areas are those the board wants to retain.

The board of education yesterday requested the city council to sell more than 200 acres of school land, valued at 2 million dollars, between Roosevelt rd., Madison st., Central, and Cicero avs. Sale of the land would be in line with the board's policy of returning property it does not need to the tax rolls. James B. McCahey, president of the board, said that when the land is improved by the buyers it will have a tax value of at least 20 million dollars.

The board will sell 53.7 acres on Roosevelt rd., between Central and Laramie avs., disposing of all its property in this parcel except 9.3 acres where Key branch stadium is located. On Roosevelt rd., from Laramie av. to Cicero av., the board will sell 39.5 acres south of the Chicago and Great Western railroad right of way.

Nearly 100 acres between Central and Cicero avs., north of the railroad right of way, will be sold, but the board will reserve additional space for May school, and potential school property at Leamington av. and Adams st.

SEARCH PUSHED FOR KIDNAPER'S 2 SEAMAN PALS

Military and civilian police pressed their search yesterday for Tracey W. Wood, 30, of Rose City, Mich., navy seaman 2d class, and Harvey L. Hinderliter, 22, of 4835 Ash av., Hammond, Ind., coast guard seaman 2d class, escaped prisoners from the naval training center at Great Lakes. Seaman 2d Class Jack G. Navarre, 23, of Independence, Kas., who escaped with them, was captured Tuesday night at Savanna, Carroll county, after he had kidnaped two girls and a forest preserve policeman. The three navy prisoners escaped after slugging their marine guard. Officers at Great Lakes said they will make a complete investigation before determining what charges to bring against the men.

Governor Implies War Was Democrats'

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 8 [Special]—Admitted adherence to a spoils system in the Democratic administration of Gov. Wallgren, a former New Deal senator, with resulting discrimination against war veterans who have no record as active Democrats, has stirred a political tempest thruout this state.

The situation was brought to public attention when a veteran, honorably discharged after three years' army service in Alaska, made the discovery last week that he could not get a job with the state highway department unless his name appeared on the "approved list of the Democratic central committee."

This returned soldier, Milton Morsing of Spokane, is a graduate of Washington State college, where he majored in geology, and had a year of post-graduate work at the University of Minnesota and six months at the Montana School of Mines.

Services Are Needed

He applied at the district highway office here for a job as a surveyor, was told men with his qualifications were badly needed by the department, and subsequently found his appointment held up because his name was not on the "approved list."

When news of Morsing's experience with the highway department was published in the Spokane Spokesman-Review, letters expressing indignation poured in from Washington and surrounding states.

Gov. Wallgren, seeking to answer the protests, said in a statement a few days ago that the only veterans who wouldn't be hired by the administration were "those who have actively identified themselves with the Republican party."

'Few' Republican Vets

This started a new stream of protests from persons demanding why a Republican who fought for his country should not be entitled to the same break in the civilian world as a Democrat who served his country. The governor was quoted as saying he didn't think "there were very many active Republicans among the veterans anyway."

A letter challenging the governor, written by a high school girl whose Republican father has been jungle fighting for two years, was published in the Spokesman-Review. "Bring home the 'few' Republican veterans and let them see what they think about not being important enough to hold a state job," the girl wrote.

Governor Defended

Gov. Wallgren was defended by George J. Smith, past state commander of the Disabled American War Veterans. Smith said in a statement that "no business man would employ a person who spoke and worked against his administration," and added that the voters of the state expressed their wishes when they made the change at Olympia last November.

Morsing said today he has refused to take steps to have his name approved by the Democratic committee and has abandoned his effort to get a job with the state. He has accepted an offer of the Northern Pacific railroad, he said, to join one of their surveying crews.

JOE SAYS, "ME, TOO"

Russia has declared war on Japan. The declaration comes 44 months and two days after the United States entered a struggle in which, virtually single handed and at the cost of some 400,000 casualties, we sank the Japanese navy, drove the Japanese air force from the skies, shattered Japanese industry, and reduced the Japanese people to despair. It comes four days after the first atomic bombing made clear to the whole world that Japan will be obliterated if it continues to resist.

Surely no one can find the slightest parallel between Stalin's announcement and Mussolini's attack on France 13 days after Dunkerque.

THE ATOM IN PEACE

One of the older statesmen of our trade came in yesterday from his suburban hermitage for the first time since the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima. Until now, he reported, he has contended successfully with life and the gadgets which make it more livable and vastly more complicated, none of which he understands. But this is where he gets off.

He suspects that after all these years Jimmy Quinn, the Chicago politician and wit of another era, may have had something. Jimmy was one of the skeptics during the Immediate Municipal Ownership movement back in 1907, when Mayor Dunne was elected on that millennial proposal to solve the traction problem, and the IMO boys were customarily depicted as a throng of down-at-heel visionaries who never ventured out without a fork for obtaining their due share of free lunch. Jimmy blew into Democratic headquarters full of news one day and breathlessly informed his colleagues, "I hear Dunne's going to heat the parks this winter."

We move from Jimmy to Mr. John Langdon Davies, the science correspondent of a London newspaper. Mr. Davies opines that Mr. Attlee and the Labor government may as well forget their plans for nationalizing British coal mines and the gas and electric industry, because if atomic energy has not rendered them obsolete it has at least so altered their value that they cannot be appraised.

Maybe atomic energy is going to heat the parks or, more usefully, the cornfields in January. But certainly not yet.

U-235 has been made practicable, tho perhaps not brought to horrible perfection, as a weapon of war. The knowledge of basic science necessary to make it a tool of peace probably exists, but the application of that science most certainly is still to be developed. However far reaching the benefits of atomic energy may be, it is still unlikely that we shall reach the millennial stage when no one has to work and every one can devote his whole time to seeking the Attic ideal of a cultivated mind and a perfect body.

Atomic energy, at the present stage at least, is a new fuel. It may well be the most perfect and cheapest fuel conceivable, but of that we have absolutely no proof. We don't know now what it costs to produce U-235. We don't know just how plentiful the world's supply of uranium may be in the light of its potential use for power. We don't know, on the other hand, whether it may not be possible to obtain the same tremendous power by disintegrating other elements under proper stimuli. But, fundamentally, atomic energy is a fuel.

It is not going to be a free fuel. Citizens who have read of the destruction of Hiroshima will be more than a little queasy about installing a capsule of U-235 in their basements to heat their houses, even if that were scientifically feasible, which it is not now. The adaptation of atomic energy most easily foreseeable now is that it will be generated at central stations, converted into a conventional form of energy, probably electricity, and made available by existing distribution systems. The distribution will continue to cost money and occupy the services of hundreds of thousands or millions of people. It might be well to remember that while the water in Lake Michigan is free to any one who wants to drive down to Grant park with a barrel, the city of Chicago has by now invested close to half a billion dollars in a system the sole purpose of which is that any citizen can turn a tap and get a pure supply of that free water.

Obviously, the commercial application of U-235 is going to involve political and economic problems more severe than any this country has had to face in the past.

The planners of Washington already see a heaven sent opportunity. Purely thru the exigencies of war and the mobilization of scientific talent, to which they contributed nothing, they see in the national domain a force that may be capable of use to regiment every activity in the country. Their drive must be stopped. The secret of atomic energy belongs to the whole nation, not to the burocrats, who did no more to create it than they did to create all of the other productive facilities that have won this war. If it is applicable for peace time use the obvious policy to be followed is to license that use to any man or enterprise who will use it legally, not merely to those who will promise to use it the way the planners demand that they do.

Already the little Americans and anti-Americans who are bent on giving away this country are talking about giving this potentially most valuable asset of all time to the rest of the world, the major portions of which have done nothing to create it. They, too, must be stopped. Regardless of the peace time potentialities of atomic energy, it is already developed as the most terrifying weapon in the history of war. Those who would make that weapon available to any one who might use it against the United States can only be regarded as traitors.

DILLYDALLYING IN THE C. A. B.

The civil aeronautics board on Jan. 1 issued an order calling upon the air lines to show cause why the rate paid them for carrying the mails should not be cut to 32 cents a ton mile. The existing rate is 60 cents. The C. A. B. stated that when the rate is fixed it will be retroactive to the first of the year. The lines prepared their replies and asked that hearings be held promptly. Altho more than seven months have elapsed since the show cause order was issued, the board has not held a hearing, nor set a date for one.

We do not presume to suggest the proper rate. But C. A. B. is neglecting its job. The airplane manufacturers have done a brilliant job during the war. They face drastic curtailment after the war. The maintenance of as many of their plants as possible in a stand-by condition is a national defense must. The transition period will be especially difficult for them. Orders from the air lines are their best hope. The transport companies are seriously handicapped in making plans for the reconversion period when they don't know what their compensation is to be for the work they already have done for the postoffice nor what they are going to receive in the future.

Air mail revenue is a diminishing share of air line earnings, even with the old rates, but it often determines whether service is feasible on new routes or on established routes of light traffic density. C. A. B. seems determined to be among those government agencies which seek to place obstacles in the way of high production and employment after the war.

THE ATOM IN WAR

Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May, chief of staff of the strategic air force, says that if the atomic bomb had been available there would have been "no need to have had D-day in Europe."

It is to be surmised from this that, now that we do have the bomb and as the supply is ample and the production rate high, no D-day will be required to land American troops in Japan to complete the subjection of the enemy. The "rain of ruin from the air," promised by President Truman if the Japanese government is sufficiently foolhardy to prolong the struggle, should be enough to end Japan's capacity for trouble. Certainly another ultimatum should be presented which will give the Japs the chance to quit.

But whether Japan surrenders is an irrelevant consideration in establishing the course which the administration and army now must take. Landings in Japan, to be undertaken at enormous expense and with inevitable sacrifice of American life, are no longer necessary and cannot be justified. The enemy already was neutralized by sea and air blockade. His transport is paralyzed, his garrisons contained, his cities and industries in ruins, and his people verging upon starvation. Add to this the potentialities of the atomic bomb and Japan's only prospect is doom.

But Mr. Truman has said instead that "behind this air attack will follow sea and air forces in such numbers and power as they [the Japanese] have not yet seen." In those words he commits himself to a D-day in Japan.

Nor, with the exception of Gen. Le May, has any army leader demonstrated any realization of the absolute mastery the new weapon has placed in our hands. The army persists in its plans for invasion. It continues its attempts to justify the need for retaining 7 million men. It is still inducting 100,000 men a month, so that its strength of 8,300,000 men has scarcely been reduced in the three months since V-E day.

More wasteful and unjustifiable than any of these policies is the refusal of both army and navy to cut back war production to the bone, even tho there is an enormous backlog in every category of weapon, even tho our navy is the greatest in history and the Jap navy is nonexistent, and even tho the atomic bomb has rendered many traditional instruments of war obsolete overnight.

Research and development of the atomic bomb have cost 2 billion dollars. The nation is assured that, even if the war is shortened by but nine days, the investment will be repaid, for the daily average expenditure for all war purposes is 239 million dollars. The argument is fallacious. The bomb will pay for itself only if the army releases the millions of men it no longer needs and stops production of billions of dollars in material it can no longer use. It will result in no saving at all if the army continues to hold the men and continue production of vast quantities of unneeded material while also making the bomb.

Our national policy now should be the conservation of the lives of our youth by refraining from making an unnecessary landing in Japan and the conservation of our wealth and resources by stopping all extraneous activities and production. The new atomic weapon has caught our leaders flat-footed without an effective reconversion program, without having cut the army down to size, and without having made sufficient cutbacks in war production schedules.

A skeptic might say that the administration is afraid of peace and the problems it will bring. The army begins to take on the appearance of a vast WPA, and the war production program, occupying the facilities of our industries and the skill and energies of our workers, of a great, nonessential public works campaign, with guns and ammunition instead of postoffices and highway improvements as the product. It's still the same old New Deal.

WHERE IT HAPPENED

Talk your head off, if you like, about neutrons, protons, electrons, uranium, heavy water, and the square root of minus one; but this column wants a look at the scene of the first atomic bomb explosion on Mother Earth, which has been officially described as "a remote location on the Alamogordo, N. M., army air base." Let's take a run along U. S. 70, from Portales, near the Texas border, thru Roswell, across a corner of the Lincoln national forest and thru the Mescalero Apache Indian reservation. We will wind up at Alamogordo.

* * *

"Big cottonwood" is the translation of Alamogordo. Before the war, it was a town of 4,000, settled in 1898 for railway purposes. The Southern Pacific moved part of its shops in 1903, but, nevertheless, the place grew. It contains industries related to railroading, such as a tie-making plant, and a marble works. It is also the site of the New Mexico School for the Blind, which seems appropriate since atomic bombs are said to cause blindness at a five mile range.

* * *

After map study, we figure that the experimental explosion was touched off west of Alamogordo, where a desert basin called the Tularosa valley stretches north and south for 125 miles. Geologists report it as "bounded by block plateaus or gently tilted stratified formations." The western edge of this desert is formed by the Organ and San Andres mountain ranges, which, when the atoms broke loose, provided the views that have been described by scientists as "unprecedented, magnificent, beautiful, stupendous, and terrifying."

* * *

In this desert tract, and well situated as a theater for the atomic debut, is the White Sands National monument—175,000 acres of gypsum in dunes and drifts. Plant and animal life is scarce, dice and insects, especially beetles, are numerous, and are invariably white. It is a fitting environment for an uncanny event in history and science.

* * *

The San Andres mountains may be crossed by a side road off U. S. 70, starting at Tularosa, 13 miles north of Alamogordo. The pass is named after Eugene Manlove Rhodes, first-rate writer of wild-west fiction. He was buried there, "home on the range," in 1934. The grave is marked by plain wooden boards, and a tall pifion tree, with a small juniper at its base, keeps the sun out of Gene's eyes.

WIND OFF THE LAKE

The stricken city waits, inert and still,
So long denied the cooling tears of rain;
The leaves hang moveless, without wish or will,
And eyes grown listless seek the sky in vain.
The sun arcs higher and the pavements scorch
While lawns burn tawny as the glare bores down
And men hide vainly from the flaming torch
Nor find oasis in the tortured town.
But now a whisper's breath, an unseen stream
Flows inland to each parched and weary street!
The wind! And soft and blessed as a dream
The lake breeze blows and routs the torrid heat.
The city stirs, and life begins again,

Log of the Good Ship Cecelie

The S.S. Kronprinzessin Cecelie of the North German Lloyd Line [Aug. 6] sailed from Boston shortly before the outbreak of World War I. with $1,800,000 in gold for delivery in Germany. At the declaration of war, she turned back to Bar Harbor, Me., and was later moved to Boston. When the United States entered the war in 1917, the interned ship was seized and converted into a transport named the Mount Vernon, which carried thousands of soldiers to France.

The Mount Vernon was torpedoed by a submarine on Sept. 16, 1918, about 200 miles off the port of Brest, France, but returned there under her own power. [I was aboard as aide to Sen. James Hamilton Lewis.] She was repaired and continued in the transport service.

After the war the Mount Vernon, formerly Kronprinzessin Cecelie, was in trans-Atlantic passenger service. She is again in use as a troop ship.

Why does the robin in the tree,
The meadowlark a-wing,
So easily, compared with me,
Sing?

Why does that little lass of nine,
That lad of four-and-a-half,
So readily, while I repine,
Laugh?

Could be, since birds and children love
Life's every least employ,
Life shares with them the secret of Joy?

G. F. writes: "I was retired from the air corps for disability incurred in line of duty after nearly two years' service. When I was accepted as an aviation cadet we were told we would receive a bonus of $500 for each year of service. Can you tell why I have been unable to collect the bonus? Am I entitled to mustering out pay?"

Section 300 a, Title 10, United States code, provides that "whenever any air corps reserve officer who has not been selected for commission in the regular army is released from active duty that has been continuous for one or more years, he shall be paid a lump sum of $500 for each complete year of active service as such officer" if not released at his own request or for unsatisfactory service. The payment will be prorated for fractional parts of a year. This bonus is in addition to any pay, allowance, compensation, and benefit to which the officer otherwise is entitled. Payment of this bonus to many retired officers has been held up pending a determination of their status as a result of promotion. When commissioned the flyers were in the air corps reserve and qualified under the law. When promoted temporarily their commissions were in the army of the United States. This is a technicality, but army commissions still are not mentioned in the law. The mustering out pay act specifically bars payment to "any air corps reserve officer who is entitled to receive a lump sum payment under section 300a of Title 10."

SUNSTROKE IS AN EMERGENCY

On the day after a scorcher the newspapers usually carry a story of one or more who have succumbed to the heat. Many erroneously believe that this happens only to the aged or those below par, but the healthy can fall victim almost as easily.

Normally, the human system is capable of maintaining an even temperature, regardless of the outside thermometer reading. During winter our muscles develop heat and the capillaries in the skin clamp down in an attempt to hold it in. When the opposite condition exists, our physical activities decrease and the tiny vessels open, allowing warmth to be passed off by radiation. In addition, more is lost thru perspiration. Factors which disrupt or overtax this mechanism can be said to cause sunstroke.

Old Sol naturally furnishes the heat. It is not the ultraviolet but the infra-red rays which are at fault. On sizzling days, along with a high humidity and no breeze, the stage for the disorder is set. The epidermis begins to grow warm but the atmosphere is so full of moisture that elimination of the excess thru this excretory orgar is slowed considerably. When coupled with lack of wind to aid in evaporating the fluid, overheating is inevitable.

Other possibilities exist. Perhaps the individual drank too little water and there is not enough for perspiration. There is also that rare person who cannot sweat. Such oddities are on record. They must stay cool or survival may not be possible. For this reason many remain indoors or move to a suitable climate.

The signs of sunstroke are usually preceded by a feeling of depression, dizziness, or headache. Nausea and vomiting may occur which only add to discomfort. The body temperature begins to rise and may reach unbelievable heights. If the sufferer is not shifted to a cool place, he soon falls unconscious. A physician should be called because, unless treated promptly and correctly, the outcome may be serious.

The patient must be transferred to the shade, preferably indoors. In mild cases, fluids are administered. The clothing should be removed and the body fanned either by hand or with a fan. A good method for reducing high fever is to wrap the victim in a wet sheet. Another is to carry him to a bath of 80 degrees F. and then add ice to the tub. Under no circumstances should he be placed immediately in ice water as the shock may be too great. The doctor can determine the status of the circulation for, in many cases, stimulants are necessary. In a pinch, spirits of ammonia may be used.

These attacks are avoidable by using common sense during torrid waves. At the first sign of the unusual, seek safety in a cooler environment. In addition, reduce activity, cut down on the food intake, and dress sensibly.

BETTER NOW

J. K. writes: Years ago, people who were operated on frequently developed pneumonia from taking ether. We don't hear about this complication so much any more. What is the explanation?

REPLY

Several factors have made this possible. Those with respiratory diseases are not operated on, unless an emergency exists. The patient can also help by turning himself frequently from one side to the other during convalescence. Lastly, the anesthetist now administers carbon dioxide at the completion of surgery to stimulate deep breathing. Thru this procedure the lungs are thoroly aerated and stagnation is minimized.

KEEP ON

Mrs. E. M. writes: I have given my 5 year old son cod liver oil thruout the winter. Is it necessary to continue during the summer?

REPLY

Growing children should take cod liver oil all the year round. However, if the child receives adequate sunlight in the summer time, the dosage can be decreased to half the required amount. This substance is an excellent source of vitamin D which is so essential in building body structures, including the teeth.

MOUTH ERUPTION

E. S. writes: I have small ulcers in my mouth and on the gums. Is there something wrong with my system?

REPLY

These are probably canker sores. Faulty diets or digestive upsets, such as constipation, are frequently responsible. By looking for and correcting the cause and particularly in regulating the bowels, the lesions will disappear.

Remark of the War

Words That Weren't Final

An army flyer, Capt. Ray Schull, home from what he calls the air circus over Africa and Italy, tells of the Arkansas boy, pilot of a P-38, with whom a Messerschmitt caught up one day. The boy went into a vertical dive to try to escape his wing man [in a covering P-38] at the same time beginning to hop the Messerschmidt, but the Messerschmitt stuck with him, pursued by the wing plane and another P-38. The Arkansan didn't have a chance in a thousand of getting out, and as he dived earthward the other two planes turned their radios on, prepared to catch his last words, usually a message to some member of his family. As they listened, a slow drawl came thru the innerphone: "Look to Lockheed for leadership!" With that he zoomed down and down until, 25 feet from the ground, he pulled his plane out and up toward safety. The Messerschmitt crashed.

Crisis in Marianas

According to Brief, the army air forces' magazine in the Pacific, there hasn't been a Jap near the Marianas since the last air raid Jan. 1, but there have been plenty of alerts, many to welcome a pilot who breezes in without advance notice. In June, however, they really had a scare.

Night fighters roared off the runways in droves. Sirens moaned. Bells rang. Cans were banged. Searchlights probed the sky. Crack gun crews stood tense at their positions. In the sacrosanct halls of Intelligence, men scanned charts, moved dials and pointers and [says Brief] whatever else they move.

The Powers were puzzled. What could it be? Then one, described as a literate character who read the paper, cried: "Balloon bomb! Like them things they been finding near Seattle. Couldn't be anything else. We gotta shoot it down before she hits."

In the meantime a rugged chief petty officer of Seabees looked up 5,000 feet. "An air raid," he muttered. "We better reel this thing in before we hit the foxhole." Down she came, and in the G-2 halls men sighed hideously. "It's gonna hit the Seabees," they cried. "O, them poor guys."

The Seabees repaired to foxholes and sweated out the alert. Nothing else happened, and finally the all-clear was sounded. Eventually came the official investigation, and the rugged old CPO was summoned before very high brass. Brief reports that he was aggrieved. "Jeest," he said. "I still think that's the best way to make a kite—with a nice aluminum framework."

DISTINCTIONS AMONG IMPERIALISTS

Chicago, July 30—Let us assume that Japan is a nation, all of whose people are thieves, and that they stole Korea, Manchuria, and other parts of Asia. As a result of this war we shall make them disgorge their loot of the last 50 years. Then in that respect they will have been converted, however unwillingly, into an honest people.

Britain, France, and Holland have temporarily mislaid a lot of colonies which they stole long ago. Uncle Sam, at the cost of thousands of lives, billions of wealth, and terrific internal problems, is to recover this loot for Europe, which will then persist in its thievery by holding onto it.

REPEAT TOURS OF DUTY

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 1—Your editorial, "Half-Wit Draft Rules," in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE was read by us with great interest and a prayer that something will be done quickly to stop this awful practice and find who is responsible. We know of three such cases right now, one being our nephew, a pilot in the air force, with the former rank of major, who was on active duty nearly five years, overseas seven months, and was discharged because, according to the doctors, he could not take any more missions. Despite this, he did not receive a medical discharge and now has had to register with the draft board. He is a nervous wreck and what the war failed to do to him mentally and physically the present situation is surely going to finish.

WHERE TO FIND RAILROAD MEN

Chicago, Aug. 2—Three months ago my husband returned from Europe after fighting 27 months in Africa and Italy. As of May 12 he had accumulated 82 points—three short of the 85 required. He is stationed at a camp in Illinois where he and about 15 other soldiers are doing some sort of work there which he says could be done by three men. Now here is my kick. He is an experienced railroad man; doing the kind of work that the railroads are crying for. I know, as I work for a railroad myself. SOLDIER'S WIFE

LOOK, SECRETARY PATTERSON

ST. GEORGES, France, July 13—All you hear on the radio and read in the papers is the shortage of railroad employes. I was a locomotive fireman when I entered the army, I want to get back on my job and I have been sitting in this replacement depot for 3 months and 11 days, doing nothing. My work is finished over here and I am 39 years 6 months old and no unit wants me. The railroad tried to get me back after V-E day but, no, my commanding officer said I would have to wait until I am 40. Why couldn't I go back to work until I am 40 to help the government that I fought for over here? No, I have to sit around six more months while my former boss is crying for help.

SURPLUS RAILROAD MAN POWER

Chicago, Aug. 2—With the railroads representing themselves as being desperately in need of help, and all sorts of drastic measures being proposed to remedy the situation, it is strange that so little has been said of the thousands of employes that the roads themselves are hoarding, by keeping them in nonessential work.

I refer to the freight and passenger solicitors. Surely there is no great need for any railroad, and especially western roads, to have solicitors making the rounds for more business. I believe that most of the regular passenger representatives have been put to other more necessary tasks, but most roads are still maintaining full freight soliciting forces. R. R. EMPLOYE

LOW FLYING PLANE

Chicago, July 28 — Last Thursday, about 4 p. m., I was attracted to my office window by the loud approach of an airplane. It was flying so low that I could see the arm of an aviator in the cabin. As it flew over the Manhattan building at 431 S. Dearborn st., it was not higher than 100 feet over the roof of that building. I am quite sure that all citizens who respect the safety of their fellow men agree with me that aviators should be punished whenever flying lower than 1,500 feet. Had the pilot of the B-25 which crashed into the Empire State building observed safety rules many lives would have been saved and much property damage would have been avoided.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL

One of the largest barber shop quartet choruses in America will sing two numbers at the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival to be held Saturday night, Aug. 18, in Soldiers' field. There will be more than 100 men in the group and they'll sing as barber shop men do, not in the style of a glee club.

Frank Thorne

Frank Thorne, vice president of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., who is also vice president of the National Aluminate corporation, will direct the men in two numbers, "After Dark" and "Goodbye, My Coney Island Baby."

Frank, who admits he is over 50 and who weighs close to 200 pounds, got his musical start at the University of Illinois where he played a guitar in the Mandolin and Glee club.

He is one of the Elastic Four which won the national barber shop singing contest in 1942. He gave up bridge and golf for singing.

The men who make up the chorus belong to the Chicago society of the barber shop national organization and they come from all walks of life. Homer Goldman, who sings bass, is an accountant; James Jackson, a lead singer, is a bank cashier; Dr. Leonard Higgins, is a dentist; Thor Knapp is a salesman; Vincent LaBelle works in the city hall, and Henry Krabbe is a stationary engineer. A. L. [Andy] Anderson is the assistant director of the chorus.

The chorus will rehearse at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Morrison hotel. Howard Visel, himself a barber shopper who started his vocal career at the age of 12 singing "Polly Wolly Doodle," takes care of publicity for the Chicago chapter.

Appearing with the chorus in Soldier's field also will be the Misfits, the current national winning group, which will sing two numbers.

Thru the Looking Glass

Our conscience impels us to plead once again with the sun bathers to remember that sun is a mixed blessing for skin and hair. It's good, but only in moderation. In excess, it's positively withering.

The woman whose skin is troublesomely dry all winter is apt to feel, when summer comes, that she is utterly and blissfully free of the trying necessity of oiling her skin. The skin feels moist; it stops flaking; it even feels a little oily. So it's probably only natural that at night she skips her usual routine of slathering it with rich cream and by day submits it to the tanning process.

It's rather fun, but we know from vicarious experience that the skin can wind up the summer with all the softness of leather. It will be more "difficult" than ever when the cold winds blow.

Sun if you must—but don't give up your nightly creaming ritual, even tho your skin feels as tho it didn't actually need it. Massage in your lubricating cream with regularity and with enthusiasm, and you'll be storing up its resistance this winter to all the drying factors.

The same is true with your hair. Oil it before you take a sun bath, even tho it doesn't appear to need it. Oil it afterward, too, and brush it in the summer months as much as you possibly can, especially if you're leading an outdoor life. Better yet, supplement the oiling by wearing a light but loose head covering that protects it from the direct, burning rays. You'll avoid a lot of split ends and uneven color.

Do this with your small daughter's hair, too. Little girls who run bareheaded all summer usually wind up in the fall with hair bleached and dried.

Peach Pickers Tackle State's Bumper Crop

Centralia, Ill., Aug. 8 (AP)—Peach pickin' got into full swing today in the lower reaches of Little Egypt, the heart of the midwest's peach country.

But, despite one of Illinois' largest harvests in the offing, David B. Perrine, president of the National Peach council, predicted a can of peaches will be a scarce item on the grocers' shelves next winter.

The paradox of a bountiful supply yet scarcity was explained by Perrine thus:

"Due to a demand for railroad and truck facilities elsewhere, a general shortage of shipping space and labor, many more peaches will be marketed nearer growing areas, with far away markets suffering. Moreover, the military services will take a sizable cut of the crop.

"There'll be more fresh peaches consumed and, in view of relatively unfavorable reports on other major fruit crops, more home peach canning will be done by those buying in nearby markets. Sugar is short, peaches are sweet, and little sugar is needed for their canning compared with other major fruits.

"From these and other factors I expect that a can of peaches will be hard to get in stores next winter and that the point values will be higher than they are now [80 points for a No. 2 can]."

The Illinois state marketing division concurred with Perrine's analysis. At Anna, Edmund C. Secor, division superintendent, reported the peach harvest was getting into full swing, with the pickers moving northward about 20 miles a day.

The state agency forecast a production of 1,827,000 bushels in Little Egypt, compared with 1,470,000 bushels in 1944 and the 10 year average of 1,239,000.

Growers probably will receive the government ceiling price for No. 1, two inch peaches, but may have trouble in getting ceiling prices for other grades.

The high crop figure may be lowered by last week's violent rain and windstorm—ill-timed to catch older, brittler heavily-laden trees. Grover Rendlemar, Alto Pass grower, said he had expected to harvest 26,000 bushels, but lowered that figure to 20,000 after the storm.

Meanwhile, an army of pickers and packers was being mobilized. Already migrant workers from Missouri and Arkansas have pitched tents in the Anna-Alto Pass-Cobden area, and will move northward with the harvest.

Will Your Child Be As Fortunate As Susy?

Right from the start, Susy's mother has made sure that her daughter gets plenty of sunshine, and a diet adequate in bone-building minerals. Susy's legs will be as strong, straight, and her teeth as sound, as sufficient calcium can make them.

Will your child have these assets? While even sufficient calcium cannot correct bowed legs after a child is three, an adequate supply is important right through life to keep bones sturdy and help the child look his best. That's one of the main reasons why doctors advise that children get plenty of milk...the best food source of calcium.

However, as children get older, they are often reluctant to drink all the milk they should have.

That's where Cocomalt can prove invaluable. For Cocomalt gives milk a delicious chocolaty flavor that children love. And Cocomalt* is so rich in calcium, it makes 3 glasses of milk equal to a whole quart in calcium value. (Also supplies the day's entire minimum requirements for iron, phosphorus, Vitamins B1 and D.)

Start your children on Cocomalt today. Save this as a reminder to order from your grocer.

Reap Victory Garden Harvest

There's many a savory dish you can prepare from the green peppers you will be getting out of your Victory garden in the weeks to come. Practically every one of them will help you stretch meat points and they'll give plenty of eating enjoyment to your family, too. The secret of their good flavor is in the seasonings and stuffings you put into them.

B-V Stuffed Peppers . . . are summer point stretchers

Brown in — ½ lb. ground beef; 2 tbsp. fat
Add — ½ cup chopped onion; ½ cup chopped celery; 1¾ cups sieved tomatoes; 1¾ cups cooked rice; 1½ tsp. salt; ½ tsp. pepper; 1 tsp. sugar; dash of nutmeg or mace; ½ bay leaf; 3 whole cloves; sprig of parsley; 3 tsp. WILSON'S B-V dissolved in a small amount of hot liquid.
Sprinkle 2 tbsp. flour over the top.

Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 15 min., stirring occasionally. Remove cloves and bay leaf.

Wash 6 green peppers, cut off tops, remove seeds, drop into boiling water and boil one minute.

Drain peppers, stuff with cooked mixture and top with mixture of 4 tbsp. bread crumbs, 2 tbsp. CERTIFIED MARGARINE, 4 tbsp. grated CERTIFIED CHEESE (optional)

Stretch Meat Flavor

A little meat goes a long way to point up the flavor of any stuffing for green peppers when you use Wilson's B-V to add meat flavor to the rice, bread crumbs or what have you.

With stuffed peppers as the main dish, you'll like Harvard beets, a green salad, crisp rolls and a fresh peach cobbler for dessert.

Even though there is no meat for making gravy, you can still cater to your family's taste for good rich brown gravy by keeping B-V on your pantry shelf.

Have you ever thought of using Certified Deviled Ham in making stuffed peppers? It's mighty tasty, easy on the points . . . and convenient as well since you can always have it on hand.

Yours for tasty stretchers,

George Rector

Dates Are Set for 3 Weddings on North Shore

BY JUDITH CASS

DATES have been set for three weddings which will be of interest along the north shore.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Madeleine Sheridan and Lt. [j. g.] John McKibbin Bigelow of the navy reserve, at 4:30 p. m. Aug. 25 in St. Mark's church, Evanston. A reception will follow in the Evanston home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Sheridan.

Lt. Bigelow, son of Mrs. Charles H. Bigelow and the late Mr. Bigelow of St. Paul, Minn., returned to this country July 3 after 15 months of overseas service and is stationed in Orange, Tex. After his 30 day leave ends, he will take his bride to Norfolk, Va., to await new orders.

Miss Sheridan will be attended by four former Roycemore classmates, Miss Katherine Stockton, Miss Catharine Remy, Miss Helene Kimball, and Miss Jean Farley, and by two Smith college friends, Miss Barbara McClurg, and Miss Sarah P. Meigs of Chestnut Hill, Mass., who was her college roommate. Miss McClurg, who is spending the summer in Prouts Neck, Me., with her mother, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, will fly to Chicago with Miss Meigs, who visited her earlier this season. Lt. Bigelow, a graduate of St. Paul's academy in St. Paul and of Princeton university, will have Ensign John H. C. Reid of St. Paul as best man. Miss Sheridan also was graduated from Miss Master's school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

Other Wedding Dates

Since Charles Nevitt expects to have a short leave soon from his coast guard reserve duties in the Atlantic, where he has been serving as a boatswain's mate first class, he and his fiancée, Miss Kay Lyon, tentatively have set Sept. 12 as their wedding date. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 p. m. in the Winnetka Congregational church, with a reception following in the Winnetka home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyon. Mr. Nevitt, who has been in the service for nearly four years, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Nevitt of Oshkosh, Wis.

Miss Margaret Allan Strale, daughter of Mrs. Charles Stoddard Williston of Evanston, and Edwin R. Eckersall have set Sept. 15 as their wedding date. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 p. m. in the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth, with a home reception following.

Mrs. Harold W. McGraw Jr. will come from Dayton, O., to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Jane Brummel, Miss Jean McDowney, and Mrs. Norman J. Westerhold Jr. As best man the bridegroom will have his brother, Raymond Eckersall, whose little daughter, Barbara, is to be flower girl. After two weeks at the Homestead in Virginia Hot Springs, Mr. Eckersall and his bride will be at home in Evanston. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse B. Eckersall.

On the Calendar

Sgt. John Yeomans, who is at home on a 30 day furlough after 15 months of service in Germany, will receive with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yeomans, and his sister, Carol, this afternoon at a tea that will be Miss Yeomans' informal introduction to adult society. The party, set for 4 to 7 p. m. in the Yeomans home in Winnetka, will be held outdoors if weather permits. Miss Yeomans attends the University of Chicago. Her brother will report to Camp Campbell, Ky., to train for Pacific duty when his furlough is over.

Plans for an annual stock-raising party for the White Elephant Rummage shop, to be held Sept. 6 in the Lake Forest home of Miss Gwethalyn Jones, will be completed when the committee meets Monday. Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. T. Philip Swift are co-chairmen of the benefit. In the little shop at 27 E. Ohio st. the committee raises money for Children's Memorial hospital.

College Girls Lead Way in Fashion Trend

BY REA SEEGER

Important new fashions originate in the annual college fashion showings; the proof is incontestable! New colors, new color contrasts or combinations, new costume accessories, and such little things as the way a collar is cut or worn, and the way sleeves are pushed or pulled up or down, start trends that are as revolutionary as anything new in hats.

This year the college girls have stamped their official approval on gray, making it not the old color of fashion history, but a swank young tone for all purpose coats, suits, and dresses — as well as for separate skirts, jackets, sweaters, and college going hats.

Among other approved items are hats. The hats are not any of the sensationally high wide and big affairs that are going to the heads of smart women beyond the college age. But they are definitely hats. They are visible creations, not just dinks or skull caps or the long forgotten beannies. They are brimmed models, many of them with appreciably higher crowns. Evidently the scarf tied headlines are out.

Suits of the classic two piece models are going strong. These, too, are soft and typically feminine. Lots of them have the newer extra wide sleeve armholes, many of them a la Adrian with intricate motifs of inset bands in contrasting color up around the chest. The soft woolens make the most attractive two piecers. The jacket is usually of bright color and the skirt in dark contrast. The dark skirts can do double duty with jackets of any other color, or with monotones in tweed and wool mixtures.

In direct contrast, but worn in much the same manner are the many smartly detailed one piece dresses. They are the sort of clothes you wear on the street, in town, and for classrooms. They're made in coat silhouette. Some are tailored with pockets, others with dressmaker details such as bows, flashing buttons, and some have both the pockets and the softer details.

And, while the sweaters and skirts go on with nine fashion lives, the one piece dresses are making impressive records as college costumes, racing neckline to neckline for popularity with the sweater outfits.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Court of Office Relations

Of the various irks which fret office workers, none is more tiresome than the attitude of the person who assures every one she "doesn't have to work." Such an employe works in the office of one of our readers, a large organization where others are engaged in earning a living.

The woman in question is a mature person, old enough to know better. Yet, endlessly she tells every one within reach of her voice that she is merely working to pay her houseman and the taxes on her large income. The other gals in the office have nicknamed her "the Duchess," which should have taken care of the matter rather neatly. Apparently it did not. Now they wonder what can be done.

Very little. As a matter of record, the case is an uncommon one. Studies indicate that the employed woman who does not have a sound economic reason for working is a rarity. A recent survey made by the women's bureau of the department of labor showed that three-fourths of the women who hold jobs in the Detroit area must continue working after the war to provide a livelihood for themselves and dependents. Surveys in other areas have produced similar data. So, the woman who makes a big point of not needing to work, and yet does work, is in too small a minority to affect seriously the trend of women in business.

Teaching Child Unselfishness Is Slow Work

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I want my child to be unselfish," says many a mother. "My tiny little daughter won't share her toys. I want to train her to be unselfish," others say.

You can't start early and do an intensive, conscientious job in training your child to be unselfish. It isn't brought about in that way. Like all character-training it's a gradual process, and can only go forward as far and as fast as a child's development will permit. There are times in his growth and maturity, or immaturity, when he seems to be lacking in traits we desire for him, and among these is unselfishness.

Parents so often are distressed over this sort of thing in their small children, as small as 18 months and 2 years of age. "My little girl is so selfish. She won't share her toys. I don't want her to grow up like this," I hear. Well, she won't, necessarily; these are her first contacts with another little human being, and "give and take" is one of the big lessons she has to learn. So it isn't selfishness when she doesn't instantly give her best loved dolly—or furry animal—to a "young visitor."

Also I hear, "My little boy is so selfish. He doesn't want his baby sister to have anything of his," with further details. He may be selfish, but it depends a lot on his age and on circumstances whether we rightly call his behavior by that name. He may, for instance, also have been cast very much in the shade by the baby's arrival, and this may be merely his effort to hold on to what he feels is his materially, since he is deprived of love and attention.

Distress often is felt, too, by parents, over the self-centeredness of children in adolescence, or during the "gang age," and it's interpreted as utter selfishness. To be sure, a child may be selfish at these times in his life, but some allowances have to be made, too. If you understand a child's needs at certain ages, you will be able to discern what is real selfishness and what is not.

Hugh Thompson's Grant Park Debut Improves the Outlook on Topflight Baritones

The outlook in up and coming baritones improved considerably last night when Hugh Thompson made his local concert début with the Grant Park Symphony orchestra under the guest direction of Ignace Strasfogel. Mr. Thompson attracted attention during the last visit of the Metropolitan Opera, tho he appeared only in such newcomer's roles as the herald in "Lohengrin," one of the sons in "Coq d'Or," and a minnesinger in "Die Meistersinger." But stepping out in stellar style he looks like the best thing in the baritone line since the début of Lawrence Tibbett. He is another tall young American with a resonant voice of full operatic range, a genuine flair for songs, and a gift of characterization that leans refreshingly toward the sardonic. This is no crooning baritone, velvet edged, but a man with an edge on his voice and an unmistakably masculine timbre in his song.

With the orchestra, he sang the lyrical "Vision fugitive" from Massenet's "Hérodiade" and the swashbuckling Toreador's song from Bizet's "Carmen" and he sang them extraordinarily well. My particular admiration went to h's Escamillo, because that is a role opera has not been able to fill very well of late, and this remarkable young man might fit those Spanish shoes superbly. Even now, at the threshold of his career, he made the aria tingle with unforced brilliance.

His songs to Robert Macdonald's accompaniment paid the audience the courtesy of careful concert choice, and the audience responded with requests for more. Griffes' "By a Lonely Forest Pathway" was less lyrical than it must be for complete success, but Sacco's song of "Spanish Johnny," who played his mandolin to the day he was hanged, had zest and true characterization. Quilter's "Fill a Glass with Golden Wine" caught the cynicism beneath the purple prose, the spiritual, "Honor! Honor!" has humor layers deep in melody, and Malashkin's "Oh, Could I But Express in Song" was superbly sung in the style that made it one of Chaliapin's triumphs. The only encore I could hear was a tale of an opera singer reduced to selling hot dogs, a shameless punster who sang woefully of having gone to the dogs. It sounded a little like Tibbett's song about the man who used to run the drug store, droll if you can get away with it.

Mr. Strasfogel, who is assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic, is in all truth not a very interesting baton wielder. At least, not on the heels of Pierre Monteux. He opened with Rossini's Overture to "William Tell," which was fair, then played Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet," which wasn't. Chabrier's "Espana" was tucked in, too, but it was a sadly confused rhapsody.

INSTALMENT XVI.

ORDERED OUT

"I'm not trying to run the ranch or decide its policies," Ben said to his father. "This is a personal matter. I'm telling you that the Applegates are our kin. We can't forget that. It's not reasonable to like them one day and hate them the next because you say we must."

"I don't care whether you hate them," the old man broke out. "What I'm saying is that you are not going to have anything to do with them. That's an order."

"I'm sorry that I can't obey your order."

"What?" Jeff demanded.

"I'm a man," Ben told him quietly. "Free and 21. I'll go with you far as I can, but I won't follow you when I know you are wrong. You ask too much."

Ben walked out of the room. He realized that he had only made matters worse for Mary and the children.

Ben Randall drew up at the Bar B B ranch house and shouted, "Hello, the house!" He was very tired from the long ride, and his side was aching.

Linda answered the call. Her sleeves were rolled up to the elbows and there were dabs of flour on the forearms. She had been making apple pies.

He turned on her his winning smile. "I've come to take an interest in you, so you can't hurt my feelings," he said.

The eyes of the girl lit. She was much pleased that he had not joined the animosity of his father.

"Does Uncle Jeff know about this interest you are taking?" she asked.

"I mentioned it to him. He told me to get out of there and not come back."

Mirth fled from the girl's face. "O, Ben, you mustn't quarrel with Uncle Jeff. Even tho he is wrong, still he's your father."

"The quarreling has all been done, and it was one-sided. I was meek as a lamb—tried to reason with him. He wouldn't have it."

"I'm so sorry you had trouble on our account," she cried.

"I didn't. It was on my own account. If a man is pushed to the wall he has to stand on his feet and say his piece. I said mine. I wasn't going to let him bully me into siding against you-all. Mary feels as I do, but her hands are tied."

He swung slowly and heavily from the saddle. She ran forward to help him, distressed at his condition. Leaning on her, he got into the house. He lowered himself into an armchair.

Her brothers were breaking horses in the corral. She ran to the door and called them. Brand was fastening a saddle cinch on a colt. He left the other men and moved to the fence.

"I'd better get Doc Bradley," he told his sister a few minutes later. "Ben looks like a mighty sick man to me. He was crazy to ride so far."

It was 10 days before young Randall left the bed.

"We're turning this ranch into a hospital," he said to Linda one day. "I should think you'd hate to see a guy ride up to the house for fear he would fall off his horse and say, 'Nurse me'."

"I hope you'll be the last," she admitted.

"I reckon nobody has heard anything of Sherrill since he left Redrock on Prop's gray," he said.

"Yes, he's back at his ranch. I didn't tell you while you were so sick. He came in on the stage one night and had supper with the Humphreys. While he was there somebody shot the horse he had tied in front of the house."

Ben looked worried. "Do they say father had it done?"

"No-o. Bill Cairns was in town. He had words with Sherrill. Folks think he did it, but there was no proof."

Ben was silent for a minute. "Funny how one step leads to another. If I hadn't happened to be at the Pitchfork when word came that the nesters were going to cut the fence that night I wouldn't be lying here, Sherrill wouldn't have been hunted, and you wouldn't have had to look after him. Father wouldn't have got mad at you and then at me. All the trouble since then flared up from that one night."

She shook her head. "No. It was coming anyhow. I see that now. You just set a match to an explosion ready to go off."

"Maybe. I wish I could have got along without leaving the Diamond Tail, but I don't see how I could. You know how bullheaded father is. In his mind he'll pile the quarrel with me on top of everything else. I'm scared to think what he will do."

"You don't mean against you or us?"

"O, no! He'll take it out on the homesteaders, or on one of them. On Sherrill probably. He'll blame him for everything that has gone wrong."

Their eyes met. He did not want to tell Linda what he feared. He was thinking of Quint Milroy, the quiet deadly killer who had dropped in at the Diamond Tail and gone on its pay roll. Ben did not believe his father had hired the man to shoot down his foes. But given such a handy tool in the state of mind to which Jeff Randall had worked himself, what more likely than that the old man would use the gunman to rub out the leader of those interfering with what he considered his rights?

"Is there anything we can do about it?" Linda asked.

"Not a thing."

"So we've got to sit here and let murder be done," the girl cried unhappily.

"It may not come to that. If he is on his ranch he won't take any chances."

"How can he help it, if somebody lies in the brush waiting to get him? There must be a way to stop it. What's the law for? Why doesn't Tim Humphreys do something?"

"What can he do? The law moves only after crime has been committed, not before."

"So we had better just forget the whole thing and let your father kill Bruce Sherrill," she said bitterly, in a surge of revolt.

He looked at his cousin, a new thought back of the watchful eyes. Was it possible she had any interest in Sherrill outside of that dictated by impersonal humanity?

Take Brush-Off for What It Is, Girl Is Urged

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

on the SOLID side

Sometimes a fellow can be completely frank with a girl, tell her that everything is over between them, that he has found other ways to spend his week-ends, and even that he has crossed her phone number from his list, and she still refuses to believe him. Because she still has stars in her eyes and is thinking of life and love in terms of twos, she just can't make herself see that things are not as they were before.

Here's a letter from a young character who can't quite face that brush-off: "For about two months I went with a boy and I'm afraid I really fell for him. From the way he acted, I wasn't the only one who had taken a tumble. He called me every afternoon and came to see me every night. When he asked me to wear his ring he told me that he was crazy about me and asked me not to go out with other fellows and he wouldn't go out with other girls. This all sounds wonderful, I know, and it still is as far as I'm concerned, but a few nights ago something happened. He told me that he could make me very angry if he wanted to, and just jokingly, I said to him, "Who is she?". To my surprise he named a girl and told me that he likes her very much. I gave him back his ring immediately, more from pride than real anger, tho he told me to keep it. Love is something that can't be turned on and off like running water, so why should he change so suddenly? I did nothing to make him loose interest in me. I'm still crazy about him and pride or no pride, I'd still go back to him if he wanted me. . . ."

Love isn't something you feel on Monday and forget by Friday . . . but who mentioned love? When the boy said he was "crazy about you," he probably meant it, but that statement alone doesn't tie him down with a lifetime contract. Too often gals are already thinking into a home-and-hearth-side future with income tax made out for two when boys are still thinking in the "let's have fun together" department. It may take some time to shake the star dust out of your eyes to see that this is the end, but the sooner you turn your dating interests to some other young character, the easier it will be for you. Try not to brood about this brush-off, but keep yourself as busy as you can and whatever you do, don't try to contact your ex-glow boy to discuss "what happened to us." As long as you won't be spending your Friday evenings with him any more, it's always good to have your pride to keep you company.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead, queen of diamonds.

The technique of blocking out a long suit in dummy by refusal to take an ace in the early rounds of play is well known to the average player. In fact, it might be said that it is too well known, for in many cases it is overdone.

There are other ways of shutting out the dummy that are not so frequent in occurrence. Today's hand offered West the opportunity to exercise one of those rare coups. The bidding was quite orthodox. Note that South did not open with a bid of two hearts, merely because he had six honor tricks. Such a bid would be highly improper, since it would be forcing to game and if North happened to have nothing, a violent disaster could easily result. It is unnecessary to bid more than one, since if North has something he will keep the bidding open and if he hasn't a trick you might just as well play it for a part score. The better strategic opening with this hand, however, is one club since it makes it somewhat easier for partner to respond if he happens to have a very weak hand that contains some length in diamonds. In other words it permits a response of one diamond, where partner might fear to bid two diamonds over one heart.

West opened the queen of diamonds and declarer saw that he would have to bring in the spade suit in order to fulfill contract. He therefore led the nine of spades and let it ride. East permitted this trick to hold in an effort to shut out the dummy and the spade suit had to be abandoned by declarer. The only hope for a ninth trick now rested with the club suit. When it broke fortunately the fourth club stood up.

West had missed the opportunity to become a hero. On the first lead of spades he should have played the queen and declarer would have been rendered helpless. If he took it with the ace, East could win the second trick with the king. If the queen were permitted to hold, declarer would obviously be held to only one spade trick. In point of fact he would probably be held to no spade tricks, because on the next round it is a moral certainty that he would finesse the spade and be permanently shut out of dummy.

5,000 Orphans and Oldsters Revel at Picnic

Joy and sunshine and clowns, plus 1,000 gallons of soft drinks, 5,000 boxes of crackerjack, and 6,000 ice cream bars! There you have the story of the 41st annual outing that the Orphans' Automobile Day association gave 5,000 orphans, crippled children, and old folks in Lincoln park yesterday.

It was a homecoming, a return to a park filled with memories for the elderly men and women hosts after four years of holding the picnic elsewhere.

Traditional "perfect weather" prevailed. The sun has always smiled on the outing, but association members admitted a bit of superstitious anxiety this year when they advanced the date one week.

It was a day of entertainment, ranging from a concert in the morning by the band from St. Mary's Training school in Des Plaines to specialty acts in the afternoon by professional artists who donated their time and talent.

"From four youngsters to 5,000 members, volunteers, and guests" was the way Si Mayer, 76, former secretary of the police department, summarized his 41 years of association with the event, originated by the late A. J. Banta, pioneer Chicago automobile dealer, to give orphans that novel treat: an automobile ride.

As a result of that idea, residents of 50 institutions and homes in Chicago and Cook county, besides 250 crippled children, participated in the 1945 day of fun. Motorists contributed 876 cars and precious gas rations to keep intact the record of the outing for the children and the aged.

Association members, "40 men with a hobby," raised $5,000 to finance the party. As part of their labor of love, the members transported benches, tables, and chairs for the picnic.

Available at all times was a trailer where Dr. Peter H. Furno, member for 24 years, was on hand to care for the bumps, cuts, and inevitable indigestion that comes with eating too much, too often, and too fast.

Hobart J. Thurber, commissary chairman, sent treats to St. Hedwig's Industrial school in Niles, where a measles quarantine kept its residents from the picnic.

Here and There

Capt. and Mrs. John Stuart Walworth became the parents of a second daughter, Ann Stuart, July 28 in Detroit, Mich., where Capt. Walworth is stationed with the army. The baby and her 3 year old sister, Jane Armstrong, are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walworth of Evanston and of the Daniel Benninghovens of Chicago. The senior Mrs. Walworth is in Detroit at present, and the Benninghovens plan to go there Aug. 18 to meet their new grandchildren.

Back in civilian clothes is Comdr. John L. Clarkson of the naval reserve, who has given up his duties as head of officer procurement for the 8th naval district and been retired to inactive duty. Comdr. and Mrs. Clarkson returned last month from New Orleans, where he was stationed, and have opened their Lake Forest home. Their son, Lt. John Boylston of the naval reserve, is awaiting overseas orders in the east. His wife and baby are with him near Philadelphia.

Serving in Germany with the army's economic division is Maj. James R. Addington. He served in Canada and Alaska for two and a half years.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 8—Barbara Stanwyck and Dennis Morgan will do "Cry Wolf" for Warner Bros. as fast as Catherine Turney, who's been put on the script, can roll it out. There's gold in that thar combination, what with the fans yammering for more and more. . . . And Metro's planning "Army Brat" for Butch Jenkins and Sharon McManus. It's packed with laughs and is from the novel by Thomas D. Wadelton and Joe Harrington. Also hear Metro has signed Victor Saville to a three year directing contract. He'll start off with "Sea of Grass"—and what a story!—with Spencer Tracy. There's been talk of Katharine Hepburn for that one, too.

This and That in Movieland

Helen Forrest waited a full year for a phone which was installed yesterday, with Dinah Shore on the other half of the line. . . . Janet Blair's husband is due for his army discharge any day now. . . . Irene

That Man of Mystery

When Richard Himber, Art Stein, and Phil Rapp got together on their show, "Abracadabra," which opens on Broadway this fall, Orson Welles provided the magic routines. One of his tricks makes use of a movie screen. It's original and unique, naturally. Wish we could tell you about it, but it's a secret. Orson will be technical director of the show, which is a play within a play idea, with Himber playing the role of an author trying to sell his show. . . . Jinx Falkenburg McCrary didn't feel it was a hoodoo when she lost her ruby wedding band while water-skiing in Palermo. Said Jinx, "Tex and I didn't have time to buy another, so I'm going shopping for one here." When we told her we heard Tex is in Guam, she replied: "O, is he? I'm so glad he's arrived! You know, Tex and I and my brother and Doris Duke had more fun just a week ago today at a dinner in Rome—how time flies!" Time and people!

The House That Jack Built

If ever movie jack has been honestly earned, it's the salary Alan Ladd is putting into that house he and Sue will build soon on their acreage in Holmby Hills. Alan spends most of his spare time there with an architect going over plans. The house will be a Norwegian peasant type, a sprawling building all on one floor, with a covered passage right thru the center which will give a lovely vista of tree-wooded slopes. Down-to-earth Alan wants a home he and Sue and the three children can really live in and enjoy.

Acting That's Really Acting

Nobody plays those charming all-American characters like Elizabeth Patterson—you want to hug her. In "Lady on a Train" we saw her do a meanie role so magnificently our heart was lost to her again—this time to sheer acting. Patty tells me she'll play the mother role in "Concerto." The story covers a period of 20 years and is an ambitious movie debut for Catherine McLeod, whose role runs from the age of 16 until her daughter is in her teens. . . . Helen Deutsch turned down a juicy offer from Paramount to write three a year and supervise 'em if she wished. She'll do one at that studio and one for Metro, limiting herself to two a year on a free lance basis. She wangled $100,000 for "As You Want Me," an original, which helps clarify her stand.

The First 75 Years

According to Harry Davenport, show business is straight sailing after the first 75 years. Harry, who started in Philadelphia at the age of 5, will celebrate his 80th birthday in January. He's the life of the "As It Was Before" cast at Universal.

Doris Blake's Letter Box

"Dear Miss Blake: Does a married man respect a girl who sneaks and sees him without her family or any one knowing about it? She lies and alibis at home, and pretends indifference to him in the office, for they work together.

"WONDERING"

No one respects or admires a liar and a sneak. Sooner or later he'll tire of the shabbiness of the whole thing, be talked about by his friends and associates, to say nothing of the unhappiness he would bring to his family, and then he'll hate her. If you're the girl, take a tip from us and break off with the man at once.

CUBS BEAT BRAVES TWICE, 5-2, 3-2; SOX WIN

PRIM AND WYSE BOOST LEAD OF NORTH SIDERS

Second Game Goes 12 Innings

BY EDWARD BURNS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 8—The Cubs breezed to a 16 hit, 5 to 2 victory behind Ray Prim for the lefty's eighth success of the year, in the first game of a double header today with the Braves. In the second game the Cubs had to work harder, going thru the 12th inning before Hank Wyse was rewarded with his 17th triumph of the season, a 3 to 2 decision, in which the Cubs knocked 15 hits for their three runs, one of which was a homer by Phil Cavarretta.

Starter Nate Andrews, twice the conqueror of the Cubs, was the victim of the first affair. Reliever Mort Cooper suffered his third defeat in the second game which was won with two out in the 12th when Lennie Merullo, hitless up to that point, singled to drive home Andy Pafko, who had doubled for his first hit of the prolonged encounter.

During the second game, Cavarretta, who made two doubles and two singles in five times at bat and a homer and a single his second and third time up in the second game, was briefly the National league batting leader. However, Tommy Holmes resumed the lead, which he had held most of the season by making a single and two doubles. At day's end Holmes was batting .367, Cavarretta .363.

Nicholson Hits 10th Homer

The two victories gave the Cubs a record of 16 out of their last 17 road games and 33 victories in their last 39 National league contests.

The teams will play a single game tomorrow, Paul Derringer and Bill Lee will be the opposing pitchers.

After wasting several opportunities, the Cubs finally scored in the third inning of the first game, this being brought about thru Don Johnson's second single and Cavarretta's double. The advantage lasted only until the Braves came to bat in their half of the third. The 1 to 1 tie came about thru a pass to Dick Culler, a single by Whitey Wietelmann and Holmes' fly ball.

Bill Nicholson put Chicago ahead with his 16th home run of the season in the fourth inning. The Braves trailed, 4 to 1, in the fifth. With one down Johnson connected for his third single and after Peanuts Lowrey popped to Wietelmann Cavarretta also singled. Pafko's double accounted for the two runs.

Cavarretta Scores in Ninth

Cavarretta doubled at the start of the ninth inning, went to third on Pafko's sacrifice and scored on Nicholson's double.

Cavarretta started the Cubs on the way to victory in the fourth inning of the second game when he hit the first pitch for a home run. Butch Nieman equaled Cavarretta's feat when he led off the fifth inning with a home run.

The Cubs took a 2 to 1 lead in the sixth. Lowrey opened with a single and stopped at second on Cavarretta's single. Pafko sacrificed and the bases were filled when Tobin threw late in an effort to force Lowrey at third. The run counted on Nicholson's fly to Nieman.

The Braves tied the game in the home sixth on Culler's single and Holmes' double to right. The contest remained at 2 to 2 until the 12th when Pafko and Merullo parlayed a double and a single to supply the winning margin.

JOHN LEHMAN WINS HY JINKS GOLF TOURNEY

Two hundred six-five members and guests, including Gov. Dwight Green, participated in the annual Hy Jinks tournament at the Edgewater golf club yesterday. Johnny Lehman of the home club won the low gross event with a 71. Tied for second with 76 were: Al Ciary, Edgewater; H. D. Fargo Jr., Edgewater, and T. W. Earls, Cincinnati. G. A. Althaus, Edgewater, with 88—22—66; R. H. Campbell, Edgewater, with 80—14—66, and Tom Kelly, Westward Ho, with 80—14—66, tied for the low net prize.

Thrills

It seems that what we ask of life
Too often is a passing thrill,
Some swift elation that enfolds
And captivates our vagrant will;
But sturdy strength is not for him

There is a plainer fare that serves
And nourishes our constant needs.

Life still has gracious gifts to share
With him who walks in steadfast ways
And seeks with questing faith to find

BY WILFRID SMITH

Jim Dewar, Indiana university half back three years ago, whose home is in Oak Park, returns to the All-Star football competition sponsored this month for the 12th time by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Dewar will have a place on the squad which reports Sunday at Northwestern university to begin preparations for the battle with the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Football league, in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 30.

Dewar was prevented by injuries from playing against the Chicago Bears a year ago. Since then he has seen service overseas and now, as a result of his military leave, he will be on hand to greet Bernie Bierman, head of the All-Star coaches, and his assistants. Other members of the college group to be announced this morning are Sam Gray, Tulsa, and Merle Gibson, Texas Christian, ends; Frank Loop, Wisconsin; Monte Moncrief, Texas A. & M., and Clyde Johnson, Kentucky, tackles.

Dewar is rated by Bo McMillin, Indiana coach, as one of the best young players the Hoosiers ever have had. He still hopes to return to Bloomington and finish his span of collegiate competition. Now 22 years of age, Dewar weighs 190 pounds and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He has lost no part of his ability as a hard driving ball carrier, and he would have had a share in last year's All-Star game except for a knee injury received in practice.

Another Return Engagement

Moncrief, whose home is in Dallas, Tex., and who played two years at Texas A. & M., and captained last year's team, is another who makes a return engagement to the All-Stars. Moncrief is a dependable tackle, aggressive and an accurate blocker, who knows well how to use his 200 pounds. He is studying veterinary medicine. At the end of last season, Moncrief played on the West team against the East in the annual game in San Francisco and was elected captain of his team. Monte is 20 years of age and is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

Johnson, who played tackle three years for the University of Kentucky, is the largest member of the All-Star squad. Clyde weighs 265 pounds. He is 27 years of age, wears a 48 jersey, and is 6 feet 6 inches tall. He matriculated at Kentucky after playing on the Ashland, Ky., High school eleven and since his graduation—he received a bachelor of arts degree—he has served as an instructor in the infantry school at Ft. Benning, Ga. He entered service May 6, 1943.

Loop played tackle two years at the University of Wisconsin. He also received a varsity letter as a wrestler. He is 26, weighs 225 pounds, and is 6 feet 1 inch tall. Loop's home is in Gilbert, Minn. Entering the army in January, 1942, Frank now is a master sergeant and is stationed at Drew

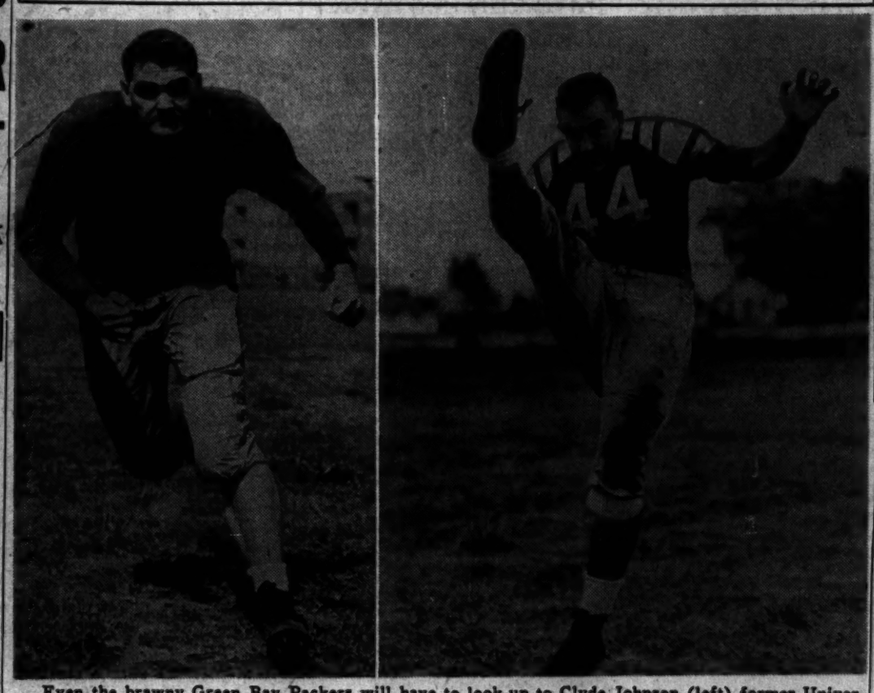
THEY'LL CONCEDE PACKERS NOTHING



Even the brawny Green Bay Packers will have to look up to Clyde Johnson (left) former University of Kentucky tackle, who will be a member of the College All-Stars squad for the annual game in Soldiers' field Aug. 30. Titan Hanover Wins $51,046 Hambletonian in Two Heats

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—E. Roland Harriman's long quest for a triumph in the Hambletonian ended today when Titan Hanover carried the silks of the New York financier and his nephew, Maj. Elbridge T. Gerry, to a straight heat victory in the rich trotting horse feature at Good Time Park.

Holder of the world record for 2 year olds, unbeaten in 10 previous races and such an outstanding choice to whip his 18 rivals that he was barred in the wagering, the little bay 3 year old colt proved his class to the satisfaction of a crowd of 14,288, which wagered $246,832, a new record for the track.

Under the guidance of Harry Pownall, Titan trotted the first mile in 2:04¾ to finish a length in front of Axomite from Octave Blake's Newport stock farm of Plainfield, N. J., and came back with a 2:04 performance in the second heat to wind up three lengths in advance of Kimberly Hanover, owned by Lt. Col. Dunbar Bostwick of New York.

Worth $27,608 to Winner

The triumph over the largest field ever to start in the event was worth $27,608.33 and boosted Titan's total earnings to $60,000. The race, richest since 1932, had a gross value of $51,046.96.

Titan Hanover, a son of Calumet Chuck that Harriman and Gerry took out of the yearling sales for $3,000, proved his right to stardom in the first heat.

Pownall was content to let Titan trot in fourth place, 6 lengths off the pace, as Kimberly hit the first quarter pole in 31⅝ seconds and the half mile mark in 1:03. Then he gave the colt his head and they swung past the three-quarter marker in 1:34 with a comfortable lead and stepped the last 440 yards in 30 seconds as Axomite, driven by Fenner Hawkins, came from far back to offer an argument. Mighty Ned, hope of Joseph Burke of Plainfield, N. J., was third, three lengths farther back.

Second Heat Is Breeze

The second heat was decided before the field reached the first turn of the triangular track. Kimberly Hanover was in front for a few strides but Titan quickly moved into command and withstood every challenge.

The final distribution of the purse split second and third money between Kimberly Hanover and Axomite. Second was worth $10,039.39 and third $6,023.63. Fourth of $3,011.82 went to Mighty Ned and fifth of $2,007.88 to E. J. Baker's Doctor Spencer from St Charles, Ill.

With Titan Hanover barred from the betting, the pay-offs in the parimutuels went to the next three horses. In the first heat Axomite returned $9.90, $4.50, and $3.60 across the board, Mighty Ned paid $7.50 and $4, and Doctor Spencer $10.50.

The pay-off in the second heat was: Kimberly Hanover, $17.40, $7.10, and $4.10; Mighty Ned, $4.50 and $3.10; Voltite, $3, and Doctor Spencer, $2.90.

Leading the field on the No. 3 course were O. W. Clifton and F. Wagner, who tied for low gross with 74.

TRAINER, GROOM SUSPENDED ON DOPING CHARGE

Clement Nance, secretary of the Illinois Racing board, said yesterday that stewards have uncovered the first instance of doping on a Chicago race track in several years.

"The test given the 7 year old horse Mai-High, owned by W. W. Guernsey of Kansas City, Mo., showed positive, it was revealed, and traces of benzedrine were discovered. As a result, M. C. Goodsell, trainer, and Joe Grattan, groom, were suspended, the purse taken away from Owner Guernsey and an order issued preventing any of the other Guernsey horses from starting until clarification comes.

DURAZNA, ARMED SCORE SHERIDAN STAKE VICTORIES

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Durazna and Armed, a daughter and son of Bull Lea, each 4 years old, made selected fields of highly regarded sprinters look like bands of platers in two divisions of the $15,000 added Sheridan handicap yesterday at Washington Park.

Durazna, owned by Brownell Combs of Lexington, Ky., and ridden by George Woolf, took the first flight and its purse of $11,200 by seven lengths over her closest pursuer, the Brolite farm's Challenge Me, piloted by Willie Bailey. Leon Tikulski's Bolus was third.

Fifth Victory for Armed

Armed, the Calumet farm's sensational gelding, winner of his four previous starts, took the second division and its purse of $11,050 by an eight length margin over Mrs. Frank Nugent's Espino Gold, a 30 to 1 affair in an eight horse field which included J. H. Rouse's speedy Three Dots. Three Dots had all it could do to take third from A. S. Higgins' Quizzle, a 40 to 1 shot.

Armed's time for the seven furlongs was 1:23 4-5, a fifth of a second faster than Durazna's. The track record is 1:22 3-5, made by Calumet's Twilight Tear last year.

Durazna went postward the third choice behind Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Ariel Lad, and Nick Burger's Traffic Court and paid $10.20, $5.80, and $4.40 across the board. Challenge Me returned $12 to place and $8.20 to show. Bolus paid $6.80 to show. Armed was the favorite of the crowd of 20,000 and rewarded his backers with $4.80, $3.60, and $2.60. Espino Gold paid $14.40 and $5.40. Three Dots paid $2.60.

Occupy Sets Pace, Then Fades

Durazna broke out of the gate a head behind John Marsch's Occupy which made a good race of it until they hit the stretch, then came apart and finished seventh, beating only Amber Light and Traffic Court.

Woolf, who hadn't been able to find the winner's circle during the entire Arlington-Washington Park meeting, moved Durazna into the lead just after completing three-sixteenths and led the rest of the way.

The second section, while eventually the same sort of a finish, was much better run most of the way. Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue led at first but soon gave way to Herbert M. Woolf's Signator which ran the same sort of a race that Occupy did in the first division. Signator, with Billy Nichols up, held the lead until they came out of the stretch turn, then folded and finished sixth in the eight horse field.

The daily double was worth $202.60 on victories by the Brolite farm's Me Again at $9.40 in the first race, and Rivermont ranch's Commiseration at $28.80 in the second.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

James Dykes' hope wreckers, officially known as the White Sox, continued to meddle in the American League pennant race last evening by demonstrating so boisterously that the second place Senators were forced to abandon, for the moment, all thoughts of moving in on the top place Tigers. The Sox, seemingly intent on doing their best before 34,647 constituents, turned loose 18 hits for a 7 to 3 success that boosted them to four and one half games from the pacemakers.

The Sox' defensive weapon was Earl Caldwell, the 40 year old youth who thrives on electric light. Altho shaky at the outset when he caused the constituents some consternation by yielding two runs, the big Texan settled down quickly and wasn't nicked for another run until the ninth, by which time a lone run was of no value. The Sox had already given Marino Pieretti a dose of 14 hits and five runs and a blast of four hits and two runs to Walter Holborow, who strayed into the affair in the eighth.

Hockett Bats 1.000

The chief operative in the offense offered by the Dykes' lads was Oris Hockett who had himself a special evening by doubling once and singling four times in five trips to the plate. Strangely enough Hockett, despite his hitting feats, batted in only one run. On the other hand Cass Michaels with three singles drove in as many runs, one of them putting the Sox ahead by 3 to 2 in the third inning. His two other productions figured in the seventh and eighth inning uprisings.

Altho 18 enemy hits are not easily laughed down, the Senators probably can console themselves at least in a small way over the fact that they were not at their best because of the absence of George Case, their base running artist and .316 hitter. While demonstrating his sliding technique at Comiskey Park yesterday afternoon for the American league's next promotional movie, the speedster suffered a severe sprain of his right leg and will be out of action for at least a week.

Senators Score Two in First

No fewer than four members of the Senators' party reached base in the first inning, so two runs didn't exactly represent a stiff penalty for Caldwell. George Myatt tripled after Joe Zardon had fanned and Buddy Lewis grounded to Le Roy Schalk for a putout at first, Myatt counting. Joe Kuhel walked and Harlond Clift followed with a two bagger to left center, Kuhel scoring. George Binks also walked but the inning was quickly concluded on Gilberto Torres' grounder to Michaels.

A pass and a single in the Sox first netted nothing and even with three hits in the second inning they scored only once. Hockett opened the incident with his double and went to third while Michaels was beating out a bunt. Hockett scampered home while Mike Tresh and Michaels were being mopped up in a double play. Caldwell prolonged the inning by singling, but Wally Moses merely tapped to Pieretti.

Sox Go Into Production

TIGERS, RED SOX SPLIT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8 (AP)—Scoring four runs in the 12th inning of the second game to win, 7 to 4, the Boston Red Sox today gained an even break in a double header with Detroit after the Tigers had taken the opener, 5 to 2.

Dave Ferriss fell victim to Detroit's 11-hit attack in the opener to lose his third game in his last four starts. It was his fifth defeat of the year against 18 victories.

Jim Wilson, 22 year old Red Sox right hander, was knocked unconscious by Hank Greenberg's line drive in the 10th inning of the second game and taken to Henry Ford hospital. There X-rays revealed a slight fracture and physicians said he might be hospitalized for a week.

Chick Evans Beats Carroll in City Golf

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Charles Evans Jr., that remarkable young fellow of 55 summers, who has won four city amateur golf championships, the fourth last summer after a 33 year lapse, yesterday continued to move the ball around the Jackson park course in old time style. Around the first nine of his second round match against young Warren Carroll of Marquette in a rapid 31, three under par, Chick closed up shop for the day on the 11th green for the 8 and 7 decision.

The Edgewater veteran then dashed back onto the old south side layout to follow the progress of his protege, Jack Atten, the 18 year old Northwestern star who last week won the C. D. G. A. closed junior title. That progress was interrupted at the 17th green by Hymie Judelson, the Old Orchard campaigner, who ran off with this tournament, now in its 41st year, in 1938. They were even at the turn with 35s, one over par, but Hymie holed a couple of long putts and played steadily thru the fairway to win, 3 and 1.

Other Favorites Lose

Atten wasn't the only favorite to bow out in yesterday's set of 16 second battles. Sgt. Moe Springer, one time public links prodigy who now is on furlough from the army, busted loose a fast 33 to gain a 2 up edge at the turn over Eddie Kletcke of Beverly, the city fireman who won the championship four years ago. The young sergeant clung to that advantage for a 2 and 1 triumph.

HAINES OPPOSES SEX CRIMINAL'S GUINEA PIG PLEA

Otho W. Smith, 47, merchandise buyer for a large Chicago house, who said he cannot control criminal sexual desires, probably cannot aid either himself or society by his offer to volunteer as a human guinea pig for medical experimentation, Dr. William H. Haines, director of the Criminal court behavior clinic, said yesterday.

Smith made his offer Tuesday after he was sentenced to three concurrent terms of one to three years for crimes against nature, on the complaints of small boys. The unnatural urge has preyed on him since he was a youth, he said. He served sentences in the Iowa state penitentiary and in the Bridewell; he has refrained from marriage; he has lost good jobs and paid thousands of dollars in fees to lawyers and doctors, and in blackmail, because of the weakness, he added. Smith said he would submit to emasculation in an experiment to seek a cure.

Dr. Haines said that criminal sexual psychopathic cases cannot be cured either by psychiatry or surgery, and that science probably could add nothing to its knowledge by experimenting on Smith.

SAILOR'S WIFE IS INDICTED FOR ADULTERY

Lake county's grand jury yesterday indicted the wife of a sailor and her male companion on charges of adultery. Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady, who granted the sailor a divorce, called the case the "most flagrant" ever to come before him.

Indicted were Mrs. Alma E. Vanderspool, 35, of Fox Lake, whose husband, Theodore, is a fireman 1/C in the navy, and Herman Bittner, whose address was not disclosed.

Vanderspool testified he found the couple living together. Three of his children were with their mother, he said. The oldest, Delores, 15, had objected to Bittner's presence and had moved out of the home to live with a friend. The father was awarded custody of the children.

Judge Dady had State's Atty. Harry A. Hall place the matter before the grand jury, which returned the indictments before Judge Dady.

WARREN IS EXPECTED TO FILL JOHNSON'S SENATE SEAT SOON

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 8 [Special]—Gov. Warren said today he will act possibly next week to fill the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death Monday of Sen. Johnson [R., Cal.]. Funeral services for the veteran senator will be held here Monday.

Maj. William F. Knowland of Oakland, long time supporter of Warren and son of Joseph R. Knowland, publisher of the Oakland Tribune, is regarded in political circles as the governor's most natural selection.

Other possibilities, it was said, are Joseph Knowland himself, Raymond Haight, Los Angeles, Republican national committeeman; Ezro Decoto, Almeda, and Robert Sproul, president of the University of California. Former President Hoover was mentioned as a possible recipient of the appointment.

Lt. Gov. Frederick Houser, who recently said he would run against Johnson for the senate seat next year, is an avowed candidate for the appointment.

ATOMIC FORCE APPRAISED FOR TRADE EFFECT

Recall Vast Impact of Reaper, Autos

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

The effects that atomic power may have on America's economic future remained a prime subject of discussion yesterday among Chicago's financial, industrial, and commercial leaders. At a time when little is known about this new miracle of science other than it is highly effective in a bomb, the concensus was it probably will be many years before commercial application can be made.

The history of other major scientific developments has been that years have elapsed between the time an invention first was shown to be practicable and when it became of economic significance. The fact that this new form of power is on the horizon already is causing bankers and others to study long-time investments in enterprises which might be affected.

Weigh Long Term Loans

For example, bankers will weigh more carefully the long term bonds of utilities even tho utility companies might be the agency for distributing atomic power.

"The development of atomic power contains the possibility of speeding obsolescence to an incalculable degree," one widely known banker said. "It has long range possibilities that all of us will have to consider. Houses that underwrite securities definitely will be among those who must weigh its economic aspects.

"Who knows but in the future development of atomic power may give us the means of increasing our production so much that we will be able to outrun the huge debts the government has piled up. Thru the centuries England has created war debts that have fostered the belief that that nation would have a financial collapse. However, England has been able to develop methods for increasing production which enabled it to outrun its debts.

Reaper Helped Pay Debt

"The invention of the reaper enabled the United States to increase its farm production to an extent that simplified the paying off of the Civil war debt. Who knows but atomic power may give us the means for paying off our present staggering debts."

He recalled that Cyrus McCormick invented the reaper in 1831 after which a few were built. First important production took place in Chicago in 1848, but it was not until the 1860s and '70s that it received widespread public acceptance. Its use during the Civil war was credited with contributing to the north's victory because it solved a critical man power problem. It freed men for the army and at the same time made it possible to supply the armies of the Union with adequate food.

After the war use of the reaper, which replaced hand harvesting methods, resulted in a golden flow of farm products that increased the national wealth.

Auto is Economic Example

The automobile is another development which indicates how many years it takes to give economic importance to an idea. The first gasoline automobile was built in Europe in 1882.

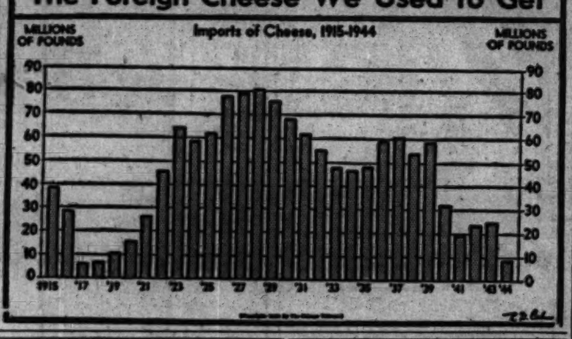
Widespread public acceptance of the gasoline automobile was attained about 1910 and the Ford Motor company production reached 1,000 a day in 1913. It was not until the end of World War I., however, that the auto became an integral part of average family ownership.

Edison's first electric light burned in 1879, but it was the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893 which was credited with selling it to the public. Not until after 1900 was it in widespread use in American homes.

Marconi took out his patent on wireless in 1896, but it was not until several years after the end of World War I, that there was a radio in every home. Television was developed in the early 1920s, but up to the start of World War II. it had not gained wide public use.

Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, president of the Museum of Science and Industry, commenting on the outlook for the development of atomic power, recalled that the slogan of A Century of Progress exposition was "It takes 20 years from the laboratory to public acceptance."

The Foreign Cheese We Used to Get



Space Leased by Eight New Firms in Mart

Long term leases for space in the Merchandise Mart have been signed by eight appliance firms, John C. Goodall, general manager, reported yesterday. All are for early occupancy. Goodall said the space became available thru the removal of several nonmarket tenants and other appliance manufacturers are expected to follow.

Long range plans call for continuous expansion of both the major and small appliance sections, he said.

Open Regional Offices

"All of these firms are opening regional or national headquarters, some of them for the first time in Chicago," said Goodall. "Their leases indicate a recognition of the city as the nation's most important distribution center.

"Their location in the Merchandise Mart with its concentration of more than 1,500 allied home furnishings lines and its large volume of buying traffic from furniture, home furnishings, and department stores, indicates the important place stores of this type occupy in the post-war distribution plans of the appliance industry."

List New Lessees

Among the companies who have signed leases for occupancy soon are: The American Central Manufacturing company, Connersville, Ind.; Apex Rotorex corporation, Cleveland, O.; Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company, Detroit, Mich.; General Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn.; Free Sewing Machine company, Rockford, and Nu-Tone, Inc., Cincinnati, O.

TRUSTEES TO ASK ROCK ISLAND PAY 34 MILLION CASH

Trustees of the Rock Island railway yesterday decided to petition Federal Judge Igoe next week for authority to pay $34,279,750 to holders of bonds and to general creditors. The amended plan for reorganization of the road, which has been approved by the interstate commerce commission, provides for the cash distribution in addition to issuance of new securities for the bonds.

The major distributions of cash proposed: general mortgage 4s, due 1988, $11,647,430 total, or $189.14 per $1,000 bond; first and refunding mortgage 4s, due 1934, $11,287,643 and $102.22; secured 4½ per cent bonds, due 1952, $4,600,000 and $115, and the Choctaw and Memphis first mortgage 5s, due 1949, $1,762,000 and $500.

Joseph B. Fleming and Aaron Colnon are trustees for the road.

DART REFUSES PRESIDENCY OF WARD COMPANY

Justin W. Dart, president of the United Drug, Inc., in Boston, Mass., yesterday rejected an offer to become president of Montgomery Ward & Co. made last month by Sewell Avery, chairman.

"Because I cannot properly leave United Drug-Rexall at this time, I have declined the Montgomery Ward proposal," he said. "I am grateful to Mr. Avery and the Montgomery Ward directors for their generous offer."

Dart, 37, former general manager of the Walgreen company, has been president of United Drug since late in 1943. A spokesman in Avery's office said the letter speaks for itself.

INSURANCE FIRMS SUE FOR EQUALITY IN TAX STATUS IN MICHIGAN

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 8 (AP)—Two large insurance companies today asked Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr to require Michigan to grant them equal status with Michigan companies in a suit which may affect the state's 5 million dollar annual license fee revenue from outside insurance firms.

The suit was brought by the Prudential Insurance Company of America, a New Jersey corporation, and the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company to enjoin the state insurance commissioner from withholding their license to operate in Michigan because they refused to pay some $550,000 in state premium and retaliatory taxes.

They contended the Michigan taxes were unconstitutional under a tradition breaking decision of the United States Supreme court holding the insurance business to be interstate commerce. They contend the decision forbade states to impose heavier taxes on outside companies than on their own firms.

MILITARY STEEL DEMAND NEARLY SATIATED, BUT—

The military appetite for steel for prosecution of the Japanese war may be nearly satiated within 60 days and consumption thereafter will be determined by immediate requirements with long range needs "definitely reduced," Iron Age magazine predicted yesterday.

"In fact, continuing pressure from business and political headquarters may compel the military to disgorge the tonnage which has clogged mill schedules," the magazine said. "Until this prospect becomes a reality, however, civilian producers still must live on hope alone."

"Bad news for civilians lies in a comparison of delivery dates currently quoted by mills with those prevailing a month ago," it said. "Plate orders have kept pace with production, making October the earliest available date compared with September quoted last month." Some sheet deliveries extend into March.

SUN-KRAFT SALE OF 90,000 SENIOR SHARES PLANNED

Sun-Kraft, 215 W. Superior st., manufacturer of ultra-violet lamps for home use, yesterday registered with the securities and exchange commission 90,000 shares of 30 cent cumulative dividend preferred stock of $1 par value. The shares will be offered at $5 each by the Floyd D. Cerf company. Also registered were 10,000 shares to be issued to the estate of Eban D. Norton in exchange for 100,000 shares of Sun-Kraft common stock. Proceeds of the financing, estimated at $378,840, will be used in part to redeem outstanding class A stock and for expansion.

PAW Restricts Eastern Deliveries of Fuel Oil

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—The petroleum administration for war today prohibited deliveries of fuel oil to large users on the east coast if they have a 30 day supply in inventory, or if a delivery will provide a supply for more than 60 days. The restriction on inventories does not apply to dwellings accommodating three or less families or to the storage of suppliers.

SEC Ruling on Floor Trading Expected Soon

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 8 (AP)—The securities and exchange commission's decision on whether to abolish floor trading on the New York Stock and Curb exchanges or permit the tryout of rules proposed by the exchanges is expected soon, it was learned here today. The commission proposed the abolition of the established practice on Jan. 15.

Steels, Rails Lead Modest Rise in Stocks

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Steels, rails, and utilities recovered some of yesterday's losses in today's stock market and other selected issues advanced about 2 points. Electric and chemical shares made gains, but oils, farm implements, and aircrafts were hesitant. Vanadium corporation, producer of uranium used in the new atomic bombs, rose 4% to a 1945 high of 51.

The trend was higher and dealings orderly, indicating Wall st. had no hint that President Truman would announce that Russia had declared war on Japan. The announcement came as the market closed. West coast stock markets sold off moderately.

Trading Volume Falls

Altho minus signs were well distributed, advances stood out against yesterday's severe decline on the belief that the new bomb would shorten the war and hasten problems of reconversion.

Transfers were 700,000 shares against 980,000 yesterday. Of 834 issues appearing, 394 rose, 245 fell off, and 195 were unchanged. The Associated Press 60 stock composite advanced 0.2 to 64.0.

Higher were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, Woolworth, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Anaconda, General Electric, Union Carbide, Great Northern, Santa Fe, and Paramount. Losers included General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Caterpillar Tractor, and Standard Oil [N. J.].

BONDS TURN HIGHER

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—The bond market rose today under leadership of rails but failed to hold all gains up to the close. Final prices for a sizable list of active carrier loans showed net improvement of major fractions to more than a point and industrial and utility bonds were generally steady. Sales of $4,480,000 compared with $5,230,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER

Prices declined on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in turnover of 20,000 shares. Heavily traded issues included Peabody Coal, up ½; Chicago corporation, Admiral, and Wisconsin Bankshares, each down ½, and Radio, up ¼.

WMC ESTIMATE OF AUGUST IDLE PROVES TOO HIGH

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—The war man power commission estimated today that about 1,400,000 persons were jobless, 600,000 fewer than it had expected in making earlier calculations for three months after V-E day.

A high man power official said the current employment situation "is much brighter than we had dared hope it would be." He said the WMC 30 per cent over-estimate of August joblessness was caused by [1] delayed impact upon industry of munitions cutbacks, many of which will not affect employment until late this year, and [2] many more released war workers than expected have found jobs in such labor-starved industries as agriculture, trade, service, and finance.

The estimate that 2 million would be jobless in August, compared with 630,000 in March, was made by WMC Chairman McNutt May 14. He said unemployment would drop to 1,300,000 by December thru increased civilian production, but would climb to 2,100,000 by next May as a result of deep cuts in war production.

THREE CARRIERS TAKE STEPS TO BUY EQUIPMENT

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad yesterday applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue $1,440,000 of equipment trust certificates, proceeds to be used in part for payment for three diesel locomotives and 500 all steel coal cars. The Great Northern asked to issue $3,825,218 of promissory notes to help finance the purchase of 250 flat cars, 500 gondola cars and 12 diesel locomotives. The Baltimore and Ohio ordered 2,000 steel hopper cars of 50 ton capacity, 1,000 to be built by Bethlehem Steel corporation, 500 by Ralston Steel Car company, and 500 by Pressed Steel Car company.

Full Consideration Given: Fairless

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Directors of the United States Steel corporation have decided to abandon any move to acquire the government owned steel plant operated by the corporation at Geneva, near Provo, Utah, Benjamin F. Fairless, president, disclosed tonight in a letter to Sam H. Husbands, president of the Defense Plant corporation.

Fairless said the decision was made "after a full consideration of the whole situation, including the various problems which seem to us to be involved in attempting to establish the Geneva mill after the war as a sound and successful commercial enterprise."

The Geneva plant was built at an estimated cost of nearly 200 million dollars to produce plates and structural steel for shipbuilding. Operations began March 23, 1944. Capacity is about 1,200,000 tons annually.

Kaiser Negotiates with DPC

Henry J. Kaiser, west coast industrialist, announced last month he was negotiating with DPC for lease and eventual purchase of the facility, and planned to form a syndicate to operate it.

In his letter Fairless recalled that DPC had advised United States Steel it had authority under the surplus property act only to lease the Geneva mill for not exceeding five years, without an option to purchase.

Referring to recent statements by members of the surplus property board who suggested that western business men form a corporation to operate the plant, Fairless wrote:

"We have no disposition to engage in any controversy with these officials or to contravene their determinations or regulations. However, we deny their allegations or inferences of monopolistic control, and we question the accuracy of the premises on which some of their statements appear to have been based."

Modernize in California

He also said United States Steel on March 31 had more than 17,000 stockholders in the 11 far western states with holdings valued in excess of 66 million dollars, more than half of them in California.

The decision against purchase of the Geneva plant, Fairless wrote, did not affect plans for modernization of Columbia Steel company, subsidiary which operates steel making and finishing facilities at Torrance and Pittsburg, Cal. Installation at Pittsburg of modern cold reduction facilities with an annual capacity of more than 325,000 tons of sheets and tin plate would constitute "a substantial additional investment" by United States Steel in the far west. Reports were that the cost would be about 25 million dollars.

If future operators of the Geneva mill decide to manufacture hot rolled coils, Fairless said, United States Steel would be glad to negotiate for purchase of a "substantial amount" of them for use in producing cold reduced products at the Pittsburg plant, if such Geneva production were concurrent with completion of Columbia's new facilities.

Restaurants Warn Red Point Cut Forces Closing of Many

Chicago restaurants face a most serious problem in their ration point supply within the next few weeks, and hundreds may be forced to close until more points become valid in September, Donald F. Kiesau, executive vice president of the Chicago Restaurant association, asserted yesterday.

Restaurants receive points from their ration boards every two months. They are operating on the allotment received early in July, which must last them until they receive more next month. Because of a 20 per cent cut in industrial users' points July 1, most restaurants are fast running out of points and may either have to close or resort to the black market, he said.

Ask Action to Survive

Office of price administration officials in Washington, D. C., agreed to restudy restaurant rationing after hearing testimony from the National Restaurant association and other industry groups that they need more points to survive. Unless action is taken quickly the situation will become intolerable, Kiesau said.

Point allotments for each two month period are based on the number of customers served and the dollar volume of business in the preceding months. Altho a large number of Chicago eating places have taken almost the only way out by closing for a week, two weeks, or even longer, to "catch up" on their points, their reckoning may come later because of a reduced number of customers and volume of business, which will cut down their point allotment in the succeeding two months, as explained.

The temporary closings also give employes a vacation which restaurant owners could ill afford to spare otherwise. Kiesau said one restaurant owner who formerly paid double salary in lieu of vacations because of the help shortage has closed down instead this year.

Asserts Housewife Ahead

He contended that percentage wise, the housewife is getting more points—0.6 red point per person per meal if every member of the family eats every meal at home. Restaurants, on the other hand, get less than 0.5 point per person per meal. Much of the restaurant red point allotment must be used for fats and oils in the kitchen, with meat bought when possible and butter almost out of the question, he said.

The volume of restaurant business continues at capacity, he said. Because a large number of Chicagoans depend on restaurants for all three daily meals, the industry believes it should be on an equal point basis with the housewife. War workers, hotel residents, and others who must eat out need meat in their diet as surely as those who eat at home, Kiesau said.

TREASURY EASES CURBS ON PAPER MONEY IMPORTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—Restrictions were relaxed by the treasury today to permit free importation of United States currency in denominations of $20 or less and unlimited importation of foreign currency.

Secretary Vinson said import controls over small denomination United States paper money can be relaxed because of the defeat of Germany. One of the purposes of the controls was to reduce the foreign exchange value to the Germans of United States currency in their possession. The action removes an inconvenience to persons traveling to the United States.

Vinson also announced removal of the restrictions on the importation of securities issued in the United States or Canada after Pearl Harbor.

F. L. Jacobs Buys Plant to Make Home Washers

Rex C. Jacobs, president of F. L. Jacobs company, Detroit, Mich., yesterday announced the acquisition of a plant at Dowagiac, Mich., for the production of a completely automatic home washing machine. He said that the company has more than 257,000 orders for the machine, known as the Launderall.

U. S. GYPSUM'S PROFIT CLIMBS IN SIX MONTHS

United Aircraft Has Drop in Earnings

United States Gypsum company yesterday reported net income was $2,356,217, equal to $1.74 a share, in the first half of 1945, compared with $2,170,266, or $1.58 a share, in the corresponding part of last year.

United Aircraft corporation reported a drop in net income to $6,957,950, or $2.37 a share, in the first half of 1945, from $8,450,113, or $2.93 a share, in the corresponding 1944 period. Shipments slumped to $331,900,931 from $419,925,815.

Oil Earnings Gains Shown

Consolidated profit of $26,884,363, or $2.39 a share, was reported for the first half of this year by the Texas company, excluding European subsidiaries, compared with $25,533,150, or $2.27 a share, in the corresponding 1944 period. Earnings this year were after a 1 million dollar special reserve to be allocated to extra costs for drilling productive wells, compared with a 3 million reserve for war contingencies a year ago.

Continental Oil company reported profit in the quarter ended June 30 rose to $5,411,802, or $1.15 a share, from $3,400,424, or 73 cents a share, a year earlier. Profit in the six months to June 30 was $8,860,161, or $1.89 a share, against $6,607,250, or $1.41 a share. The 1945 half year profit included $2,150,641, equal to 46 cents a share, derived from the sale of assets, however.

Crosley Sales Up, Profit Off

Net sales of the Crosley corporation climbed to $55,900,287 in the first half of 1945 from $49,088,606 a year earlier, but net income declined to $1,318,818 from $2,556,288.

Transamerica corporation estimated consolidated net income in the six months ended June 30 was $11,700,000, or $1.17 a share, against $8,900,000, or 89 cents a share, in the 1944 period.

Profit of Warner Brothers Pictures in the nine months ended May 26 was reported at $6,564,102, or $1.77 a share, against $5,048,951, or $1.36 a share, in the corresponding period a year earlier.

The company since has sold its investment in the stock of Decca Records, Inc., at a profit of approximately $1,350,000, an amount not included in the earnings report.

PROVIDING INVESTMENT CAPITAL

To The Mountain States

FROM the snow capped peaks of the Rockies flow streams that water the crops of states many hundreds of miles away. In like manner, the capital resources of older sections of the nation have flowed into the Mountain States—to help build their railroads, utilities, mining and manufacturing facilities, no less than their highways, schools and other public improvements.

In this movement of capital from investor to borrower, from section to section, investment banking organizations such as our own, have served a useful function—speeding progress and improving standards of living, likewise providing opportunities to investors for remunerative employment of their surplus funds.

To the Mountain States, more sparsely populated than other sections of the nation, and only beginning their ultimate industrial development, Halsey, Stuart & Co. Inc. has made its contribution to progress by participating as an original underwriter in 60 corporate and municipal bond issues from this area, totaling over $350 millions.

LAMBS SLUMP AGAIN IN WAKE OF 1 DAY RALLY

Some Farmers Net Less on Hiked Subsidy

Lamb prices slumped mostly 25 cents per hundred pounds again yesterday at the Chicago stock yards after a one day rally attempt. In the absence of high quality offerings, best lambs were off 50 cents to a $14.35 top, equal to the lowest this year and $2.05 below the peak just prior to the announcement two weeks ago that the government would remove the 95 cent subsidy payment to packers and pay larger subsidies directly to producers on a sliding scale.

Some farmers who raised the heavier lambs which carry the largest subsidy, $2.15, have benefitted by about 10 cents a hundred. Farmers who marketed lambs of less than 90 pounds obtained less, including the subsidy, than before the shift.

Producer Returns Compared

Top grades above 90 pounds returned $16.50, including the $2.15 to be collected later, compared with $16.40 which packers paid directly to farmers for such lambs just before the subsidy shift. Some lambs below 90 pounds brought $16.40 then, but only $15.85 yesterday, including a $1.50 subsidy.

Marketing of sheep and lambs held back in hope that the new subsidy plan would yield large returns lifted receipts to 6,000, second largest for a Wednesday since mid-June. The three day total of 16,200 this week was the largest in almost two months.

July Slaughter Is Small

Cattle receipts shrank, but price strength was confined to the better grades at $17 or above. Other classes ruled weaker tho calves were steady. Hog receipts of 8,000 set a new 1945 low for a Wednesday and sold at ceiling prices.

July hog slaughter under federal inspection was only 2,752,472 head, the smallest for any month since September, 1938. June slaughter was 3,381,819 hogs, and the July, 1944 total was 4,795,042. The July cattle kill was set at 1,049,931, compared with 1,060,124 in June and 1,078,584 in July, 1944. Packers slaughtered 482,051 calves, third lowest since February, 1944, and 1,741,932 sheep and lambs, fourth fewest since May, 1944.

Whiteside County Farm Yields 100 Bushel Oats

Prophetstown, Ill., Aug. 8 [Special]—More than 100 bushels of oats an acre, said to be a record in Whiteside county, was the 1945 yield of a 20 acre field on the Ralph Bollman farm, two miles north of Prophetstown on Rock river.

Egg Futures Rally Erases Nearly All Tuesday Loss

Shell egg futures rallied on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday to wipe out nearly all of Tuesday's losses. October futures closed at 44 cents a dozen, up 0.55 cent, and November at 44.05 cents, up 0.80.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—A 1945 cotton crop of 10,134,000 bales, 17 per cent below the 1944 crop of 12,230,000, was forecast today by the department of agriculture on the basis of Aug. 1 conditions. Average production of the last 10 years was 12,293,000 bales.

However, the lint yield is forecast at 269.7 pounds an acre which is 39 pounds above average and has been exceeded only in 1937, 1942 and 1944.

The acreage for harvest this year is expected to total 18,034,000 acres, allowing for average abandonment of the land in cultivation on July 1, or 10 per cent below the 1944 acreage and the smallest during any of the last 60 years.

RYE IS STRONG AS OTHER GRAINS MOVE NARROWLY

Rye futures developed independent strength yesterday in a little changed grain market on the Chicago Board of Trade. September rye advanced 2½ cents to $1.48¾ a bushel before profit cashing cut the gain. Short covering and announcement that government agencies would purchase rye flour equal to 350,000 bushels of grain furnished the background for the buying of futures. Closing trades were 1½ cents higher to ¼ cent lower.

Removal of hedges against sales of No. 1 hard winter wheat to the government at Kansas City and Omaha gave the wheat market a firm tone early. The Chicago close was unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Kansas City futures rose ⅝ to ⅝ cent. Corn finished unchanged to ¼ lower, oats ⅝ lower to ⅛ higher, and barley unchanged to ¼ cent lower.

PACKERS DEFEND PAY RANGE PLEA AT WLB HEARING

Geographical wage differentials have been recognized in the meat packing business by the federal government since 1933 when the NRA codes were set up, representatives of the five leading packing companies yesterday told a war labor board commission.

The statement answered a request July 19 by the CIO United Packinghouse Workers' union that geographical pay differentials be eliminated as an "artificial structure." The system permits packers to take advantage of lower labor costs in one area to sell products in a high price area, the union contended.

Clark Kerr, chairman of the WLB meat packing commission, said the union would receive 20 days to reply to the packers' statement. After hearings are completed the commission will submit its findings to the WLB.

Decatur Store Bought by Chicago Mail Order

The Chicago Mail Order company yesterday purchased for cash the Gebhart-Gushard department store in Decatur, Ill., as part of its expansion program, Robert W. Jackson, president, announced. The company will take possession of the 25 year old store Sept. 1 and operate it under its present name. The price was not disclosed. The Decatur store was the third purchased by the company in Illinois.

SEVERAL STRIKES REPORTED NEAR TO SETTLEMENT

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Some 46,000 persons were idle in labor disputes last night but developments brightened the prospect of lopping several thousands off the national total.

The result of union-management conferences in Detroit held the answer to settlement of disputes involving 12,000 AFL lumber yard workers and 2,000 CIO United Automobile workers at the Federal Mogul corporation.

Reinstatement of 36 discharged workers of the General Cable company, Rome, N. Y., cleared the way for the return of 4,200 Independent Cable Guild members who had been out since Sunday. Six thousand CIO United Steel workers were idled at the Portsmouth, O., plant of Wheeling Steel corporation by a strike over incentive pay. In Fort Wayne, Ind., 1,100 were away from their jobs in three plants of the General Electric company because of a strike of AFL craftsmen over a long standing wage dispute. Twenty-seven hundred employes walked out of the United States Rubber company's ball brand plant in Mishawaka, Ind.

VINSON TAKES 3 FORMER AIDS TO TREASURY OFFICE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8 (AP)—Three new assistants to the secretary of the treasury have been named but the new secretary, Fred Vinson, has not begun any reorganization of the department's top officials.

The new assistants, just assigned, have been with Vinson in his last three assignments. They have not yet been told what their functions will be. Vinson is still studying the department. No important official from the Henry Morgenthau regime his yet left the department.

The new assistants, making a total of 10, are: Paul Kelley, 40, of Ashland, Ky.; Edward F. Prichard Jr., 30, of Paris, Ky., and Wilbur R. Lester, 30, of Kewanee, Ill.

Output thruout the country was 4,432,304,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 4,399,433,000 a year ago, the Edison Electric institute said.

DOEHLER-JARVIS

I should like information on Doehler-Jarvis corporation, particularly how much the combined earnings of the two merged companies were prior to the consolidation.—C. A.

In the seven years prior to the consolidation of Doehler Die Casting and W. B. Jarvis companies as of last Jan. 1, the annual combined earnings had averaged about $1.36 a share on the 1,049,685 shares of Doehler-Jarvis stock, all of one class, now outstanding. This is on the basis of profit reported by Doehler for calendar years and by Jarvis for fiscal years ended June 30.

By years, the combined earnings on the present stock were: 1944, $1.50; 1943, $1.56; 1942, $1.13; 1941, $2.14; 1940, $1.52; 1939, $1.24; 1938, 44 cents. In the first quarter of 1945 the consolidated company's profit was 45 cents a share, against 42 cents for the constituent companies a year earlier. Two 25 cent dividends have been paid this year.

Doehler was a leading producer of castings for automobiles and many other commercial uses. Jarvis' line included a wide variety of automobile body and refrigerator hardware made from die castings and brass stampings, most of which were chromium or nickel plated. In 1944 both divisions were engaged almost exclusively in war work.

HELP WANTED ADVERTISING

Because of the unprecedented demand for Help Wanted advertising space, regular classified Help Wanted advertising will be published only on the first four days of the week, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, during the months of August and September.

Help Wanted advertising of critical war plants recommended by the United States Government, will be published each day except Saturday.

This enables the Tribune to utilize to the best advantage of readers and advertisers the total weekly supply of paper allocated to such advertising under the Tribune's paper conservation program.
